President Not So Well Governor Much Improved

President Wilson is reported not at all well, but his condition is not considered alarming.

The bulletin of Dr. Grayson issued at 10 o'clock last night reads:

"The President is a very sick man. His condition is less favorable today and he has remained in bed throughout the day."

"After consultation with Dr. F. X. Dercum of Philadelphia, Drs. Sterling Ruffin and E. R. Stitt of Washington at which all agreed as to his condition, it was determined that absolute rest is essential for some time."

Governor Coolidge is much improved, but sits up only a little time each day, attending to important business.

EAST WEYMOUTH SPECIAL AID.

The first business meeting of the Executive committee was held on Tuesday afternoon, September 30.

It was voted to continue the Red Cross knitting for the destitute children of Europe, and also to continue to give out the sewing through the Kings Daughters Circles and Girls Service Leagues. The need for layettes and children's clothes is still very urgent in desolated Serbia.

The report of the Lookout Committee showed that the seven men from East Weymouth doing guard duty in Boston had been supplied with woolen socks. Five of these are ex-service men.

Since February 1, 1919, $1050 has been given to the returning overseas veterans of the Army and Navy, 142 men in all. Each one of these has received $5 as a Welcome Home gift, and those ill or wounded have been sent flowers, cigarettes, candy, fruit and additional amounts, totaling in some cases from $20 to $50 apiece.

The committee received with regret the resignation of Mrs. Frederick Alden, who has served as the Special Aid and Red Cross knitting chairman since the society was first organized. It has meant many months of hard and faithful labor.

It was voted to give a banquet, the last of October to those men who had not yet returned on June 9, and to have a dance for all East Weymouth service men following the banquet.

ROLL OF HONOR.

Who in Weymouth can furnish us with a brief record of service of the following service men whose names appear on the Honor Roll of Weymouth this week?

CHARLES B. BIRD
TIMOTHY BRESNAHAN
JAMES H. CORRIGAN
VINCENT L. GORMAN
TIMOTHY LEHAN
FUDO NICODEMUS

COMMUNITY SERVICE CLUB.

The releasing of the boys at Camp Hingham has revived social activities at the club. The first dancing party was held Friday evening and was in charge of Mrs. Libby assisted by Mrs. Juliette Nash. Sixteen girls were present and the party was a grand success.

Sunday evening Mrs. Nash and party of girls entertained at the club house. Music and games were enjoyed and a lunch was served.

Evidently the kind ladies who hitherto have kept the cookie jar filled to overflowing have used their last bit of sugar in jellies and preserves, as on several occasions a wistful look has come into the eyes of some sailor boy as he slowly replaced the cover of the empty cookie jar when he sought the kind that mother used to make. Kind friends—a gentle hint—molasses and karo make excellent cookies, and we assure you they would be greatly appreciated. On Friday of this week Mrs. J. B. Jones of the Heights will be hostess.

CLAPP MEMORIAL ASSOCIATION

The Clapp Memorial Association will open for the season of 1919-20 on Monday, Oct. 6 and all signs point to the banner year in the history of this organization.

Hail! Hail! the gangs all Home! and the C. M. A. is the only logical place to spend the long winter evenings.

We have every attraction to offer at prices that are the same as when the building opened in 1904. All the leading magazines will be found on the reading table, also the Weymouth Gazette and other papers.

The pool tables newly covered and a brand new lot of cues, will be a welcome bit of news to the followers of this game.

The bowling alleys are in the best of condition, perfectly lighted so that no glare reaches the eyes, new pins and balls.

The gymnasium never looked as fine as it does this year. All the equipment put in first class condition and much new equipment added. The new adjustable punching bag stand will be greatly appreciated by the members, especially those interested in boxing. The Gym. floor has been shined and varnished.

We have everything needed by or boys to have a good time.

now we want the men and boys to take full advantage of what we have to offer. We want bowlers, basket ball players, boxers and wrestlers to sign up this month so that we can start tournaments and select teams to represent the Association this winter.

All present members are urged to get at least one new member during October. First we must have members then the members can have the fun by running socials or dances, or joining any team in the Association.

Be on hand next week ready to become a member.

All the Ladies Gym. classes will meet Miss Anderson at the C. M. A. Tuesday afternoon and evening, October 7.

WEYMOUTH HIGH FOOT BALL.

The Weymouth High School foot ball team opens the season today with a game with Abington High at Abington. The team is one of the strongest that has represented the school for years and includes: Palmer, Ed. Rand, Haviland, Dwyer, G. Rand, Breen, Nolan, Coffey and Proctor of last years team. Colby the 175 pound full back who played on Taunton high last year. The schedule for the season is as follows:

Fri., Oct. 3 Abington at Abington.
Fri., Oct. 10 So. Boston at Weymouth.
Sat., Oct. 18 Newton at Newton.
Sat., Oct. 25 Boston Latin at Wey.
Sat., Nov. 1 Norwood at Norwood.
Fri., Nov. 7 Milton at Milton.
Fri., Nov. 14 Open.
Fri., Nov. 21 Quincy at Quincy.
Thurs., Nov. 25 Alumni at Weymouth.

Weymouth has been largely represented at the Brockton Fair every week.

John Reidy Withdraws As a Candidate

John Reidy of East Weymouth who was nominated at the Democratic caucus as their candidate for Representative to the General Court has resigned. Whether there is any provision for filling the vacancy is uncertain.

John H. Moran has filed paper at the State House for an independent nomination.

The indications are that Prince H. Tirrell, the Republican nominee, will have a walkover.

MICKEY COMING.

The special attraction at the Odd Fellows Opera House at East Weymouth next Monday will be "Mickey," the lass you will never forget. Mickey is full of fun and frolic. You will wonder and marvel at its magnitude. Mack Sennett is responsible for "Mickey," and you know what that means. Matinee at 3.45 and evening performance at 7.45.

FALSE ALARM.

Box 29 at Strong's shoe factory on Middle street was sounded Thursday noon, but fortunately there was no fire. The alarm was given by the automatic system, because of the heat, but was really a false alarm.

MASONIC VISITATIONS.

Right Worshipful H. Everett Crane of Quincy, district deputy of the 28th Masonic district, will make an official visit to the local lodge Wednesday evening, Oct. 15.

Other visitations in this vicinity will be held as follows:
Oct. 8, Norfolk Union, Randolph.
Oct. 17, Rural, Quincy.
Oct. 21, Delta, Braintree.
Oct. 28, Wollaston, Wollaston.

Revised Schedule Net Prices VACUUM CUP CASINGS "TON TESTED" TUBES

Standardized and Uniform Throughout the United States

BASED on raw materials, purchased at comparatively low prices, Vacuum Cup Tires and "Ton Tested" Tubes—the choice of a million motorists—were, on July 19, and for the second time during the current year, substantially reduced in price.

Now, a high and rising market on fabric and other materials compels announcement of revised schedule, effective October 1, as follows:

Size	Vacuum Cup Casings Fabric	Vacuum Cup Casings Cord	Channel Tread Casings Cord	"Ton Tested" Tubes Regular	"Ton Tested" Tubes Extra-heavy Cord Type
30x3	18.45			3.00	3.75

INDUSTRIAL VALUE OF HOME

Well Recognized That Ownership Makes for Highly Desired Stability of Character.

Man's greatest business in life is the business of living. And nothing contributes so much to the success of this business as does good housing. Civilization is built up on this idea. The most progressive and civilized nations have been best housed.

Today the industrial value of home ownership is well recognized. It develops a pride, a self-respect, a stability of character that makes the home owner the man to be desired.

The man who can save and achieve a real haven to house his business of living has something that differentiates him from those not so fortunate. His credit is better, he is more highly regarded by the community, and he is the desirable citizen.

Most homes must be built on loans. As handled in the past, the mortgage has been pictured a home wrecker, a dreaded something to harass a man's old age.

Today the tendency is toward amortization, which is a gradual paying off of the principal so that in time the home will be free and clear. Amortization removes the only drawback to the ownership of a home. Whereas it is hard to save $4,000 to pay off in a lump sum, it is easy to pay $33 a month for ten years, plus $20 interest charges, which latter decreases every month. How many of us have bought things on the partial payment plan, meeting the payments easily, and meanwhile enjoying the luxury of possession?

Just so it is with a home. And provided it is located right, one or two rooms can be rented that will cut the monthly payments in half. That feature alone has proved the deciding factor with many who desire to be a real success in the business of living.

But this home should be built to last, to be in as good condition when the payments are finished as when they are started. That means spending money where it doesn't show—for a year or so. It means good plumbing, good heating, good, sound timber framed by a builder worthy of trust, by a man whose bid may not be the lowest, but whose bid is based on the kind of construction that will cause the home to stand up bravely against the elements, a real haven for the business of living.

PLANT FLOWERS AND TREES

Now is the Best Time to Plan and Work on the Improvement of the Home Grounds.

The appearance of the home has much to do with its utility as well as its beauty. A home where there are flowers, trees, lawn, etc., seems more comfortable than where these things are absent. Such a home is always more satisfying, and that of course is a quality of utility.

Fall is a good time to improve the yard, lawn and general appearance of the home. Late fall is a favorable time to transplant many biennials and perennials. Roses, "the queen of flowers," may be set; other shrubs may be transplanted; violets, bulbs of various kinds, sweet peas, etc., may be started for early spring blossoms.

A little time given to the yard and lawn now will be worth much to the appearance of your home next spring. Look over the yard and see what improvements can be made. Doubtless you will find that much can be done to make your home more attractive.

Demand for Better Homes.

The idea of good homes for wage earners as a matter of public policy was widely advertised during the war and gained strong support. The ablest architects, engineers and landscapers assisted the government in housing plans. This has brought about an increasing national consciousness that every family should be provided with a habitation meeting at least the minimum requirements of sanitation and decency. Many soldiers who were reared in city slums have returned with more personal dignity and no longer will stand for their former homes. They are persuading their families to remove to better neighborhoods.

Flowers as Barometers.

Many flowers are said to be excellent barometers. For instance, it is when the blooms of dandelions have seeded and are in the fluffy, feathery condition, that the weather-forecast faculties come to the fore. In fine weather the ball expands to the full, but when the rain approaches it shuts up like an umbrella. If the weather is inclined to be showery, it keeps shut all the time, only opening when the danger from the wet is passed.

Always Cure in Rest.

Sleep is the most perfect rest, of course, and sleep will "cure" most diseases. That is, the person who sleeps is going to recover, as a rule, for he is going to secure the rest that is essential to recovery. But the point is, the doctors ought to begin refusing to prescribe medicines for people unless they will agree to "take a rest," for the medicines are ineffective without rest.

MUST WEAR DARK CLOTHES

Strict Rule for Employees in Factories Where Work is Done on Gold.

Clothes of a light color are not favorites where work is done on gold. In fact, in many such factories a dark suit of clothes is absolutely demanded, and even a light waistcoat may lose a man a job. The reason for this is that any stray grains of gold that may get on the clothing can easily be caught on a dark suit, while they might get away from the establishment if light clothes were worn.

That such a rule was enforced among gold workers one man learned recently when a Bohemian gold beater applied to him for a helping hand. The Bohemian said that he had not been in this country long, that he had had a chance to obtain a good job at his trade, but that the place had been refused him because he turned up with a light suit and waistcoat on, and they were the only clothes he had.

The man whom he approached was struck by the story and offered to help him out if it proved true. He went to a factory with him and found out that the man could have the job if he presented himself within an hour clad in the proper clothes. So a suit of desired kind was obtained for him and sure enough he got the job.

"You may think this is strange," said the foreman of the factory, "but it means quite a lot to us. Every man's clothing is carefully examined when he leaves the place at night and the gold is brushed off whenever we see any on his clothing. It is impossible to hide even tiny grains on a dark background, but in the case of a mixed or a light suit we might easily lose quite an amount of gold, and gold isn't anything you want to lose even in small quantities."

Strasbourg to Honor De L'Isle.

It is a pleasant detail in the coming erection of a memorial at Strasbourg to Rouget de l'Isle and his "Chant de guerre de l'armee du Rhin," which became "La Marseillaise," that the chairman of the committee in charge bears the name and is a direct descendant of Mayor Dietrich, in whose house the song was first sung. Little enough when De l'Isle composed it did he foresee either that his song would provide inspiration for a French revolution or that time would bring him a permanent memorial in a Strasbourg that had passed out of French possession and come back again. The author himself suffered both by loss of his commission and by imprisonment, first because the adoption of his song by the Revolution made him suspected of revolutionary beliefs by what power still remained to the older government, and later because his lack of enthusiasm for the revolution made him an object of an attack by the new leaders.

IRELAND PROSPERED IN WAR

Bank Deposits Increased From $300,000,000 to $450,000,000 Since 1914.

Dublin.—Increasing prosperity during the last half year is shown by Irish bank reports. The dividends paid to shareholders vary from 18 to 7 per cent. Since the war began the deposits in the Irish banks have increased from $300,000,000 to $450,000,000, notwithstanding that interest on deposits is much smaller than that obtainable from war loans. A great deal of Irish money went into the war loans. The increase of the money available in spite of increased taxation is a measure of the effect of the war on Irish prosperity.

Sacred Ark of the Covenant.

The Ark of the Covenant was the sacred chest which the Lord directed Moses to make to contain the tables of the law which he had received on Mt. Sinai. It was four and one-half feet long, two and one-fourth feet wide and two and one-fourth feet high. It was covered within and without with gold and was carried by staves inserted in rings on the corners. This Ark of the Covenant was the most sacred possession of the Israelites. It was placed in the holy of holies in the tabernacle and later in a similar position in Solomon's temple.

Porpoise Killed Shark.

How a bottle-nosed dolphin, a porpoise commonly called the seahog, slew a 6-foot shark, is described by Galveston (Texas) fishermen, who say they witnessed the killing from the causeway which connects Galveston Island with the mainland. The seahog, according to the books, is a "most sociable and gregarious fish," but these fishermen declared there was nothing sociable about this dolphin. When the shark was within a few feet of the porpoise the fishermen saw the seahog charge, a gray streak in the water. It struck the shark squarely amidships, they declare, ripped it open and then tore the body into pieces. The theory of the fishermen is that the porpoise fought to protect its single young one, which the shark was menacing.

When the Auto Was New.

In March, 1897, in the New York Journal, a writer described his first motor car ride as follows: "In search of a new sensation I went yesterday and rode in a horseless carriage. I dreamed once that I walked down Fifth avenue in my pajamas in the full tide of the afternoon promenade and almost died with shame before I awoke. Yesterday I had something of the same strange feeling as I sat there and felt myself pushed forward into the very face of grinning, staring and sometimes jeering New York."

His Caddie's Advice.

Clergyman (playing at historic St. Andrew's for the first time, to caddie)—What is that yawning abyss in the distance, caddie? Caddie—That's hell, sir. Clergyman—Indeed! What a name to give a bunker! Caddie—You see, sir, it's called hell because yince ye get in ye canna get ont. Clergyman (after playing and landing in the bunker calls for his niblick and plays a good shot out of the hazard)—What have you got to say to that now? Caddie—A' that I hae to say, sir, is when ye dee tak' yer niblick wi' ye.—Portland Telegram.

Beginning of Great Racing Event.

The English Derby was instituted by the twelfth earl of Derby in 1750. A year earlier the same racing peer had started the Oaks, named after his place at Banstead downs—the valley of Lambert's Oaks. Lord Derby won his own race in 1787 with S. Peter Teazle, named thus in honor of his wife, who was Miss Farren, and was acting as Lady Teazle in "The School for Scandal" when Lord Derby saw her for the first time. Little could Lord Derby have imagined that by the time of his grandson—the prime minister of the early part of Queen Victoria's reign—the Derby would be the occasion of a national festival.

Australian Pearls.

The pearls that come from the coast of Australia are of many shapes and colors, and in the trade have names to distinguish them. Pearls under ten grains are sold by the ounce, above that by the grain. Color has a deal to do with the value. The white pearls go mostly to Europe and the yellow ones to India.

Flendish Delight.

Bloggs—"From what you've told me of your mother-in-law I should think you hear enough from her in person without having cared to induce her to talk into your phonograph." Moggs—"Oh, you can't imagine the pleasure it gives me to start the machine going and then shut it off right in the middle of a sentence!"

In a Quandary.

A charming hostess, who was entertaining a party of children, discovered one little fellow sitting in a corner apparently lost in thought. "What are you thinking about, Harry?" "Mother told me not to take two oranges," piped the little man, "and I was thinking I would be mighty lucky if I got one."

LIFE'S LITTLE JESTS

Most Likely.

"There are various terms of endearment."
"Yes?"
"I see where a man who was haled to court, charged with nonsupport, called his wife 'old horse.'"
"Rather appropriate, I should say. She's probably the draft animal in that family."

Just Missed the Gusher.

Bacon—What are these "oil gushers" we read so much about in the newspapers nowadays.
Egbert—Didn't you ever see one?
"Why, no. Did you?"
"Sure! If you'd been here ten minutes ago you would have seen one, too. He just dropped in to try and sell me some oil stock."—Yonkers Statesman.

Admiration.

"Did you grasp the significance of that lecturer's remarks?"
"Not altogether."
"Then why did you applaud so much?"
"Well, I admire brains and I thought that man must be awful smart to understand what he was talking about."

Pretty Small Figure?

"How much did you pay the minister when we were married?"
"I refuse to incriminate myself, my dear."
"What do you mean?"
"I asked the clergyman how much and he said, 'Whatever she is worth to you,' and I paid it."

The Only Difference.

"If you only had all the money you have bet away on the races," said young Mrs. Torkins with a sigh.
"Well, what then?"
"Oh, nothing much, Charley, dear. I suppose the only difference would be that you could take the lump sum and lose it faster in bigger bets."

A TOUCH OF REALISM.

Mrs. Batticree—My club has asked us to take part in the pageant of the '60's that they're giving.
Friend Husband—What do they want us to do, impersonate the Civil War?

Queer Men.
They must be men
Of curious types
Who cannot love
The Stars and Stripes.

Prudent Precaution.

"Why are you calling up Ned now to make the appointment next week?"
"Because if I begin now I may get his number by then."

Early.

"Mary, while you stood in the doorway telling that young man good-night, did it dawn on you that—"
"No, it wasn't that late."—Cartoons.

Naturally.

"There was a big crowd this morning around the perfumery bargain counter."
"Of course, perfumery would naturally be the scenter of attraction."

Straps, of Course.

Patience—I see a New York man suggests that one side of the street cars be reserved for women.
Patrice—Does he mean the seats on one side or the straps?

And to Spare.

"Is there hot air in that house which Jones wants to sell?"
"Lots of it when he begins to talk about it."

His Lot.

"Are you a tired business man?"
"No, just a manufacturer worn out by trying to pay the help more money."

Nothing in a Name.

"Are you still a member of the 'Don't Worry Club' that was organized years ago?"
"Yes. And there's something more to worry about. I must be terribly in arrears in my dues."

A Jumble.

"The socialist orator got things in rather a military mixup."
"How so?"
"He said general apathy as the kernel of the matter was to blame for the major part of the corruption."

PNEUMATIC TIRE FOUND TO GIVE MOST SATISFACTORY SERVICE ON MOTOR TRUCK

From Every Standpoint Pneumatic-Tired Truck Is Superior.

"Contrary to the general supposition, it is more dangerous to be in advance of, than behind, the procession in the matter of introducing improvements in a motor car," said F. H. Akers, sales manager of an eastern motor car concern.

"I am reminded of this by the fact that just at this time all manufacturers are either equipping motor trucks with pneumatic tires or making it optional with the buyer.

"After the most exhaustive comparative tests with several trucks of the same model, some equipped with pneumatics and others with solid tires, our engineers found that from every standpoint the pneumatic-tired truck was infinitely superior.

"First—It was more efficient for the reason that it would travel at nearly twice the speed and thereby make twice as many trips in a given time.

Upkeep Cost Less.

"Second—The upkeep cost was almost unbelievably less, due to the fact that not only did we obtain more mileage on a set of pneumatics than on solids, but that the air cushion effects a wonderful saving on the chassis.

"Not only that, but after 2,000 or 3,000 miles the resiliency in the rubber has been exhausted or, as the motorists say, the rubber 'tires' (not a pun, but meaning fatigue) and acquires more the consistency of wood than of gutta percha.

"Also our engineers found that the fuel consumption was less for the well-known reason that any pneumatic-tired vehicle requires less power.

"Another factor that was much in favor of the pneumatics was the absence of injury to loads of fragile materials. Perishable goods suffer less in a pneumatic-tired truck than they do in a solid-tired vehicle, even though the latter go at half the speed.

"Lighting was another problem. "First we had kerosene lamps and then came the carbide tank.

"With some reason there was objection to this on the ground that it was dangerous.

"A lot of people had to be convinced that if the car got into a snaphup the gas tank would not explode.

"It sounds ridiculous at this late date, but it is a fact, that although every motorist wanted to get away from the drudgery and the danger of cranking his car there was a tremendous opposition to every form of self-starter.

"We expected and were prepared for a battle when we decided that the right thing for a light, high-speed truck was pneumatic tires, but we have always believed it was our duty to give the buyer the best our experience dictated and so we went through with it.

"Everyone now admits the pneumatic-tired truck is inevitable, because it is the solution of most of the trucking problems, so we feel well repaid for our missionary work."

FROM WAR TO PEACE IN MOTOR INDUSTRY

Automobile Trade Did More Than Its Bit to Help Win War.

Fleet of American Trucks Coming In to Use for Additional Transportation Facilities Needs Services of Released Soldiers.

As a single industry the automobile trade did more than its bit to help win the war. Not only did manufacturers come up to specifications in quantity and quality of delivery, but they built better than it was thought they knew how. Proof of this was given the other day when, at an auction of old army cars in France, the French and the English bid higher prices for the cars than they cost the American government new. An army of men was employed to run these trucks and cars on the firing line. They gained more experience in a month of that sort of work than they could have gained in a lifetime of peace work.

The rolling stock will be left abroad, but the men are coming back. They are being released daily from the military service, and are returning in large numbers to civilian life. There is no lack of work for them to do. For the fleet of American trucks now coming into use for additional transportation facilities all over the country needs just such men—men who have learned how to act in any emergency, who feel almost immediately the idiosyncrasies of every motor, who have acquired an efficiency under shell fire that will make them leaders in their work in peace times.

Col. Arthur Woods, assistant to the secretary of war, who is in charge of the re-employment work for ex-service men, announces that a number of such men, are now available for private employment. The automobile industry will not lose this opportunity of obtaining men who, to their pre-war ability, have added the exceptional training and experience of months on the firing line. These men will be in demand, and can be obtained through governmental and welfare employment agencies, who will put them in touch with employers who need their services.

CLEARANCE FOR INLET VALVE

Do Not Run as Hot as Exhaust Valve and Consequently Do Not Expand as Much.

Inlet valves do not run as hot as exhaust valves and consequently do not expand as much. For this reason less clearance is allowed between the stems and pushrods of mechanically operated inlet valves than is allowed in the same units of exhaust valves.

Wear and Tear on Chain.

The wear and tear on the tire chain centers at the links to which the cross chains are attached, and for this reason moving these latter from time to time spreads the wear.

SAFETY FIRST

Says the bulletin of the Hall-fax (N. S.) Automobile association:
Drive as if every other driver were a born idiot.
Drive as if all children and most pedestrians were bent on suicide beneath your wheels.
Drive as if every hill had a chasm at the bottom.
Drive as if every curve were a highwayman, a Bengal tiger and a stone wall.
Examine your car before you start, not after you stop—and you won't have accidents.

FOR REBUILDING WORN TIRES

Simple Shoe May Be Used in Manner Shown in Illustration—Practically Self-Vulcanizing.

Getting the most out of a tire is quite consistent with the economy program. One offering in this line is a simple shoe which may be used to build up a worn shoe in the manner

shown. The new shoe has an inner coating of uncured rubber which becomes tacky when gasoline is poured on it. The tire may be used 20 minutes after it has been repaired. In warm weather the new shoe, by virtue of its uncured rubber, is practically self-vulcanizing.

Keep your tires out of oil puddles in the garage.

The pin connecting the piston and connecting rod is called the wrist pin.

Any steering gear is difficult to lubricate and requires more lubrication than is generally appreciated.

Remember to inspect the steering gear once a week. More harm can be done by failure of the steering gear than by any other accident.

Be careful that the spare tire on the rear of the car does not hide part of the number plate and that the plate is properly lighted at night.

What you pay out your good money for is cigarette satisfaction—and, my, how you do get it in every puff of Camels!

EXPERTLY blended choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos in Camel cigarettes eliminate bite and free them from any unpleasant cigarette aftertaste or unpleasant cigarette odor.

Camels win instant and permanent success with smokers because the blend brings out to the limit the refreshing flavor and delightful mellow-mildness of the tobaccos yet retaining the desirable "body." Camels are simply a revelation! You may smoke them without tiring your taste!

For your own satisfaction you must compare Camels with any cigarette in the world at any price. Then, you'll best realize their superior quality and the rare enjoyment they provide.

—Morris Stone, who was graduated this year with honors and was valedictorian of Weymouth High, and received a scholarship in Harvard, has passed the examinations and entered college on Monday. He is 16 years of age and stood on the honor list the four years at Weymouth High.

—Ted Hunt is back at his duties after a two weeks excursion. He says he had a wonderful time.

—Carl Boman and family moved this week to Abington where he has purchased an estate.

—One of the old residents was found Saturday night in the rear of South Blacksmith shop suffering from poisoning, the effect of drinking wood alcohol. He was rushed to the Quincy city hospital and after working over him for hours the doctors pronounced him out of danger. Monday he was brought before the court of Quincy and sent to the Bridgewater State farm. At an early hour Tuesday morning the police were summoned to Vine street where they arrested five young men charged with being drunk. In the district court the next morning all five were sentenced to the state farm. They appealed.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Hunt of Ashmont have been visiting his mother, Mrs. Charles P. Hunt of 105 Front street.

—Richard Gernayn a government inspector at the Fore River is having his annual vacation.

—A daughter was born last Thursday to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Olsen (Bertha Cote) of 75 Vine street.

—Patrick Gagnon of Elliot street has taken a position in the construction department of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

—Thomas South is one of the board of judges at the big firemen's muster at Brockton today.

—William Moore, who has been seriously ill with blood poisoning for two weeks is now improving.

—Arthur Osborne is having an enforced vacation caused by a severe attack of neuritis.

—Patrolman William H. Trask is taking the second instalment of his vacation this week. A month ago when his son Harold Trask who was cited for bravery arrived in New York from two years service overseas, Mr. Trask was at the pier to greet him. The young man received his discharge at Camp Devens Sunday, and patrolman Trask is spending the week with his son visiting friends and relatives in different parts of the state.

—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Griffin of Belmont, former residents were in town Saturday calling on friends.

—Rev. C. W. Allen of the receiving ship Hingham occupied the pulpit at the Baptist church last Sunday.

—Louis Backie a well known local business man was 55 years old Sunday. Fifty of his friends tendered him a surprise party at his home on Walnut avenue in the evening. There was music and a lunch was served. Mr. Backie was presented a gold watch and chain. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Eben Townes, Mrs. Charles Townes of Brockton, Miss Olla Art of Kingston, Mrs. L. D. Costa, Stephen and Lawrence Costa, Oran D. ## EAST WEYMOUTH and WEYMOUTH CENTER

—Lieutenant Ralph Curtin is home on a ten day pass. On October 3, 1917, he left Hoboken as a field clerk. In France he was raised to a second lieutenant and was on the staff of General Pershing, acting as his assistant secretary. In that capacity he accompanied the General to Rome, Paris, London, etc., for the victory celebrations. Before coming east he took part in the celebrations at New York and Washington, D. C. Lieutenant Curtin expects to remain in the service for at least another year.

—Mrs. Stella Blackwell, who had been with her son L. M. Blackwell for several weeks, has returned to the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Harold Adams of Medford.

—Mrs. Dora Smith White has been substituting at the Weymouth High school in place of Miss Humphrey who has been ill.

—Raymond Blackwell has entered Wentworth Institute, taking electrical wiring. Mr. Blackwell is a recent product of our High School.

—Edward Lincoln has taken a position in the drug store of George M. Hoyt.

—Tuesday the Larkin secretaries association of Weymouth met with the president, Mrs. Ernest MacFawn of Cedar street. It was an all-day meeting. Delegates were present from all parts of the town and several from Quincy. An elaborate menu was served at noon. The afternoon was business and an entertainment of instrumental music and readings. The artists were Mrs. Bertha Bailey, pianist; Mrs. Josephine Lovell, reader.

—The meeting adjourned to meet the third Tuesday in November.

—Robert Ryan has entered the third year class of the Harvard Medical College.

—Anna L. Ryan has resumed her position as teacher in the Newton schools.

—Minot Mathewson is back with a red chevron after nineteen months of service overseas. As a member of the second Division he took part in five major engagements. Since January he had been detailed in Paris as a M. P.

—It was Wild West Night at the Odd Fellows Opera House on Saturday. Bill Hart at his best with his lightning draw and his flinty glare, drew a full house. Even the comedy had a western flavor. In Indian Squaw's athletic interpretation of the shimmy being the main feature.

—It may ease the minds of East Weymouth's chicken fanciers to learn that roving venturesome white dog, breed unknown who trimmed 15 hens belonging to a resident of High street and then making to the other end of town, decreased Frank Cowing's supply of poultry by eleven, was in turn bumped off by a well aimed slug from Officer Butler's gat.

—Exonerated from the charge of desertion Stanton Newcomb has at last returned to civil life. He was given an honorable discharge at Camp Devens after the court had found him not guilty and he arrived in East Weymouth Tuesday night none the worse for the unpleasant experience.

—The gunning season has opened at Whitman's pond. Eight ducks were brought down at Bryant's stand last week.

—The benefit performance for the Weymouth District Nurse Association was well attended. Taken as a whole, "False Faces" with Henry B. Walthall was an exceptionally good photoplay. Whoever directed the picture must have had a mania for realism. regular torpedo fired from a sure enough sub at a real ship and a close up of the ship with a heavy list to starboard; all so realistic that many an ex-rob in the audience imagined himself back in the war zone. But none of us is perfect. That director pulled a terrible bone when he showed an engineer stopping the engines at the first submarine alarm and starting them again when the alarm proved false. The mistake was made more noticeable by the fact that it was not the main engine but the ice machine.

—A heavy local vote is predicted for the coming State election. Monday evening the town offices were again crowded with men to be registered.

—Alonzo Huff of High street, who has been night watchman at the Wool Scouring Company for the past 30 years has resigned. Mr. Huff is 73 years of age and has earned a rest.

—George W. Burgess has accepted a position as night watchman at the local woolen mill.

—Ray Lincoln, formerly of Commercial street, but now of Boston, will enter the Institute of Technology next week. The call to arms interrupted his studies.

—Dancing and pictures every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evening at the Bates Opera House.

—Unity circle of Steadfast Rebekah lodge will hold a fair at Odd Fellows Opera House, Oct. 16, and 17, afternoon and evening. "The district school at Blueberry Corner" with orchestra will be rendered the first night. On the second night, a moving picture, Bryan Washburn in "A very good man." Dancing will follow picture with music. Single admission 22 cents including war tax. Season tickets, 35 cents including tax. Tickets may be obtained from members of the lodge.—Advertisement.

The high cost of deliveries is really a myth

Lots of people have been telling you that all grocery deliveries are expensive. That they greatly increase the cost of your food. That you ought to save this cost by carrying your groceries home.

On the contrary our customers find our delivery system really economical.

It doesn't add to the cost of the groceries and provisions. It saves their time and energy—which they can more profitably devote to their homes or to various outside interests.

We feel that it is part of a grocer's business to make deliveries. Our whole organization is built to serve you in this, and other ways.

For example we maintain two telephones for your convenience. We extend credit. We carry the highest quality groceries we can buy. And we suggest to you various things we know to be especially good.

We take an interest in what you buy—when we sell you the ingredients for a cake, we like to know how it's going to turn out.

That's why we recommend to you Ryzon, the Perfect Baking Powder. There's no uncertainty about Ryzon—success is a foregone conclusion, for it is thoroughly dependable and at 40c per pound it is downright economy.

Ask us about the Ryzon Baking Powder Book if you haven't one already. You'll wonder how you ever got along without it.

This store will be closed all day

CLUB and SOCIAL

—The Old Colony chapter, Daughters of the Nation, Inc., will hold their first meeting in the First Congregational church, Braintree, Oct. 6, at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. Frank Palmer will be hostess. Music and refreshments will be served. Henry N. Longley, bombardier in France, he received a Croix de Guerre for overseas service.

—Mr. and Mrs. George R. Kempf are on an auto trip this week to their old home town, Franklin, N. H., and other points in New Hampshire and northern Massachusetts.

—Friends of Miss Alice Ford of North Weymouth gathered in numbers to see her become Mrs. Frank Martin Tupper on Saturday evening at a pretty home wedding. Congratulations and best wishes were expressed through beautiful gifts and loving words. A significant incident on the event was the joyous sound of children's voices outside the walls, expressing their affection and gladness that their friend was to become a bride. Mrs. Tupper has assisted in the Universalist church school with the primary classes, and is loved by her little friends. All of us are glad that the couple on return from their wedding tour, are to reside amidst us and continue to be a part of our social family.

—A daughter was born Monday at a private hospital in East Milton to Mr. and Mrs. Russell B. Worster of Commercial street.

—Thursday night Miss Margaret Nash was given a linen shower by her fellow telephone operators. On Monday, September 29, Miss Nash and John Condon were married at the home of the bride's sister in Malden. Miss Mildred Connelly was bridesmaid and Maurice Condon the best man. They will reside in North Weymouth.

—Mrs. J. C. Nash assisted by her three daughters served luncheon for the boys at the Service House last Sunday evening.

—A surprise party in honor of Miss Lily Hockansen at her home 277 Essex street, Saturday, Sept. 27. There were twenty-five young people present from Weymouth, Boston and surrounding towns. A very pleasant evening with music and games was enjoyed by all. Ice cream and cake was served including a large birthday cake very prettily decorated. During the evening the young lady was presented with a purse of money. The young people dispersed at a late hour, wishing the young lady many happy returns of the day. It was the occasion of her 18th birthday.

—Mrs. Lawrence Pray entertained the members of the Winona club at her home on Front street Tuesday evening.

—Mrs. Anna M. King, formerly of Weymouth, has just returned East after an eight months stay in Southern California. Tuesday she sailed from New York on the Mauritania for Geneva, via England and France, where she will be connected with the League of Red Cross societies. Her many friends wish her every success in her new work.

—Isadore Bloom arrived home Wednesday from a months visit with relatives in Denver, Colorado.

—The first meeting of the year of the Old Colony Club will be held October 9, at 2:30 P. M., in the Second Universalist church of South Weymouth. Reports will be given by the delegates to the State Federation and notes from the National Federation will be read by Mrs. Jennie B. Worster of the Monday Club. The Conservation committee present, Elizabeth Tabor in "Judith's Garden," accompanied by Ruth Humphrey Knight. Tea will be served. Hostess, Mrs. George Conant.

—Harley G. Carter, superintendent of the Weymouth Light & Power Co., left Saturday with Mrs. Carter for a short vacation. They will motor through Maine, visiting Showegan which was formerly the home of Mr. Carter.

Susannah Tufts chapter, D. A. R., met for the first time this season on Monday at the home of Mrs. George A. Walker. A goodly number were present. Miss Eleanor Walker was the pianist for the afternoon. Miss Mary Loud read a fine paper on Current Events. Vacation reminiscences were presented by Mrs. Cora A. Jordan, Mrs. Jennie B. Worster, Mrs. Alice Goodspeed and Mrs. Laronne Crane. A dainty lunch was served. It was a very interesting afternoon.

—Miss Katherine Kempf has resumed her studies at Smith College, North Adams, and Miss Rachel Kempf has resumed her studies at Boston University.

—Miss Janet Robertson entertained a number of young friends at her home Thursday evening in honor of her eighteenth birthday. In remembrance of the occasion Miss Robertson was presented with many presents. The evening was delightfully spent with games and refreshments.

—Mrs. Grover Annis and son, G. Franklin, returned Saturday to their home in Bristol, Conn., after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sweeney of Franklin street. Her mother returned with her and has been her guest for a few days.

An Easy Solution of Cooking and Heating Problems

The Modern A-B Gas Range

Good But Not High Priced

In fact a good many dollars lower than the ordinary kind. And when it comes to convenience, durability and low cost of running, the A. B. Gas Range outclasses all others.

Here's Just a Few of the Good Points of an A. B.

No range kept clean so easy. Has special enamel that never needs blacking. The ovens are elevated—no more stooping to watch the baking. The oven linings are rust resisting—means long life to the entire stove. Inspect an A. B. Gas Range yourself and learn more about them.

Nothing Can Touch This A. B. Gas Range for $44

This range has a large, elevated gas oven and boiler. Four cooking burners make this range able to do the work for a family of the ordinary size. This range has all the A. B. features, the rust-resisting oven linings—the burners that save gas—the enamel that needs no blacking and a host of other good points.

Glenwood Gold Medal Ranges

This range cannot be equalled where floor space is limited. It is less than four feet long, and a wonder for baking. Operated by gas, coal or wood. Gas and coal ovens may be used at one time without danger. You must see this range to fully appreciate it.

Liberal Allowances for Old Ranges Taken in Exchange for New Glenwood or A. B. Range.

Heat Up in a Jiffy with an Oil Heater

Why start up the furnace heater now and waste coal? An oil heater drives away the morning and evening chills.

Use a New Perfection

or Dangler Oil Heater

They are smokeless, odorless and easily moved from room to room. Cost practically nothing to operate and at this time of the year they sure do the trick.

The KITCHEN CABINET

"Oh, suns and skies and clouds of June
And days of June together,
Ye cannot rival for one hour
October's bright blue weather."
— Helen Hunt Jackson.

HINTS FOR THE HOMEMAKER.

A useful article for the kitchen is a small microscope. One may be informed as to the condition of many things which do not show up to the natural eye. Dates, figs, raisins, as well as cereals, are safest examined with a stronger lens than that of the eye. Such foods may be returned at once when found to be unfit.

A rubber plant should be washed with milk once or twice a month. This will keep the leaves glossy and handsome.

Save the discarded tooth-brushes and old underwear for cleaning and polishing silver. A clean, dry brush is the best kind of a cleaner to brush the whitening from chased silver. Use the soft underwear for the hard rubbing, and finish the polishing with a chamomile skin.

If silver is rubbed after a soapy bath with a chamomile skin, once a week, the hard cleaning will not need to be done so often.

The French way of making tough meat tender is one worth remembering: Lay the steak in a marinade of three tablespoonfuls of olive oil and one and one-half of vinegar; let stand four hours on ice, turning frequently to be sure that both sides are treated then broil as usual.

When cooking a pudding either by steam or in boiling water, take care to replenish the water by boiling water, or the pudding will fall or be soggy.

A cut lemon dipped in salt or bath-brick makes a fine cleaner for copper or brass. It is also good to remove stains from the coffee and tea pots.

A nice laundry bag may be made of two bordered towels, using a draw-string at the top. For holding scraps and pieces, a circular bag, which may be laid out flat on the floor will be found convenient, as then any bundle can be quickly found.

A good tonic which may be brewed at home is sassafras tea. This is an old remedy used by our grandmothers, and one which is perfectly reliable. Steep a small handful of sassafras root by covering with a quart of boiling water. Strain and drink half a cupful night and morning. It purifies the blood and acts as a tonic.

Take the bright shell from its home on the sea,
Wherever it goes 'twill sing of the sea;
So take the fond heart from the home and the hearth,
'Twill sing of the loved to the ends of the earth.

AN EVERYDAY LUNCHEON.

If the weather is cool, a bowl of nice steaming hot soup is always a good beginning for a luncheon; then a broiled whitefish, with creamed potatoes; an apple salad, prepared from tart apples; celery, a few nuts and a good salad dressing; then a simple dessert, like musk melon, peaches and cream with a cookie, or a small sponge cake with a dish of sliced bananas.

A good dish which will make a main dish and is very filling is:

Codfish Chowder.—Cut in dice a quarter of a pound of salt pork; fry until brown, then add three to six sliced onions; stir and cook until light-colored; add twice the amount of sliced potatoes, and water to cover; cook until the vegetables are soft, then add a half-pound of shredded and par-boiled codfish, a half-dozen milk crackers which have been softened by pouring boiling water over them, a quart of milk and salt and pepper to taste. Serve in bowls, very hot, with a cracker on top of each. Fresh fish may be used in this chowder. Add the fish, cooked until tender, or it may be added about twenty minutes before the dish is ready to serve. Too long cooking of the fish will make it tasteless.

Corn and Rice Muffins.—Take two cupfuls of buttermilk, one cupful of cornmeal, one teaspoonful of soda, a pinch of salt, half a cupful of cream and half a cupful of boiled rice. Mash the rice; add a pinch of salt, and the cream, an egg well beaten and the buttermilk mixed with the soda, then the meal. Bake in buttered muffin tins in a quick oven.

Banana Puffs.—Take one cupful of sugar, a tablespoonful of butter, one cupful of flour, a teaspoonful of baking powder, three well beaten eggs and milk to make a drop batter—about a quarter of a cupful. Mix and stir in three sliced bananas and fill buttered custard cups; steam one hour and serve with a lemon sauce.

Lemon Sauce.—Take half a cupful of sugar, the juice and rind of a lemon, a tablespoonful of butter and a quarter of a cupful of water; cook until soft, adding an egg, well beaten, by pouring the cooked mixture over the egg, stirring constantly. Serve hot.

I shall be happier than you and calmer, if my doubt is greater and nobler than your faith; if it has probed more deeply into my soul, traversed wider horizons, if there are more things it has solved.—Maeterlinck.

FOOD FOR COOLER WEATHER.

Fall has brought back the oyster from his salty vacation, and now comes the game that makes these days the favorite in the epicure's calendar. Simplicity is the keynote in cookery these days; there is not a game bird or fish that will be improved in flavor by stuffing, or the addition of many seasonings. The charm of any dish is to keep its characteristic flavor, accentuating it, not covering it with seasonings.

The old-fashioned method of stuffing all kinds of fowl and game is no longer considered desirable by the best diners.

Duck may be improved by the addition of an onion, a bunch of celery or, as some Southern cooks do, put an oyster in a small bird before broiling or baking.

Wild game that lacks fat is sometimes wrapped in slices of bacon, fastening them with toothpicks if the bird is small, or placing a slice over the breast of a large bird.

For the small birds a nicely toasted square of bread is the best pedestal on which to place the tiny morsel of deliciousness. The toast should always be well buttered and soft, with the crusts removed. Water cress is one of the nicest of garnishes, and a salad of sliced oranges on water cress served with French dressing is the salad par excellence to serve with duck.

Those acquainted with only the cultivated mushroom do not realize the rare flavor of the field variety. They are found in abundance until the frost comes to kill them. It is better to buy them in the market, gathered by some one who is reliable, than to risk being poisoned.

The field mushroom is delightful when simply cooked in a little butter, with salt and pepper for seasoning—some like a bit of cream; then serve them on toast.

Mushrooms make a better supper dish than an earlier meal, as they require little as an accompaniment and are much better enjoyed than when confused with the many items of a more elaborate repast.

"I love the smell of apples when they're gettin' streaky red,
And I love the smell that crinkles from an old-time posy bed;
The earthy spice of new plowed fields is a'n' almost sublime,
But there ain't no smell that equals the smell of picklin' time."

PICKLING TIME.

Don't fail to put up a small jar of the good old watermelon pickles, for there is nothing quite like them, if you care for that kind of pickles.

Watermelon Pickles.—Peel the rind and cut in one and one-half-inch slices; let stand over night in salt water. Make a sirup of four pounds of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of ground cinnamon, one teaspoonful of ground cloves and two quarts of vinegar. Tie the spices in a bag. Pour the hot sirup over the drained melon rind; let stand 24 hours. Reheat the sirup four mornings, then cover for winter use.

Tomatoes Canned.—Take one gallon of water, one cupful of salt, and bring to the boiling point, then drop in whole tomatoes, previously peeled, and cook until well scalded through. Place in cans, using a skimmer to drain off the brine. The juice of the tomatoes will make liquid enough to cover them, and the brine may be used for any number of tomatoes.

Nut Conserve.—Take two pints of grape juice, two pounds of sugar, four oranges sliced thin, the juice and grated rind of a lemon, one and one-third pounds of chopped raisins, two-thirds of a pound of chopped walnuts, one-fourth of a pound of chopped filberts. Dissolve the sugar in the juice, add the other ingredients and simmer for one hour, or until a thick marmalade is formed.

Pickled Onions.—Select small silver-skin onions; put them in a brine, after peeling carefully. Let stand three days in a brine that will float an egg. Drain and place in a jar, first a layer of onions three inches deep, then a layer of horseradish, a sprinkling of cinnamon, cloves and cayenne or, better, chopped red pepper; repeat until the jar is full. Cover with vinegar, brought to the boiling point; add one cupful of brown sugar to a quart of the vinegar. Pour hot over the onions, and seal.

Care of the Hair.

Women who have not the time or money to take scalp treatments can do about as much for themselves as a specialist can do for them in the treatment of ordinary hair troubles. Ten minutes' attention given to the hair and scalp each day is more beneficial than infrequent professional treatments. The remedies for the usual scalp and hair difficulties are simple and inexpensive. It is regular and persistent care that can be depended on to repay the effort.

Cleanliness requires a shampoo at intervals of two to four weeks. If the scalp is healthy and the hair sufficiently abundant this, with a brisk, brief brushing every day will keep the hair in good condition.

To Cure Dandruff.

Take a thimbleful of powdered refined borax, let it dissolve in a teacupful of water; first brush the head well, and then wet a brush with the solution and rub the scalp well with it. Do this every day for a week, then twice a week, until no trace of dandruff is found.

To Improve Hair.

The best shampoo for oily hair and dry scalp is an egg shampoo, made by adding one ounce of cold water to one well-beaten egg; rub mixture well into the scalp and on the hair, rinse in warm water, then in cold water, dry thoroughly, apply a tonic and massage the scalp for ten minutes. Each night use a tonic and massage for ten minutes.

Stiff Hair.

The first remedy for a woman whose hair has begun to be stiff is to experiment with slightly oily liquids until she finds one suitable. A lotion made from one tablespoonful of glycerin, half a pint of rose water, with ten drops of tincture of benzoin added to prevent the glycerin becoming rancid, is excellent.

This mixture should be used after the hair has been made ready for dressing by removing all the tangles. This done, one should put about half a teaspoonful of the mixture in the palm of the left hand and rub the right into it. With both hands the hair is gently rubbed and patted smooth from forehead to neck, oiling it, but so slightly that the application is not visible. Afterward dressing proceeds in the usual way. Occasionally a woman should use a slightly wet brush after the oiling. This must not be applied every day or the effect of too much water will be drying.

Another liquid for the same purpose is made from one-quarter of an ounce of gum benzoin and four ounces of high-proof alcohol. After the gum is dissolved the liquid is strained through coarse brown paper and two ounces of castor oil and half a dram each of oils of geranium and bergamot are added. This is put on by the same process as was described above.

Neither of these is to be regarded as a tonic or used as a substitute, for they are distinctly dressings, and the manner in which they are put on in no way affects the scalp. To feed the scalp it is necessary that whatever is put on shall be rubbed into the pores.

Desirable Wrap.

New loose coats, of the practical top-coat style, the kind a woman slips on over her tailored suit, are to be decidedly desirable this coming season, for these—many of them, at least—will be made with raglan or set in kimono sleeves.

Sturdy Frocks for School

Dresses designed for the younger misses' wear—for school and elsewhere—this fall are the most satisfactory that have been presented for many seasons. They reflect the attributes of young girlhood—or at any rate the attributes we like to find in young girls. These frocks are sturdy, simple, quite plain, very neat and practice much restraint in the matter of trimmings. They clothe the immature figure to the best advantage and are calculated to educate their young wearers in the fitness of things, the suiting of clothes to occasions and to youth. The designers of dress for misses and junior misses are not always conscious of their responsibilities in this matter, but the best private schools and academies realize its importance. They are careful to prescribe what may be worn by the girls under their charge. Girls in the public schools have not the advantage of this system, but the designers of ready-made dresses for them have made a good choice easy this fall.

"For school" is written on the engaging frock for a girl in her early teens, that is shown here. It is everything that such a frock should be and is so adequately pictured that it hardly needs description. It is shown made of tricotine in blue, and its neat and quiet trimming of rows of silk braid in the same color are put on with satisfying precision. The body and plain sleeves reveal the slender and childish figure and support a straight skirt that is gathered on at the waist line. A frill of plaited silk about the round neck is in the same blue as the dress. But a narrower frill of white batiste adds a crisp freshness, as often as it is needed. This is one of the severest of school frocks, but we do not grow tired of these plain dresses.

There are a number of successful models for the younger misses in which navy blue woolen fabrics—serge, gabardine, tricotine and the like—show pipings, facings and vestees sometimes, of dark red. This is always a good color combination when the red is used with much restraint. Very small buttons, narrow ribbon bows and ties and sheer collar and cuff sets in white cotton goods figure in the smart details of the school girl's dress. Also there are several new fabrics in brown, blue and oxford and in tasteful mixtures of color that insure variety in the quiet company of school dresses with which the younger misses face their school year.

The service will be held in the church auditorium and will take the place of the regular Sunday morning service of worship. A special program has been arranged, including the customary Rally Day features of Bible and diploma presentations by the pastor. It will be a service no less interesting to the general public than to the members of the Bible School. All are cordially invited to attend. The regular Sunday School session will be omitted for the day. Our Sunday evening services are not yet resumed. Mid-week service on Tuesday evening at 7:30.

FIRST UNIVERSALIST CHURCH
Weymouth

"Rally Day" will be observed on Sunday in this church. "The Master's Voice" is the subject of Mr. Whipple's remarks. Special music is to be provided for this service. All are cordially invited to come. A change of hours of services takes place this week. The church service will be at 10:30 A. M. Church school will be at 11:45. This reverses the program used up to last Sunday and returns to the old program used in years of the past. Adults are invited to stay for the services.

Church school will open in Lincoln hall where the renovation work has taken place. It will now be possible to use our stereopticon lantern and show pictures for the children. The Ladies Social Circle will hold an all-day meeting in the ladies parlor on Thursday, Oct. 3.

Color Conference meetings will be held at Plymouth on Oct. 8. Speakers will be Mrs. Teale of Stoughton, Rev. Mr. Scudder of Brockton, and Rev. Mr. Rennoyer of Attleboro. Lunch will be served by the ladies. Time will be given to sight seeing.

FIRST CHURCH

The morning worship with preaching will be held at 10:30 o'clock, soloist, Mrs. Thomas Gammon. You will be welcome. Its all in the will to go to church and its right to go. The Rally Day concert of the Sunday School comes at four o'clock on Sunday. An appropriate program has been arranged under the direction of Mrs. P. T. Pearson, superintendent. Parents and friends of the pupils are urged to be present. Everyone in the community is cordially invited. There will be no evening service.

PORTER M. E. CHURCH
Lovell's Corner

Sunday, Oct. 5, is "Rally Day." One of the chief features will be a program entitled "Youth and the New Day," presenting an effective pageant in four parts. (Details on another page). This program will be presented at the morning service at 10:30. In connection with this service anyone desiring to be baptized or any parents desiring their children to be baptized may receive this sacrament.

Immediately after this service the Bible School will convene, and everyone is urged to stay for this meeting. In the evening at 6 o'clock the Epworth League will begin its meetings after the summer's recess. Mrs. Helen White will be the leader, the topic being "Training for Citizenship." All interested come!

At 7 o'clock the evening service which will begin with a fifteen minute song service led by Mr. Thomas Roberts, after which there will be a sermon by the pastor in keeping with the day.

On Thursday, Oct. 9, the prayer service at 7:30 in the church vestry. With this meeting the pastor will commence a study of "The Social Principles of Jesus."

FIRST METHODIST EPISCOPAL

POND STREET HALL.
South Weymouth.
Prof. L. A. Durfee of the Eastern Nazarene College will preach on Sunday, Oct. 5, at the Pond street hall, at 3 P. M. and 7 P. M. His wife will sing at each service. All are invited.

THIRD UNIVERSALIST CHURCH
North Weymouth

"Rally Day" calls upon each one of us to rally to the best things of life and to stand free from the ideas which warp our rounded development. "The Master's Voice" is the subject of Mr. Whipple's sermon talk. Music will be furnished by our choir to beautify the meeting. This service is at 2:30 P. M., followed by the Communion service for those who desire to remain.

Church school will be at 1:15 P. M. Approximately $60 is being expended at this time to provide material for our school. The children are to be given hand work to do—something that they enjoy. One boy remarked last Sunday: "We'll want to come to Sunday School now." Are your children beginning with us on this new work? Don't let them start late.

Y. P. C. U. delegates to the Worcester convention which runs from Saturday to Monday, October 10, 11 and 12 are Misses Marion Fisher, Margaret Dingwall and Ina Leinonen.

At the recent business meeting the young people voted to present a play this winter, Misses Ina Leinonen and Mary Ford are committee of arrangements. Mr. Whipple, Addison Dingwall and Percy Ames are a committee to conduct the Tufts Musical Club concert of November 18. Miss Margaret Dingwall will have charge of the sale of Christmas cards for the Union's benefit. Devotional meetings will be resumed at 7 P. M. Sunday evening. Miss Ina Leinonen will conduct the service on the subject: "Ferry Beach Convention Reminiscences." Six active unioners and one honorary member were present at this convention.

The Old Colony Association meets on Oct. 8, at Plymouth. North Weymouth should send a representative. Train service is direct from the Heights. Motor transportation is a comfortable means of travel. Good speaking and good sightseeing will attract you. This is the annual meeting.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
Lincoln Square

Rev. C. W. Allen of Hingham will occupy the pulpit Sunday. Sunday morning service at 10:30. Sunday School at 12 o'clock. Y. P. S. C. E. at 6 o'clock. Evening service at 7.

Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 7:45. On Wednesday evening will occur the annual business meeting of the church.

All are welcome to these services.

PILGRIM CHURCH
(Congregational)
North Weymouth

Thomas Bruce Bitler, minister. A cordial welcome awaits you at all services. Morning worship at 10:30; subject "Law and Liberty." Adults are especially invited to avail themselves of the privilege of the Sunday School which convenes after the morning service. A new Men's Class is in process of organization which holds promise of good things. The other departments are looking forward to a good season. Invest an hour with us; it will pay big dividends.

The graduating exercises of the primary department and beginners department of the Sunday School will be held at 6:00 P. M. in the main auditorium. The Christian Endeavor will omit its meeting for the occasion and combine with the evening praise service which follows at 7 o'clock. Mid-week service Thursday evening at 7:45.

On Tuesday evening from 8 to 10 a reception will be held for the new pastor and his wife. A cordial invitation is extended to the parish and friends to join in welcoming Mr. and Mrs. Bitler to our community.

UNION CONGREGATIONAL
Weymouth and Braintree

Morning service at 10:30 o'clock. The preacher will be Rev. Fred Smith of West Cornwall, Conn. The Sunday School will meet at 12 o'clock. A special meeting of the church for business, will be held immediately after Sunday morning service. There will be a meeting of the parish on Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The Flower Circle will give a Halloween entertainment on Friday evening, October 31st.

OLD SOUTH UNION CHURCH
South Weymouth

Rev. Ora A. Price, Pastor. Sunday, October 5, has been set aside by the Congregational denomination throughout the country as Go-To-Church day. In many places it will be an interdenominational Go-To-Church and Rally Day. The whole community being appealed to by the churches acting as one. As in the case of Visitation Day last Sunday and during this week at least 6,000 of the more than 8,000 Congregational churches will unite in this Go-To-Church Attendance Campaign. Old South Union Church unites in this universal Congregational Rally with plans suited to its life. Next Sunday will be one grand Rally service in which both church and Sunday School unite. The service will last from 10:30 to 12:15, with interesting and helpful and inspirational program all through. A short sermon by the pastor on "The Central Act of Religion"; two or three short addresses by other leaders; and a short address by a representative of the Norfolk School of Religious Education. Special music will be furnished by the Church Choir under direction of Miss Poole.

All are most cordially invited. Start the fall right. Go to church and add to the interest and inspiration by increase of numbers. By that, if in no other way, you will help. Attend Church and enter faithfully and lovingly. (Continued on Page 5.)

A perfect day contributed much to the success of Weymouth's memorial service for the soldiers and sailors from this town who gave their lives in the World War. Sunday was a beautiful September day, with a clear sky and a warm sun, and fully 2,500 people assembled on the Clapp Memorial Field to pay tribute to these boys.

Some were surprised that the list was so long, for the list above shows that 26 from Weymouth made the supreme sacrifice. The Gazette and Transcript has made an attempt to get the War Record of all of these, but the record at the town office is incomplete. Efforts should be made right away to make it complete. Parents and friends should be interested.

The program of the day was an interesting one under the direction of the Welcome Home Committee. In brief it was as follows:

Quartet "Lead Kindly Light."
Invocation Rev. John B. Holland.
Quartet Just Beyond the Hilltops.
Prayer Rev. L. W. Atwood.
Quartet "Abide With Me."
Address.
Congregational Singing
"Battle Hymn of Republic."
Roll Call of the Dead
Rev. Arthur S. Emig.
Quartet "Soldiers Rest."
Congregational Singing
Star Spangled Banner.
Taps
Benediction.

Seats were provided on the field for parents and relatives, the members of the Weymouth Post, American Legion, and for the members of the Grand Army. Nearly 100 members of the Legion were present in a body in command of Com. Connell and 20 members of Reynolds post under command of Maj. Bicknell, were honored guests. Most of the clergy of the town were present, several taking active part. Also the Selectmen, Town Clerk and other town officials. The numbers by the Pilgrim Quartette were very appropriate for the occasion and beautifully rendered.

Rev. Fr. John B. Holland of the Sacred Heart church in his invocation was appreciative of the services of Weymouth boys in the World War, and urged law and order now that the war was over.

Rev. L. W. Atwood said a service like this awakens our thoughts of things that were most precious in the lives of our boys. We think of their loyalty. How they responded to the call. We should be especially grateful to the boys who gave their lives so gloriously. How good it will be for them to welcome us later to that better home. They gave their lives not alone for their country, but for the world.

To Rev. William Hyde of Trinity church was given the honor of introducing the speakers of the afternoon. He said Rev. James P. Sherry was the chaplain of the 108th regiment, a native of Peabody, and at present pastor at Cohasset.

Rev. Fr. Sherry from his experience at the front, brought just the message that the people wanted. He said they will not tell you, so that I felt it a duty to say a few words in honor of the boys responded and for those who fell, either at the front or in the hospital. All the boys who enlisted have done splendidly and deserve honorable mention. He spoke particularly of the 26th Division which he was most familiar. How it responded at a time when the French were weakening and talked of giving up, but by putting the Americans and the French together the latter rallied. Our boys had the heart of a lion. They suffered much during the winter of 1917. You people have no idea of what the fighting meant. Often times their lungs filled with gas, and for many days they were under shell fire. Today they wonder how it is they are alive.

Addressing himself to the fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters, and lost soldier boys, he said dry up your tears; your sacrifice was a glorious one; they were fighting as God's agents; fighting to protect the women and children at home, quite as much as those of Europe. They fought for American honor. Be consoled that God in due time will reward mothers and fathers, you have made the greatest contribution; the Nations gratitude is yours.

To the dear young men who responded he said, bear your honors modestly. Thank God every day that you were spared. You have yet important duties to fulfill. No man wants to go back, but you would be the first to respond if needed. You should be leaders in thought and action. It is yours to preserve.

To the public, he said, treat the soldiers kindly; help the lads. It is up to you to give them the best. Allow none to be second in anything. Show your gratitude, stand by your heroes. It is a privilege that comes only once in a life time.

Only one speaker was expected, but another was introduced, Rev. Frank Kingdon, pastor of the M. E. church at East Weymouth, and his tribute to mother and motherhood won applause. They gave their sons that righteousness should be established; that the United States might be made safe. The ruler of Germany planned for war for 40 years; then flung his troops upon defenceless Belgium. Today he stands condemned as the vilest beast. Our young men fought for democracy, but unless it is worked out rightly it will be a menace. The task of the boys is not yet fulfilled. He suggested a pledge—I, here and now pledge my right hand that democracy shall triumph.

The boys gave themselves for America. America is still a dream, all were not Anglo Saxon, but they caught the vision of America.

The speaker paid a tribute to the Greeks, the Italians and the Jews. Speaking of himself, he said who am I? I was born in England; my mother was Scotch. But I am not English, I am an American—100 per cent. He then pictured America, to which all should give themselves whole heartedly.—Applause.

THE ROLL CALL.

The roll call of the dead was read by Rev. Arthur Emig of the Porter M. E. church. The 26 names are printed at the beginning of this report. The brief sketches that follow are taken from the "War Record at the office of the Town Clerk by the Gazette and Transcript.

YOUNG HERO FROM BELGIUM

Harry Gillman lived in Belgium in 1914 when the German war juggernaut started on its ruthless path of destruction through the defenseless country. He saw both his parents killed by the Hun. Taking his father's revolver, he managed to kill three German officers in the party which shot his father and mother. For this deed he was arrested and placed in a German prison camp. After six months' confinement he escaped and made his way to a detachment of British cavalry, with which outfit he remained for two years. In 1917, when the Second division of the American army came upon the scene, he left his British bunkies and joined in with the "Devil Dogs." He was wounded at Chateau Thierry and Belleau Wood and gassed in the Argonne. He is shown on his arrival at New York aboard the Chicago. He is in charge of Eva E. Sorensen of Duluth, who will see to his future welfare.

"YES, I AM RENE BEAUCAIRE."

Synopsis.—In 1832 Lieutenant Knox of the regular army is on duty at Fort Armstrong, Rock Island, Ill., in territory threatened by disaffected Indians. The commandant sends him with dispatches to St. Louis. He takes passage on the stamer Warrior and makes the acquaintance of Judge Beaucaire, rich planter, and of Joe Kirby (the Devil's Own), notorious gambler. Knox learns Judge Beaucaire has a daughter, Eloise, and a granddaughter, Rene, offspring of a son whom the judge has disowned. Rene's mother is a negress, and she and her daughter, never having been freed, are slaves under the law, although the girls have been brought up as sisters. Kirby induces the judge to stake his plantation and negro servants on a poker hand unfairly dealt by Joe Carver, Kirby's partner. The two hands contain five aces, and Kirby accuses the judge of cheating. Beaucaire, infuriated, arises to attack Kirby, and drops dead. In the confusion Kirby and Carver are enabled to steal away. Knox tries to induce Kirby to give up his stolen winnings. Kirby refuses and after a hot argument he and Carver throw Knox overboard. The lieutenant swims ashore and reaches a hut. Knox lies unconscious for ten days. Recovering, he finds he is in a cabin owned by Pete, a "free nigger," who had shot him, mistaking him for an enemy. His dispatches have been forwarded. Recovering from his wound, Knox sends Pete to bring Haynes, Beaucaire's lawyer, and they arrange, with Pete's help, to get the women to the cabin of an abolitionist, Amos Shrank, before Kirby comes. Knox and Pete start out for Beaucaire.

CHAPTER VI.

The Home of Judge Beaucaire.

The road we followed appeared to be endless, and so rough that I soon climbed down from my seat, an unplanned board, uncomfortable enough under any conditions, in the swaying, bumping cart, and stumbled blindly along behind, tripping over stumps in the darkness, and wrenching my ankles painfully in deep ruts.

It was considerably after ten o'clock when we emerged upon an open plateau, and a glimmer of stars overhead revealed to me afar off the silver thread of the great river. Pete stopped the straining mule, a feat not at all difficult of accomplishment, the animal's sides rising and falling as he wheezed for breath, and came back to where I stood, staring about at the dimly perceived objects in the foreground.

"Out dar am de Beaucaire place," he announced, as soon as he could distinguish my presence, waving his arm to indicate the direction. "An' I reckon we bettah not ride no further, fer if Alick shud smell corn, he'd nat'ally raise dis whol' neighborhood—he's got a powerful voice, sah."

"Equal to his appetite, no doubt."

"Yas, sah; that's mostly whut Alick am."

"How far away is the house?"

"Likely 'bout a hundred yards. Yer see dat light out yonder; well dat's it, an' I reckon de ladies mus' be up yet, kep'in' de lamp burnin'. Here's de slave cabins 'long de edge ob de woods, but dey's all dark. What's yer a goin' fer ter do now, Massa Knox?"

I was conscious that my heart was beating rapidly, and that my mind was anything but clear. The problem confronting me did not appear so easily solved, now that I was fairly up against it, and yet there seemed only one natural method of procedure. I must go at my unpleasant task boldly, and in this case only the truth would serve. I was an officer in the United States army, and had in my pocket papers to prove my identity. These would vouch for me as a gentleman, and yield me a measure of authority. And this fact, once established, ought to give me sufficient standing in the eyes of those girls to compel from them a respectful hearing. I would tell the story exactly as I knew it, concealing nothing, and adding no unnecessary word, outline my plan of action, and then leave them to decide what they thought best to do. Strange, unbelievable as the situation was, proof was not lacking. Della could be compelled to acknowledge that Rene was her child—she would scarcely dare deny this truth in face of my positive knowledge—and she, at least, must know that Judge Beaucaire had never during his lifetime given her her freedom. This fact could be established beyond question, and then they must surely all comprehend the necessity of immediate flight—that there remained no other possible means of escape from hopeless slavery. Desperate as the chance appeared, it was the only one.

It dawned upon me now with more intense force than ever before, the position in which I stood, and I shrank from the ordeal. A perfect stranger, not even a chance acquaintance of those directly involved in this tragedy, I would have to drag out from the closet, where it had been hidden away for years, this old Beaucaire skeleton, and rattle the dried bones of dishonor before the horrified understanding of these two innocent, unsuspecting girls. The conviction came to me that I had best do this alone; that the presence of the negro would hinder, rather than help the solution of the problem.

"Pete," I said, measuring my words, my plan of action shaping itself even as I spoke. "What lies in there between us and the house?"

"A truck patch mostly, wid a fence 'round it. Den ther comes som' flower beds."

"No path?"

"Well, I done reckon as how ther might be a sorter path, sah, but you'd hardly find it in de dark. De bes' way'd be ter sorter feel 'long de fence, 'til yer git sight o' de front porch."

"All right, then. I am going to leave you here while I scout around. Keep your eyes open, and have the mule ready to leave at any minute."

I Stopped Still, Crouching Low, My Heart Leaping into My Throat and Every Nerve Tingling.

hold o' them two missin' females fust, afore he'll let me round up the niggers. The papers is all straight 'nough, but they've got ter be served afore we kin lay hands on a durned thing. The judge tol' me fer ter do everything just as Kirby sed, an' I aim ter do it, but just the same I got ter keep inside the law. I dunno as it makes much difference when we strike the ol' town."

"Tain't so much that, sheriff. I kin stan' it fer ter be up all night, but Bill was tellin' me we might hav' som' trouble down ter the Landin' unless we finished up our job yere afore mornin'."

"Oh, I reckon not; whut was it Bill said?"

"Quite a rigmarole frum furst ter last. Giv' me a light fer the pipe, will yer?"

There was a flare above me, and then darkness once more, and then the slow drawl of the man's voice as he resumed. "Some feller by the name of McAdoo, down ter Saint Louee, who's just com' down from the lead mines, tol' him that Joe Kirby got all this yere property in a game o' kyards on the boat, an' thet it wan't no square game either. I didn't git it all straight, I reckon, but accordin' ter the deal handed me thar was two dead men mixed up in the affair—Beaucaire, an' a young army officer. Seems ter me his name was Knox."

"I didn't hear that."

"Well, enyhow, that's the way Bill told it. Beaucaire he naturally fell dead—heart, er somethin'—an' the other feller, this yere army man, he went out on deck fer ter see Kirby, an' he never cum' back. McAdoo sorter reckoned as how likely he was slugged, an' throwed overboard. An' then, on top' all that, we're sent up yere in the night like a passel o' thieves ter take these niggers down ter Saint Louee. What do yer make ov it, Jake?"

"Well," said the other slowly, his mouth evidently loaded with tobacco. "I ain't never asked no questions since I was made sheriff. I'm doin' whut the court says. Kirby's got the law on his side—no doubt 'bout that—but I reckon as how he knows it was a durn mean trick, and so he's sorter skeered as ter how them fellers livin' down ter the Landin' might act. Thet's why we tied up ter the shore below town, in the mouth o' that creek, an' then hed ter hoof it up yere in the dark. Of course we got the law with us, but we wanter pull this job off an' not stir up no fight—see?"

"Sure," disgustedly. "I reckon I know all that; I heard the judge tell yer how we must do the job. But Kirby's in such a sweat ter git all these niggers down ter Saint Louee?"

"Ter sell 'em, an' git the cash. Onc' they're outter the way there won't be no row. He'll let the land yere lie idle fer a year or two, an' by that time nobody'll care a whoop how he got it. But he's got ter git rid o' them niggers right away."

"Well, who the h—s goin' ter prevent? They're his'n, ain't they? Thar ain't no Black Abolitionists 'round yere, I reckon."

"Seems sorter queer ter me," admitted the sheriff, "but I did get a little outter that feller Carver comin' up. Carver is som' sorter partner with Kirby—a capper, I reckon. Tain't the niggers thet are makin' the trouble—leastways not the black 'uns. Nobody's likely ter row over them. It seems that Beaucaire kept a quadron housekeeper, a slave, o' course, an' a while back she giv' birth ter a child, the father o' the infant bein' Judge Beaucaire's son. Then the son skipped out, an' ain't never bin heard from since—dead most likely, fer all this was twenty years ago. 'Course the child, which was a girl, is as white as I am—maybe more so. I ain't never set eyes on her, but Carver he says she's good lookin'. Enyhow, the judge he brought her up like his own daughter, sent her ter school in Saint Louee, an' nobody 'round yere even suspected she was a nigger. I reckon she didn't know it herself."

"Yer mean the girl's a slave?"

"Yer bet! That's the law, ain't it?"

"And Kirby knew about this?"

"I reckon he did. I sorter judge, Tim, frum whut Carver sed, that he was more anxious fer ter git that girl than all the rest o' the stuff; an' it's her he wants ter git away frum yere on the dead quiet, afore Haines er any o' them others down at the Landin' kin catch on."

"They couldn't do nuthin'; if thar ain't no papers, then she's his, accordin' ter law. I've seen that tried afore now."

"Of course; but whut's the use o' runnin' any risk? A smart lawyer like Haines could make a devil out o' a lot o' trouble just the same, if he took a notion. That's Kirby's idee—ter cum' up yere in a boat, unbeknownst to enybody, tie up down thar at Saunders', an' run the whole bunch o' niggers off in the night. Then it's done an' over with afore the Landin' even wakes up. I reckon the judge told him that was the best way."

There was a moment of silence, the first man evidently turning the situation over in his mind. The sheriff bent across the rail, and spat into the darkness below.

"The joke of it all is," he continued with a short laugh, as he straightened up, "this didn't exactly work out 'cordin' ter schedule. When we dropped in yere we rounded up the niggers all right, an' we got the girl whar there's no chance fer her ter git away—"

"Is that the one back in the house?"

"I reckon so; leastways she tol' Kirby her name was Rene Beaucaire, an' that's how it reads in the papers. But thar ain't no trace ov her mother, ner ov the judge's daughter. They ain't in the house, ner the nigger cabins. Leaves me in a deuce ov a fix, fer I can't serve no papers less we find the daughter. Her name's Eloise; she's the heir et law, an' I ain't got no legal right fer ter take them niggers away till I do. Looks ter me like they'd skipped out. Thar's Kirby an' Carver, a comin' now, an' they're alone; ain't got no trace ov the girl or her mother, I reckon."

Where I crouched in the shadows I could gain no glimpse of the approaching figures, but I heard the crunch of their boots on the gravel of the driveway, and a moment later the sound of their feet as they mounted the wooden steps. Kirby must have perceived the forms of the other men as soon as he attained the porch level, and his naturally disagreeable voice had a snarly ring.

"That you, Donaldson? Have either of those women come back?"

"No," and I thought the sheriff's answer was barely cordial. "We ain't seen nobody. What did you learn down at the Landin'?"

"Nothing," savagely. "Haven't found a d— trace except that Haines hasn't been home since before dark; some nigger came for him then. Is that girl safe inside?"

"Sure; just as you left her, but she won't talk. Tim tried her again, but it's no use; she wudn't even answer him."

"Well, by Heaven! I'll find a way to make her open her mouth. She knows where those two are hiding. They haven't had no time to get far away, and I'll bring her to her senses afore I am through. Come on, Carver; I'll show the wench who's master here, if I have to lick her like a common nigger."

The front door opened, and closed, leaving the two without standing in silence, the stillness between them finally broken by a muttered curse.

I drew back hastily, but in silence, eager to get away before the sheriff and his deputy should return to their seats by the porch rail. My original plan of warning the women of the house of their peril was blocked, completely overturned by the presence of these men. Beyond all question those I had hoped to serve were already aware of their position—someone had reached them before me—and two at least were already in hiding. Why the third, the one most deeply involved, had failed to accompany the others, could not be comprehended. The mystery only made my present task more difficult. Why should Della, the slave, disappear in company with Eloise, the free, and leave her own daughter Rene behind to face a situation more terrible than death? I could not answer these questions; but whatever the cause the result had been the complete overthrow of the gambler's carefully prepared plans. Not that I believed he would hesitate for long, law or no law; but Donaldson, the sheriff, refused to be a party to any openly illegal act, and this would for the present tie the fellow's hands. Not until Miss Eloise was found and duly served with the eviction papers would Donaldson consent to take possession of a single slave. This might still give me time for action.

I slipped along in the shadow of the house, without definite plan of action but with a firm purpose to act. The side door I knew to be securely locked, yet first of all it was essential that I attain to the interior. But one means to this end occurred to me—the unshaded window through which the glow of light continued to stream. I found I could reach the edge of the balcony with extended fingers, and drew myself slowly up until I clung to the railing, with feet finding precarious support on the outer rim. This was accomplished noiselessly and from the vantage point thus obtained I was enabled to survey a large portion of the room.

I clambered over the rail, assured by the first glance that the room was empty, and succeeded in lifting the heavy sash a few inches without any disturbing noise. Then it stuck, and even as I ventured to exert my strength to greater extent to force it upward, the single door directly opposite, evidently leading into the hall, was flung violently open and I sank back out of view, yet instantly aware that the first party to enter was Joe Kirby. He strode forward to the table, striking the wooden top angrily with his fist and knocking something crashing to the floor.

"You know where she is, don't you?" he asked, in the same threatening tone he had used without.

"Of course I do; didn't I help put her there?" It was Carver who replied, standing in the open doorway.

"Then bring the hussy in here. I will make the wench talk if I have to choke it out of her; she'll learn what it means to be a nigger."

I had but a moment in which to observe the man, for almost immediately Carver flung the door of the room open and Kirby swung impatiently about to face the entrance. Except for a possibility of thus attracting the attention of the newcomer I was in no special danger of being detected by those within. Carver thrust her forward but remained himself blocking the doorway. I used the word thrust, for I noted the grip of his hand on her arm, yet in truth she instantly stepped forward herself, her bearing in no way devoid of pride and dignity, her head held erect, her eyes fearlessly seeking the face of Kirby. Their glances met, and she advanced to the table, the light of the swinging lamp full upon her. The impression she made is with me yet. Hers was a refined, patrician face, crowned by a wealth of dark hair. Indignant eyes of hazel brown, shadowed by long lashes, brightened a face whitened by intense emotion, and brought into agreeable contrast flushed cheeks and red, scornful lips. A dimpled chin, a round, full throat, and the figure of young womanhood, slender and yet softly curved, altogether formed a picture so entrancing as to never again desert my imagination. With one bound my heart went out to her in sympathy, in admiration, in full and complete surrender. Before I could change posture, almost before I could draw fresh breath, her voice, trembling slightly with an emotion she was unable wholly to suppress, yet sounding clear as a bell, addressed the man confronting her.

"May I ask, sir, what this outrage means? I presume you are responsible for the insolence of this fellow who brought me here?"

Kirby laughed but not altogether at ease.

"Well, not altogether," he answered, "as his methods are entirely his own. I merely told him to go after you."

"For what purpose?"

"So pretty a girl should not ask that. Carver, close the door and wait outside."

I could mark the quick rise and fall of her bosom and the look of fear she was unable to disguise. Yet not a limb moved as the door closed, nor did the glance of those brown eyes waver.

"You are not the same man I met before," she began doubtfully. "He said he was connected with the sheriff's office. Who are you?"

"My name is Kirby; the sheriff is here under my orders."

"Kirby!—the gambler?"

"Well, I play cards occasionally, and you have probably heard of me before. Even if you never had until tonight it is pretty safe to bet that you do now."

"I know," she admitted, "that you won this property at cards and have now come to take possession. Is that what you mean?"

"That, at least, is part of it," and he took a step toward her, his thin lips twisted into a smile. "But not all. Perhaps Donaldson failed to tell you the rest, and left me to break the news. Well, it won't hurt me any. Not only this plantation is mine, but every nigger on it as well. You are Rene Beaucaire?"

"Yes," she replied, slowly, almost under her breath, and hesitating ever so slightly. "I am Rene Beaucaire."

"And you don't know what that means, I suppose?" he insisted savagely, angered by her coolness. "Perhaps the sheriff did not explain this. Do you know who and what you are?"

She rested one hand on the table in support, and I could note the nervous trembling of the fingers, yet her low voice remained strangely firm.

Knox acts after the fashion of a man in love.

Origin of Drinking Pledges.

Pledging each other in wine was really nothing more than the survival of the once universal custom of parties drinking together in ratification of a bargain. It is in this sense that some Jewish and Russian couples drink wine at their betrothal ceremonies. The Hebrew, after drinking, dashes the vessel to the ground, in memory of the destruction of the Temple; whereas the Russian tramples the glass beneath his feet, with the pious wish: "May they thus fall under foot and be trodden to pieces who shall endeavor to sow dissension and discord between us."

Some Vienna theaters do without ushers by mounting electric lights in such positions that they illuminate the numbers on seats as long as the latter are unoccupied.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

SIR BENJAMIN BACON.

Nick and Nancy had gone to visit their cousins Jack and Marian. These children lived in a town. It was neither a very big city nor was it a very small village. It was just an in-between town, but they lived at one end of the town where people kept chickens and pigs and had real barnyards and could get their eggs for breakfast themselves.

While Nick and Nancy were there they often had talks with the barnyard creatures. They were visiting their cousins for several days, and they always liked to make friends with the animals as well as with people. The animals told the children of their ways and their habits and of what they liked to do and what they didn't like to do, of how they planned to teach their young and so forth.

Of course they didn't put their talk into words such as you and I know, but Nick and Nancy understood and so can any girl or any boy who watches and studies animals and who likes all the different creatures under the sun. They can be so friendly if only we will understand them! And Nick and Nancy did understand them.

They knew that the pigs talked by grunting and by pushing each other around and by sounds and actions instead of words, for after all actions do count for more, don't they?

It was someone who must have been very wise who said that years and years ago, well, the talks the different animals had with Nick and Nancy were real talks, things they showed by their ways which told the children their stories.

And Nick and Nancy always like to ask you to share their stories or adventures with them and, too, like to hear about yours.

Well, the day was very rainy and it was very muddy in the barnyard. School, which had only just been started for the fall, was out for the day, and Nick and Nancy had been going to school with their cousins during their visit. They were all giving the pig pen a great party. A party to Nick and Nancy and their cousins meant, of course, as it means to anyone, a party where there are games and where there are goodies to eat afterwards. And the pigs feel just the same way about a party—except that they like to leave out the games.

"This is good of you," said Sir Benjamin Bacon, one of the pigs in their cousins' barnyard, "but I can understand it."

"Oh, you think you're so wise," said Sir Percival Pork. "What can you understand? I do not think it is so good of the children to give us things to eat. We deserve good food. We become fat and if we're eaten we'll be so good to taste. Even though I don't care about being eaten I can imagine how good I might taste."

"You're not thinking what I'm thinking at all," said Sir Benjamin, "and I'll also have you know that I, too, think this is no more than what we deserve from boys and girls—this afternoon tea, or afternoon food, or whatever you wish to call it."

"But where I show what a clever pig I am is in seeing the reason for all this. You see, pigs, friends of the Pig Pen Palace, or Mud Yard, or whatever you wish to call it, the children are doing all this so they'll be considered very nice. Grunt, grunt, squeal, squeal, it's a goodly joke."

"Oh, well," said Sir Percival Pork, "far be it from me to object to any reason they may have. Food is food and a pig knows that much whatever else he may know, and I take food as it is given and do not care for the reason."

"I not only care for my tummy," said Sir Benjamin with a proud twist of his crooked tail, "but I am a thinker."

"I believe you are thinking more about us than even of the fact that we're giving you food," said Nick as he looked at Sir Benjamin.

"Ah," said Nancy, as she threw the last vegetable she had into the Pig Pen Palace, "that pink eye isn't looking at us sideways for nothing."

"I most certainly believe he is thinking about something," said Nick.

"I think so, too," agreed Jack.

"So do I," chimed in Marian.

And they were right.

Baby Wanted the Hole.

It was washing day, and John had been kept from school to look after the baby. Mother sent them into the garden to play, but it was not long before cries disturbed her. "John, what is the matter with baby, now?" she inquired from her wash tub. "I don't know what to do with him, mother," replied John. "He's dug a hole and wants to bring it into the house!"—London Farm and Home.

The Daylight Look.

Some fabrics which look very well by artificial light show cheap and tawdry in the morning sunshine. Do not decide on your friends after supper. The girl whom you find singing in the kitchen as she washes the breakfast dishes is worth cultivating, but you cannot feel so sure of the one who sings in the evening, by the light of the big shaded lamp, playing her own accompaniment. Test her by daylight before you bank on her.—Girls' Companion.

HOW WEYMOUTH OBSERVED HER 250 ANNIVERSARY

In response to invitations from the Committee, a very considerable body of distinguished citizens from other parts of the Commonwealth, of former residents, and of descendants of residents of the town, assembled at the Old North Church, to join with the citizens of the town, in this celebration,—the Common, near this church having been designated as the place for forming the procession, which, under the direction of chief marshal Captain Andrew J. Gayer, aided by assistant marshals Captain Charles W. Hastings, Zechariah L. Bicknell, J. Murray Whitcomb, Joshua Binney, Joseph W. Armington and Josiah N. Pratt, Esquires, at 12 o'clock noon, commenced its march in the following order:—

Chief Marshal,
Stetson's Weymouth Band,
Reynolds Post 38, G. A. R. 110 men, under command of General James L. Bates.
Invited guests in carriages.
South Shore Commandery Knights Templar, Geo. W. Fay, E. C., 60 men.
Orphan's Hope Lodge, F. & A. M., 75 men.
Delta Lodge, F. & A. M., 43 men.
Crescent Lodge, I. O. O. F., 35 men.
Delphi Lodge, K. of P., 40 men.
Mechanic's Temple of Honor, 85 men.
Bowles' South Abington Band.
Conquer Engine Company,
42 men, with engine.
Amazon Engine Company, 40 men.
Catholic Total Abstinence and Literary Association of E. Weymouth, 40 men.
Johnston's Band,
Star of Promise Section 5, Cadets of Honor and Temperance, Children of Public Schools numbering about 700.
Its route was over Church and Commercial Streets, and the carriage-way through the estate of Miss Selma Wildes, to the Summit of King Oak Hill, where a collation was provided for the procession and their ladies, and the citizens of the town,—twenty-five hundred adults being seated at the tables under Yale's mammoth pavilion, and seven hundred pupils of the public schools enjoying a picnic lunch under a smaller tent.
Hon. James Humphrey acted as president of the day, and Rev. Franklin P. Chapin, pastor of the First Church in Weymouth, invoked the divine blessing.
At the close of the collation, a select choir, under the direction of Mr. Alpheus Bates, sang the following original song, composed by Francis M. Adlington Esq., of Weymouth:

Our Father's Trump is ringing,
And on the wind is winging
Their Heav'n-wrought Declaration
That made of us a nation,
Huzza! huzza! from sea to sea
Rejoice, rejoice that all are free.

The rights which we inherit Shall ne'er, by our desert
Be lost to our descendants.
Their birthright's Independence.
Huzza! huzza! from sea to sea
Rejoice, rejoice that all are free.

May all of every station,
Who form this favor'd nation,
With jealous care endeavor
To guard their rights forever.
Huzza! huzza! from sea to sea
Rejoice, rejoice that all are free.

After which the President of the day delivered the opening address as follows:—

Ladies and Gentlemen:—No one regrets more deeply than myself the circumstances which have devolved upon me the duty of presiding over this great assembly, in the place of the distinguished gentleman, who, had his health permitted, would have filled this position with a grace and dignity honorable to our ancient town; and I can in no way better prove my sincerity in this regard than by refraining to tax your indulgent attention by any attempt at a formal address, and by hastening to bring before you the rich intellectual entertainment, which I know you all, with good reason eagerly anticipate. But, as the representative of Weymouth, I must not omit a word of introduction and of welcome.

The occasion of this meeting is one full of interest to all our citizens; and it also—as we are assured by the presence of this large and distinguished company of our guests—commends itself to the good judgement of those eminent for their abilities and virtues, whose sentiments are not on this occasion affected by the influences which ever emanate from the sacred spot we call Home.
We meet today to do homage to the memory of those heroic souls, who, amid toils and privations, and dangers well nigh without parallel, and with more than human foresight and energy, founded upon the principles of eternal justice and absolute right those noble institutions which are, even now, the admiration of the world, and which have secured to us, beyond the peril of loss, if we rightly prize that possession, our heritage of civil and religious liberty, but, which in the future, as in the past, are to be upheld and vindicated only by a virtuous and educated people.

SMELT FISHING.

Writing on "Smelt Fishing" in the Sunday Herald, George S. Hudson says:

Hingham bay yields the bumper catch in this locality and, possibly, cannot be excelled anywhere along the New England coast. Old fishermen are of the opinion that Crow point is the better section for results if the boat is anchored in range with the steamboat wharf at Downer's landing and over grass with tide flooding. Another locality that teems with fish at certain seasons is the mouth of Back river, close to State island, where the current has a sweep from the bay into the region easterly of Quincy. Great all, too, is a favorite with scores of fishermen who anchor off Hough's Neck.

Nut island to Racepoint Island and beyond, toward German town.

Hull waters are very popular, too, particularly the Strawberry hill reaches, and the shallows near Hog island, not far from the Yacht Club Inn. Across the bay World's End and Bumpkin island have their devotees and, during October and November, a flotilla of boats may be found in Weir river from its entrance to the steamboat wharf at Antasket.

The boats are as much alike as peas in a pod to the casual observer—one lone fisher, a pair, three or four and sometimes six for company's sake. The solitary individual, if I am not mistaken, will up anchor and shift if some one plants tackle too near for he is the fellow fishing for the market and does not propose to submit to a public demonstration of methods that win for him success.

One sometimes hears of a boat taking 40 or 50 dozen smelts a day but W. A. Garrett, who fished in Strawberry hill waters 22 consecutive seasons is loath to doubt it unless two experts were in the crew. W. T. Milton, fisherman for 35 years in Quincy and Winthrop waters, avers that it would be a tremendous stunt for an individual to take even 35 dozen to a tide. The fact that one man fishes with six poles does not imply that he is going to record the heavy catch because, when smelts are "biting" it is all one can do to look after two poles and, if the fish are schooling one pole is enough. The battery of poles does very well when fishing is poor, offering so many more chances for stray smelts to nibble.

MR. RIVINIUS HELD UP.

An Atlantic City paper the other day printed the following story which will be of interest to friends of F. C. Rivinius, formerly of Weymouth.

When F. C. Rivinius, General Auditor for the Linnard hotel system, stepped off a train from New York early last evening, he was surrounded by a group of his friends from The Ambassador and without undue ceremony bundled into an automobile and rushed to the Ideal Club, Absecon, formerly the Arthur H. Cremona's farm. When he arrived there he found a most elaborate dinner had been prepared in his honor by the famous chef, Jimmie Puss.

Just as the guests had finished dinner a series of shots was heard outside the window and in a moment the lights in the room were switched off. Then the diners were astonished when a shining Colt 14 in the hands of one of the most dangerous looking brigands that have been seen in these parts in a generation was pointed at them with the command "hands up."

The brigand then backed the guests against the wall and beginning with Cremona extracted the only valuables he possessed—a stogie and the announcement of the next special night at the Ambassador. Then the "bad man" reached the quaking Rivinius.

He gave him an affectionate punch in the ribs and exclaimed: "You look to be a pretty good sort of fellow so I will spare your life and give you this gun." The gun was then pressed into Rivinius' hands, the lights turned on and the brigand made his exit in true heroic style.

This little melodrama was staged and executed by the always facile and nimble Cremona. The occasion of this novel presentation was Mr. Rivinius' departure for California and is an evidence of the spirit of co-operation and good fellowship that exists among the executives at The Ambassador. The recipient of the gun had expressed a desire for a gun to carry with him while he motored from Atlantic City to San Francisco, and so Mr. Cremona, who always does things out of the ordinary, decided on this unique method of presentation.

A CENTENARIAN.

Samuel Cox of Lynn, the oldest Mason in the United States, shoe-maker by trade and postmaster of Marblehead, Mass., from 1853 to 1861, celebrated his 100th birthday. He ascribes his "youth" to hard work, good food and early hours. He has always smoked tobacco.

Thrift is steady earning, wise spending, sane saving, careful investing and the avoidance of all waste.

RENEWED TESTIMONY

No one in Weymouth who suffers from backache, headaches, or distressing urinary ills can afford to ignore this Weymouth man's twice told story. It is confirmed testimony that no Weymouth resident can doubt.

Benj. W. Hewett, gardener, 191 Washington St., says: "At one time I was so bad with my back, I couldn't bend over to pick up anything from the floor. Doan's Kidney Pills fixed me up and have always given me good results when I have needed them." (Statement given May 22, 1915)

DOAN'S ALWAYS RELIABLE

On March 19, 1917 Mr. Hewett said: "I still use Doan's Kidney Pills when I have need of a kidney medicine. They always give me excellent relief and I recommend them whenever I get a chance."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Hewett had. Foster-Milburn Co. Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

RED CROSS STARTS FALL CAMPAIGN

To Meet Need in Eastern Europe and Balkans

Refugee Clothing Must Be Made Up and Shipped Before Cold Weather

To help meet the pressing need for clothing among the war sufferers of Europe next winter, especially in Poland, Siberia and the Balkans, New England Division Headquarters of the American Red Cross has announced a Fall program of production. The program is to be wholly on a volunteer basis, so there will be no quota, but Red Cross women who prefer sewing to other forms of volunteer work have been assured that there will be plenty for them to do.

American Red Cross commissions abroad, in an effort to fight the spread of disease, such as typhus, tuberculosis and influenza, are concentrating on medical relief, but to make the benefits of the medical service permanent, warm clothing and nourishing food are needed. The epidemics of typhus which swept over Eastern Europe last winter, and are still raging in Poland and Russia, took so large a toll of lives because the populations of these countries were underfed and insufficiently clothed.

In Serbia but 5,000 children of the 35,000 who followed the Serbian Army in the retreat of 1915 are alive today, according to figures verified by Red Cross overseas workers. Statistics of human wastage in Poland and Siberia are equally appalling.

In order that garments may reach the people for whom they are intended before cold weather sets in, chapters, branches and auxiliaries in the New England Division have been asked by Division Manager James Jackson to decide at once whether they wish to take up production again. Material will be furnished Chapters from Division Headquarters, in Boston.

A substantial supply of clothing and petticoats, cut out ready to be made up, is now in the Division warehouse and these will be forwarded to Chapters desiring immediate work.

Accurate information on the need for clothing overseas has been furnished Red Cross officers by Miss Lavinia H. Newell, of Boston, Director of Chapter Production for both the National and New England Division organizations. Miss Newell went to France and from France into Serbia during the summer, travelling 400 miles by motor camion from Belgrade to Nish, to investigate the production problem for the Red Cross.

The articles needed, Miss Newell reported, are as follows: women's house gowns, night gowns, chemises, skirts, sacks, aprons, shawls and petticoats; men's and boys' shirts, girls' one-piece dresses, chemises and petticoats, children's stockings; and afghans.

All materials for these garments, according to instructions issued by the Division Manager, must be ordered by chapters from the Division office, and distributed by them to their branches and auxiliaries which should return the finished articles to the chapters.

Provided garments are carefully inspected, chapters may ship them straight to the American Red Cross Clearing House, Pier 1, Hoboken, New Jersey. Otherwise they should be shipped to the New England Division Headquarters, American Red Cross, 108 Massachusetts avenue, Boston.

In her trip through Serbia and Northern France Miss Newell visited American Red Cross distributing stations and said that all the garments given out were absolutely satisfactory. "Nothing is wasted," she added. "Pajamas and hospital garments are being made over into children's suits and in some parts of the Balkans surgical dressings are being used for baby clothes."

NEW ENGLAND LED IN 2nd RED CROSS FUND

Ratio of Collections to Subscriptions Was 99.7 Per Cent

The New England Division of the American Red Cross, which includes the states of Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Vermont and Rhode Island, led all the other Red Cross Divisions in the percentage of money actually collected in the Second War Fund campaign, held in the summer of 1918.

The subscriptions secured in the New England Division in that campaign totalled $11,402,725.11. Of this amount there has been collected $11,377,554.97, or 99.7% of the subscriptions. This is within three-tenths of a 100% record.

In both the War Fund and Membership campaigns of the war period, the New England Division made a record to be proud of, and every Chapter and Branch in the Division will have this record as an incentive to succeed in the Third Red Cross Roll Call which will take place from November 2 to 11. The National organization is asking for $15,000,000, the New England quota of which is $1,330,000. No over-subscriptions are asked for on the National fund, but Chapters will ask for funds for their local programs. The principal emphasis this year will be placed on memberships. In the Roll Call of last December the New England Division secured approximately 1,500,000 members and every effort will be made to exceed this mark in November.

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying powers are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them willfully with narcotics.

Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Capt. Lindsey Polk, director of a number of hotels, said recently in New York:

"European hotels, even the best of them, are inferior to ours. While I was in Paris I saw an advertisement of a fashionable new hotel, and the boast the management made was that it was as good as the best American hotels. I was pleased with this tribute."

Captain Polk smiled.
"Well," he resumed, "our ideals are high. No more hotel keepers like the old fellow who complained about his summer visitors:

"You wouldn't believe the nonsense that is in them. They are always wantin' a clane tablecloth an' clane sheets to their beds. An' table napkins, no less! I'll tell you what, there's sure people in this world that think they can go into a hotel an' make a convalescence of it."

President Fairfax Harrison of the Alabama Great Southern railway, said at a luncheon in Richmond:

"The old jokes about poor service on some of our southern and western railroads are antiquated. No trains in the world are more punctual today than our trains, and accidents are practically unknown."

"The story about the porter and the late traveler," President Fairfax continued good humoredly, "is an old one."

"A traveler, according to this story, just missed a train on a certain southern line, notorious for its poor service, and got the following consolation from a porter:

"She's the punctuallest train, sir, on the line and a great annoyance to travelers."

The strike was called by the motor-men and conductors themselves, at the end of a turbulent meeting, during which the men, yielding to the magnetic influence of Kolb, the oratorical agitator, had booed their own officials and jeered at a letter from the head of their national union declaring the proposed walkout to be ill advised, if not wholly unjustifiable. "You are being sold out!" Kolb had shouted. And somehow he made the men believe him. Setting tradition and discretion aside, the trolley men streamed out of their hall all with the excitement of a fight in which they felt, under the spell of Kolb, that they were championing the cause of all oppressed workers as well as their own. An hour after midnight the last car had been returned to the barn, and next morning not a wheel turned on any of the city lines.

At 5:30 that afternoon a girl with gold-brown eyes and red hair plodded wearily along on the last half mile of a two-mile walk between office and home. All the town was walking, save a handful of adventurous souls who took chances on the one occasional car the traction people had been operating since noon, defying the jeers of the mob and the risk of pebbles flung by hoodlums.

But company in misery very slightly palliated the discomfort of the unaccustomed tramp that Glory Blair had been compelled to take with scarcely an idle minute in it. She could do very well without any pedestrian exercise immediately before or after it, she thought. "It's an outrage, that's what it is!" she protested.

The worst of it was, Glory was worried about the job, too. She had begun to suspect that McKnight, the proprietor by whom she was employed, might be a bit of a wildcatter. Glory was merely his stenographer and had nothing to do with his accounts; but little things recently had given her the impression that it would not be surprising if McKnight were to close that office of his suddenly, some of these days, and fade away. So, altogether, Miss Blair was in a rather depressed state at the moment when a group of uniformed trolley men, standing on the corner and scoffing loudly at the efforts of a couple of traction company office men to run a car, caught her eye.

It wasn't exactly the group that caught her eye. It was Ford Burgoyne. Ford was one of the strikers. He hadn't been a trolleyman very long, he had been a "tech," school man, and then he had gone across and got gassed and came back with a bronchitis that forbade his staying indoors, the doctors said, for at least two years; and meantime his father had died broke, and Ford had found himself obliged to quit college and earn a living, and do it at "outside work."

All of a sudden Ford, who was laughing as loudly as any of the crowd at the unfortunate amateurs on the car, realized that Glory Blair was standing stock still, six feet away, looking at him with an expression he had never seen on her face before. He left the group instantly.

Glory didn't give him so much as time to say "How do you do?"

"I'm rather glad that I chanced to see you, Mr. Burgoyne," she said, and the chill of disillusionment was in her voice. "If some one else had told me they heard you hooting and blackguarding decent people on the public streets, I should have refused to believe it."

"But, Glory," protested Ford, "those fellows are just plain strike-breakers, now surely—"

"Surely," blazed Glory, interrupting him, "to be a strike-breaker in this kind of a strike is infinitely more creditable, Ford Burgoyne, than to set a city full of tired, worn-out people afoot in torrid weather like this. But I see now that I have given my friendship to a mere rowdy, who could never, by any possibility, look at things as I do. I just wanted to say that you needn't come to see me this evening—nor ever, Good-by." And Glory Blair, stepping around Burgoyne, who would have detained her if he could, marched off with the air of a duchess—and a lump in her throat and an ache in her heart—for she had come to be more than fond of this tall young fellow, who had faced his altered future with so sunny a laugh and so willingly followed the admonition: "Whatever thy hand findeth to do."

The strike had been on a week. The company was operating. The public was riding when it could. The strikers, feeling themselves losing ground and failing to secure the endorsement of their own national organization or of other labor unions, had fallen into an ugly mood. They stood moodily about in groups. There was no more of the amused railing at incompetent strike-breakers. Some of them, completely dominated by the ubiquitous Kolb, were working themselves up to the point of violence. Sheer stubborn pride kept most of the men in line. One of these was Ford Burgoyne, who had been harder hit by the disaffection of Glory Blair than by the loss of his job, and who was in a somber, pessimistic frame of mind. He felt like smashing things.

Ford was standing, one of a group of twenty trolley men, at the very corner where had occurred his disastrous encounter with Glory. Half an hour before a West side car had been held up, stoned and the motorman and conductor taken off and beaten. Now every passing trolley was a target for verbal abuse for passengers and crew alike. Several of Kolb's best adherents were in the crowd of riff-raff that fringed the group of strikers. One of these, a red-faced rough, suddenly called out:

"Get onto what's on the tail end of this car—a skirt! Whatcha know about that! Hey, you people, you gotta stop that when it's startin' or they'll have 'em in all your jobs. Come on an' get her!" The red-faced man started toward the car as it stopped for the crossing. Three or four gangster type youths yelled, "Get the skirt!" As with one impulse, half a hundred men and boys surged about the platform. The red-faced man, leaping up the steps, seized the small figure of the conductor and dragged it to the street. Some one struck at the strike-breaker over the red-faced man's shoulder—and then Ford Burgoyne came smashing and boring into the crowd with all the grim relentlessness of those football days before the gas had got to him.

"You dirty yellow dogs!" he panted, ripping the collar clear off one gangster's coat as he hauled him out of his path and landing a rangy right under the red-faced man's ear at the same instant. "Turn around here and fight a man—you woman beaters!" and another went down for the count.

The little conductor, freed from her assailant's grip, was reeling, her hands to her head, when Ford seized her arms, lifted her to the platform and, kicking a last ambitious rough off the step, rang the starting bell. As the car pulled away from the corner and out of the incipient mob, he looked down at the little conductor. "Good God! Glory Blair!" he breathed.

"You see, Ford," said Glory, as they sat on the tiny side porch of Glory's little home, "if it had been just for me it might not have made quite so much difference. Any man will fight for the woman he wants. But I knew you didn't get a good look at me—and how could you ever guess I'd lose my place and just had to have work, with that interest coming due on the houses? And a man who'd do that sort of thing just for woman—any woman—well, he isn't a rowdy, anyhow, Ford. Seeing that you're not—and now that crazy strike is all over—maybe, as you say, I'd better give up conducting and take the job you offered me."

GOT GOOD IDEA FROM HUNS

French Scientist Has Adapted Idea Which Made "Big Bertha" Formidable to Aerial Travel.

When the Germans accidentally discovered that a projectile fired from a big Bertha normally designed for a range of from 25 to 30 miles would achieve a range of about three times the normal by simply elevating the muzzle so that the projectile would travel through the rarefied air in the high altitude they unwittingly contributed an idea which may revolutionize aerial travel. The resistance to progress of an object in the upper reaches of the air is very much less than in the denser atmosphere of the lower altitudes, but the rarity of oxygen in the higher altitudes reduces the efficiency of the gasoline engine by as much as 50 per cent.

To overcome this, remarks the Vancouver Sun, a French inventor has attached an automatic air condenser to the exhaust, and air with a normal content of oxygen is thus supplied to the engines, which, retaining their normal power, drive the plane through the rarefied air at a greatly accelerated speed.

It is now said to be possible, with this improvement, to cross the Atlantic in one day.

Spiders Hard to Tame.

A spider is one of the hardest creatures in the world to tame, according to scientists who have made the attempt. They say the insect hasn't any idea of time, and to seek its confidence one must have unlimited patience. One scientist, after gaining the confidence of a spider by feeding it flies, sought to test its senses by fooling it with a piece of meat, the size of a fly, rigged up with a fly's head and wings. The spider stopped in its web, about an inch from the camouflage, and later couldn't be gotten from its nest to even look at the thing. Other spiders evinced the same wariness, although it is not known whether it was their sense of sight or smell that was keenest. One scientist destroyed a spider's web and stayed up all night to watch it make another, believing it worked at night. At 6 a. m. it ran out of a window without attempting to work before his gaze.

Only One Explanation.

It was at an evening party. A young man with a tall collar and pale hair was reciting a poem. He had ground out 47 stanzas—and the end was not yet.

"What's going on?" whispered the guest who had just come in.

"Rhymers is letting out his latest poem," answered the pessimistic person.

"What's the subject—the motive?" queried the late comer.

"I have forgotten the subject," replied the pessimistic person, "but I suspect the motive must be revenge. At least I can't see any other reason for it."

CHICAGO WHITE SOX AGAIN CAPTURE CHAMPIONSHIP OF AMERICAN LEAGUE

PHOTOGRAPHS COPYRIGHTED BY "INTERNATIONAL"

MILLER HUGGINS PICKS SOX TO WIN

Miller Huggins, pilot of the New York Yankees, says that it is his belief that the White Sox will win the world series from the Cincinnati Reds for two reasons.

First, because the White Sox have been encountering and beating "more better" teams than the Reds have been asked to meet in the National league; and, secondly, because the Chicago Hose have more long-distance hitters than the Reds.

"I have little sympathy with those who claim that the National league is a minor by comparison with the American league standard of play," declared the snappy, peppery Huggins.

"There is little difference between the two leagues. And that is the way it ought to be and the way the fans want it. What credit would it be for a team in either league to win the world's championship if the opposing club was of minor league ability?"

"But I can truthfully say that there are more strong teams fighting for the flag in the American league than is the case in the National league or than has been the case in the National league for many years."

REDS' LUCK WILL BEAT SOX, SAYS CRAVATH

Cactus Cravath, manager and hard-hitting outfielder of the Phillies, picks Pat Moran's team to clean up the Chicago White Sox in the world's series. "To my way of thinking the Reds are playing better ball than the White Sox, and will prove steeper in the big series. Also, the club has been getting the breaks all season and will go into the series with the same luck."

GRIFFITH SAYS SOX
SHOULD WIN SERIES

Washington Manager Puts in Boost for Chicago Team.

Not League Loyalty, but Opinion Formed Upon Careful Study of Baseball—Tigers Had Hard Luck at Start of Season.

Manager Clark Griffith of the Washington American league team, in discussing baseball the other evening expressed the belief that the White Sox would defeat the Cincinnati Reds and gave his reasons for his choice. It was not league loyalty in any sense, but an opinion based upon careful study of baseball that the Washington leader gave.

"To begin with," said Griffith, "I have not seen the Reds play this season. I know some of the older men and know what they can do. I do know the White Sox and I know what they can do. I have had practical demonstrations of what they can do. The White Sox have every essential of a championship baseball team. They have a whirlwind attack, a wonderful defense, and every move they make is directed by keen baseball brains.

"There is no fluke about the position of the White Sox. It is true that the Tigers had a bit of tough luck in the start of the season, but, just the same, the Chicago team is a real, blown-in-the-glass club. They lead the league in hitting, base running, scoring runs, extra base hits and everything else. When they set the highest standards in those things we can only conclude that they are champions.

"Just take their batting order first. Nemo Leibold is a lead-off man of the type. He is hard to pitch to and has a good eye. If the balls are bad he won't take a cut at them. If they are in he is as liable to crack it for two or three as he is to get a single. Then there is Eddie Collins. Collins is about the greatest second-sacker that the game ever produced. He is a great hit-and-run man; or he can stand in and slug. You know a good hit-and-run player does not smash the ball when that play is on. He meets the ball and punches it. Collins can run the bases, too.

"Then there is no less a person than Buck Weaver. Buck is about as good as Collins. I think he is the greatest third baseman in the world today. He can go and get a ball, he can throw, he has fine hands and is smart. Then comes Joe Jackson. Jackson is hitting .350, and is liable to bust one clean out of the lot. Happy Felsch is hitting about .260 now, but he is a dangerous factor. Chick Gandil is a hard hitter and is playing wonderful ball right now. Don't let any shallow skulls tell you that Chick is not a good player.

"It has been said," continued Griffith, "that if it were not for Eddie Cicotte and Claude Williams the Sox would be nowhere. Perhaps that is right, but you can take it from me that if it were not for the White Sox Cicotte and Williams might not be anywhere. When a pitcher can go in there and know he has the sort of team that if the opposition makes three runs his mob will make four it gives him the heart to do big things. That is the type of men the White Sox are. They never stop fighting.

"Defensively the Sox are marvels, and nothing less. I am going to tell you something now that may surprise you," said Griffith earnestly. "I am going to tell you that Happy Felsch is the greatest center fielder in baseball."

"But there is Tris Speaker," protested the writer.

"I know there is Speaker," replied Griffith. "I know all about Speaker; he is a great ball player, but he is not one whit better than Felsch, and I think that Felsch is just a bit better than he. Mind you, I am talking of defensive work now. It is practically impossible to hit a ball over Felsch's head. He is a ball falcon in fielding the ground hits, and he has one of the most marvelous arms that ever swung from a man's shoulders."

CURB OBSTREPEROUS PLAYER

Head of National League Believes Best Cure is to Take His Money Away From Him.

President Heydler of the National league believes the way to curb a ball player is to take his money away from him. Few players have been suspended but many have been fined for rows with umpires. Ed Rousch of the Reds was recently fined $50 for disputing a called strike.

Why Was Gleason Overlooked?
Last year William (Kid) Gleason was without a job. He had been released by Owner Comiskey of the White Sox. Any ball club could have signed him.

Gleason last winter was restored to good standing in Chicago and made manager of the White Sox.

The cry went up last season that real major league managers could not be found.

Kopf Don't Say Much.
Little has been said about the playing of Larry Kopf, shortstop for the Reds, but he is one of the most reliable in the league.

Kerr Is Hard Hitter.
Dick Kerr has made quite a reputation as a hitter as well as a pitcher.

QUICK! YOUR HAIR
NEEDS "DANDERINE"

Check ugly dandruff. Stop hair coming out and double its beauty

A little "Danderine" cools, cleanses and makes the feverish, itchy scalp soft and pliable; then this stimulating tonic penetrates to the famished hair roots, revitalizing and invigorating every hair in the head, thus stopping the hair falling out, or getting thin, dry or fading.

After a few applications of "Danderine" you seldom find a fallen hair or a particle of dandruff, besides every hair shows new life, vigor, brightness, more color and thickness.

A few cents buys a bottle of delightful "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter.—Adv.

New Telephone Table.

An inventor has invented a compact telephone table which can be folded to even smaller dimensions for moving from room to room.

Lift off Corns!

Doesn't hurt a bit and Freezone costs only a few cents.

With your fingers! You can lift off any hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the hard skin caluses from bottom of foot.

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs little at any drug store; apply a few drops upon the corn or callus. Instantly it stops hurting, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callus right off, root and all, without one bit of pain or soreness. Truly! No humbug!—Adv.

Easily Named.

"Can you tell me what are the yellow races?" "Sure I can. They're the ones with the crooked jockeys."—Baltimore American.

Watch Cuticura Improve Your Skin.
On rising and retiring gently smear the face with Cuticura Ointment. Wash off Ointment in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water. It is wonderful sometimes what Cuticura will do for poor complexions, dandruff, itching and red rough hands.—Adv.

Some men owe all they have in this world to others—and some owe a lot more than they have.

Any man who buys a mule is sure to have a kick coming.

"CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP" IS CHILD'S LAXATIVE

Look at tongue! Remove poisons from stomach, liver and bowels.

Accept "California" Syrup of Figs only—look for the name Californis on the package, then you are sure your child is having the best and most harmless laxative or physic for the little stomach, liver and bowels. Children love its delicious fruity taste. Full directions for child's dose on each bottle. Give it without fear.

Mother! You must say "California."—Adv.

Safe to Be Poor.

Again it is proved that age is no guaranty against breach of promise suits. Poverty seems to be the only bar that is absolutely certain.—Kansas City Star.

ASPIRIN FOR COLDS

Name "Bayer" is on Genuine Aspirin—say Bayer

Insist on "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" in a "Bayer package," containing proper directions for Colds, Pain, Headache, Neuralgia, Lumbago, and Rheumatism. Name "Bayer" means genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians for nineteen years. Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost few cents. Aspirin is trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.—Adv.

"CARRY ON!"

If Constipated, Bilious or Headachy, take "Cascarets"

Feel grand! Be efficient! Don't stay sick, bilious, headachy, constipated. Remove the liver and bowel poison which is keeping your head dizzy, your tongue coated, your breath bad and your stomach sour. Why not get a small box of Cascarets and enjoy the nicest, gentlest laxative-cathartic you ever experienced? Cascarets never gripe, sicken or inconvenience one like Salts, Oil, Calomel or harsh pills. Cascarets bring sunshine to cloudy minds and half-sick bodies. They work while you sleep. Adv.

Hard to Digest.

Binks—"The under crust to that chicken pie you brought me was abominably tough." Walter—"There wasn't any under crust to that pie, sir; it was served on a paper plate and you've eaten it."

When the busy little bee gets a load he goes straight home—which is more than any man can do.

A woman doesn't necessarily cry when she sheds tears.

FEEL OLD?

Don't let that bad back make you old! Get back your health and keep it. You can detect kidney weakness in its early stages, from the morning lameness, dull backache, dizzy spells, nervousness and kidney irregularities. Taken early, a short treatment with Doan's Kidney Pills will usually correct it. Neglect may lead to more serious trouble, gravel, dropsy or Bright's disease. Doan's have helped thousands.

A Massachusetts Case

C. Spanks, 63 Rockham Ave., Malden, says: "My kidneys had been giving me trouble for some time. My back ached severely—especially on arising in the morning, and I could hardly dress myself. I had dizzy spells and could see black specks before my eyes. I was told about Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. They soon fixed me up in good shape, regulating my kidneys and the backache disappeared entirely."

Acid-Stomach

Makes 9 Out of 10 People Suffer

Doctors declare that more than 70 non-organic diseases can be traced to Acid-Stomach. Starting with indigestion, heartburn, belching, food-repeating, bloating, sour, gassy stomach, the entire system eventually becomes affected, every vital organ suffering in some degree or other. You see these victims of Acid-Stomach everywhere—people who are subject to nervousness, headache, insomnia, biliousness—people who suffer from rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica and aches and pains all over the body. It is safe to say that about 9 people out of 10 suffer to some extent from Acid-Stomach.

If you suffer from stomach trouble or, even if you do not feel any stomach distress, yet are weak and ailing, feel tired and dragged out, lack "pep" and enthusiasm and know that something is wrong although you cannot locate the exact cause of your trouble—you naturally want to get back your grip on health as quickly as possible. Then take EATONIC, the wonderful modern remedy that brings quick relief from pains of indigestion, belching, gassy bloating, etc. Keep your stomach strong, clean and sweet. See how your general health improves—how quickly the old-time vim, vigor and vitality come back!

Get a big 50c box of EATONIC from your druggist today. It is guaranteed to please you. If you are not satisfied your druggist will refund your money.

Sick Women

To do your duty during these trying times your health should be your first consideration. These two women tell how they found health.

Hellam, Pa.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles and a displacement. I felt all run down and was very weak. I had been treated by a physician without results, so decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial, and felt better right away. I am keeping house since last April and doing all my housework, where before I was unable to do any work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certainly the best medicine a woman can take when in this condition. I give you permission to publish this letter."—Mrs. E. R. CRUMLING, R. No. 1, Hellam, Pa.

Lowell, Mich.—"I suffered from cramps and dragging down pains, was irregular and had female weakness and displacement. I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which gave me relief at once and restored my health. I should like to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies to all suffering women who are troubled in a similar way."—Mrs. ELISE HEIM, R. No. 8, Box 83, Lowell, Mich.

AMERICAN LEGION.

The Massachusetts Branch of the American Legion will hold a grand military athletic carnival at Braves Field, Boston, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, October 9, 10 and 11. Each afternoon there will be army games and athletic competition by soldier and sailor stars. The Argonne Forest, a spectacular representation of an incident in the final fight by the very Yanks who fought it—will be presented. There will also be airplane flights, war fireworks and band concerts. Tickets for sale at all legion posts.

The National Headquarters has agreed to supply the Massachusetts American Legion Buttons weekly. These buttons will be distributed to the Post only upon written application, accompanied by a check, postal money order or cash, covering the requisition. If there are no buttons on hand, a waiting list will be kept at State Headquarters, and orders will be filled in the order of application. These buttons will be sold to members at 25 cents apiece.

Enlistments for service in Europe were discontinued July 5th last. On the 26th of August we were again authorized to accept men for this service and with the added attraction that men with an honorable discharge could be given this service on a one year enlistment. To any man who did not have the fortune to get "across" or to one who did get across and would like to take another trip, this is an opportunity that the civilian pays hundreds of dollars for. The short enlistment makes it more in the nature of an outing than where the three year period was required as formerly. It is not known what the nature of this service will be or where in Europe a man would be sent, but a recent newspaper item stated that the 5th and 50th Infantry Regiments were about to embark from the United States for service in Silesia. We also have some troops in Germany and France. There is also a rumor that American Troops are to be sent to the Balkans.

State Secretary Leo A. Spillane says: "I regret that there are some members of the Legion who are exhibiting strains of selfishness, but I hope that these individuals will come to see that there is no room in the American Legion for the personal ambitions of any one man or any group of men."

"Those who hold office and who consequently are doing the work are merely the servants of the members, and the remedy of those whose wishes are not carried out is to select new officers. The holding of office is a duty, not an honor. And in our American form of government the majority governs. I hope that the minority, where there is a minority on any particular question, will not feel disgruntled, but will look at the larger aspect of the Legion with all its potentiality for good in the state and country, which is in sore need of wise counsel, and will support the men who are trying to do their duty and sink their personal prejudices for the good of their community, state and nation."

"There is no doubt that a large Post can accomplish more than a smaller one. It requires the money and support of all the influential people in the district, and as soon as their support is divided the influence of the district is weakened. Social gatherings, entertainments and meetings to discuss the important principles which are confronting us daily will only be successful if all sections of the district are represented and all different ideas presented. Small and disjointed movements will never succeed."

"There is another matter on which I should like to express an opinion. In some of the localities in Massachusetts, there is a tendency on the part of a portion of the service men in a particular locality to insist on the adoption of the name of some particular hero of the Post, in spite of the opposition of the rest of the community who may have some other particular hero or who may want to name the Post after the locality. This immediately causes friction and perhaps a refusal on the part of some men to join the Post on that account, and to desire to form a separate Post. This is to be avoided, of course, and in my opinion the solution of such a situation when it arises is for all sections or groups or fractions to sink their personal wishes in regard to the name, and for the good of the locality to name the post after the community."

"Nobody in the community can have any objection to naming the Post after the locality. There is bound to be difference of opinion on the question of what man among many who have distinguished themselves in battle and died a glorious death is most entitled to represent the district. When this difference of opinion exists the only solution of the matter, it seems to me, is for all individuals to forget their personal feelings and in an unselfish and large-minded spirit for the sake of harmony and unity compromise on the adoption of the name of the postal district, town or city."

TROLLEY LINE SUSPENDED.

The Blue Hill Street Railway Company, which operates chiefly in Canton, Milton, Sharon and Stoughton, suspended operation of its entire system, Sept. 30. The directors declare, as a reason, that the revenue of the road is insufficient to meet its running expenses.

HOW IT GOES.

St. Louis Times.
The Colonel tells the Major
When he wants something done,
And the Major tells the Captain,
And gets him on the run.

And the Captain thinks it over,
And to be sure and follow suit,
Passes the buck and baggage
To some shave-tail Second Lieut.

The said Lieutenant ponders,
And strokes his downy jaw,

And calls his trusty Sergeant
And to him lays down the law.

The Sergeant calls the Corporal
To see what he can see
And the Corporal gets a Private,
And the poor old Private's me.

Valuable Gift to Weymouth Historical Society

H. H. Joy, the president of the Weymouth Historical Society, acknowledges this week a valuable gift from the Dedham Historical Society, which should be appreciated by the people of Weymouth, particularly South Weymouth. It is the bound volumes of the Weymouth Gazette for 50 years, from 1869 to 1919. These volumes are neatly bound, and will be located in the Historical rooms at the Fogg Library at South Weymouth.

Nash's Corner Main and Street

—Louis Bates of Main street has accepted a position with the Crawford Machine Works.
—Miss Mary Gardner of Adams place is confined to her home by tonsillitis.
—Henry Desmond of Front street has polioed the army of Ford auto drivers having purchased a new touring car.
—Mrs. William Howe entertained the Ladies Auxiliary to the A. O. H. at her home, 65 West street, Tuesday evening. The members were provided with a musical program by Mrs. John Sullivan and Miss Alice Nelligan, pianists. The hostess served refreshments.
—Mrs. Edward Holbrook of Main street was operated on at the Massachusetts General Hospital Tuesday and is reported as resting comfortably.

At the musicale given by Miss Althea E. Parker's pupils on Saturday, October 4, Miss Phyllis Price's piano solo deserves special mention.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW.

About "The Light of Western Stars" shown at opera house East Weymouth next Monday.
It is Dustin Farnum's big united superpicture.
It is a magnificent picturization of Zane Grey's thrilling romance of the South Western Border.
It is acknowledged to be the best and biggest work this great screen favorite has ever filmed.
It is impressive, thrilling, picturesque, rich in human interest. Its grandeur of scenery is a positive delight.
It is directed by Charles Swickard, with screen version by Roy Clements. It is a story that holds from start to finish. An out-of-the-ordinary big six-reel feature with real action in an artistic atmosphere.
It is clean and will please all classes of picture patrons.

TAX BILLS OUT.

Tax Collector Tirrell did a hurry job on issuing the tax bills this year, sending all the bills out four days after he received the commitment book, and there were fully 4,000. Already there has been a large payment. The distinction of paying first goes to Edward A. Smith of 37 Myrtle street.

SUICIDE OF LAUNDRYMAN.

Frank Lee, the proprietor of the Chinese laundry in Washington Sq., was found dead last Saturday. Medical Examiner John C. Fraser pronounced it a case of suicide by inhalation of gas. W. J. Dunbar & Son took charge of the body, which was taken to Mt. Hope. Mr. Lee was a native of China and married.
It was noticed for a few days preceding the end, that Lee was acting strangely. On Friday, he counted over his money, and handed it to his partner, telling him to put it in the bank in his own name. Then he went to Boston. Returning Saturday, he told his partner, he was wanted by his uncle in Boston. But it was only a ruse to get him away. Then Lee used a gas tube that was hardly long enough to reach his mouth.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY.

Judge Avery of the Quincy court found probable cause on Saturday to hold both Robert E. Davis and Jesse G. Davis of South Weymouth for the grand jury, on charges of robbery and assault in connection with the brutal assault on Mrs. Emma Jensen at South Weymouth recently.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Veterans of the Grand Army should not climb upon the roof of any building or any great distance from terra firma. Tuesday morning Leonard W. Cain of Whitman street attempted to repair a chimney of Mrs. Lilla French's house, on Washington street, Lovells Corner when he became dizzy and fell across the ridge pole. Fortunately he was rescued by Mr. Virta and J. Maynard, by ropes, who took him home. The next day he recovered consciousness but had no recollection of the accident. He is reported as comfortable.

CHARLOTTE E. BRIGGS.

Miss Charlotte E. Briggs, passed away at her late home on Commercial street, Monday, after an illness of about three months.
Miss Briggs, a life-long resident of Weymouth, has been much loved throughout her life—for her generosity, her kindness, her friendly ways, and for her faithfulness.
In 1875 Miss Briggs became a member of the First Church. She has always supported the church in every way possible, worked for it in her own quiet way, always showing an excellent Christian spirit, which no doubt has been an example to many.
In the business world, Miss Briggs has been a valuable worker, being employed by the Town of Weymouth in the Water office, nearly thirty years; in fact, she has devoted practically all her life to the carrying on of the town's business in her special department, and all with whom she came in contact, respected her to the highest degree, for her consciousness, faithfulness, and uprightness.

Miss Briggs will be greatly missed by her many friends. She leaves two sisters, Miss Louise Briggs, and Mrs. Annie Bradford, also a nephew Carlton Bradford.

Funeral services were held at her late home on Wednesday afternoon, Rev. E. J. Yeager officiating.

The interment took place at the Old North cemetery.

The Water office was closed during the afternoon, and Water Commissioners and the town officials were in attendance.

The office of the Gazette and Transcript will be closed all day Monday—Columbus Day.

Daddy's evening fairy tales are again a regular feature of the Gazette—see page 11.

Reception at No. Weymouth To New Pastor and Wife

Pilgrim church was the scene of a large gathering Tuesday evening when the society tendered a reception to the new pastor, Rev. Mr. Bitler and his wife, from 8 to 10 o'clock. Mrs. A. E. Beals was in charge of the affair and was assisted by Mrs. Emory Cushing, Mrs. Edward McGill, Mrs. John Thomas and Mrs. Charles Clarke.

The decorations were autumn leaves and fall flowers and the vestry and parlors were profusely decorated.

Keith's orchestra of East Weymouth furnished music and Herbert Curtis of East Braintree gave several solos. Rev. Edward Yeager of the Old North church, Rev. E. T. Ford of East Weymouth Congregational, Rev. E. W. Whitte, of the Universalist societies, Rev. O. A. Price of South Weymouth and Rev. C. C. MacDonald of Abington were special guests.

Mr. Bitler comes to North Weymouth from a three year pastorate at Hamilton, Mass. Previously he had a joint pastorate at New Vineyard and Strong, Maine. He is a native of Harrison, Ohio, and a graduate from Bangor Theological Seminary in 1913. Received B. A. at Bowdoin College in 1915, and B. D. at Andover Theological Seminary in 1916.

In 1916 he was married to Miss Helen E. Merriman and they have one child, a daughter two years old.

AMERICAN LEGION.

The meeting of the Weymouth Post 79, Monday evening at the G. A. R. hall, was largely attended, and one of the most enthusiastic of the season. Commander William Connell presided.

The committee that met with the Town Committee appointed at the last town meeting regarding a memorial building to be built by the Town of Weymouth, reported their data concerning the movement which occasioned much favorable comment.

Comrade Herbert Rockwood, chairman of the membership committee, submitted a long list of new names that have paid the initial membership fee, and the Post has exceeded its quota. This efficient membership committee has worked diligently to make the Weymouth Post one of the largest, and it may well be proud of its thorough campaign in that connection.

November 11, Armistice day, the Post will hold the first of a series of entertainments to be given this season, and it promises to be a social event. Fogg's Opera House in South Weymouth is to have the honor of "billeting" the service boys of the town on that night, and, no doubt it will be taxed to its capacity. Chairman Thomas McCarthy, together with his assistants, are now arranging a program that will contain many pleasing novelties, which will be published in full at an early date. This is going to be a big night for the buddies, gobs, and their guests, so plan to be with us at "our first."

The Post will be represented by four delegates, Commander William A. Connell, Thomas McCarthy, Pasquale Santacrose and Arthur Reed, at the State Convention to be held at Worcester, Oct. 15 and 16, Bon voyage.

PAST OFFICERS NIGHT.

Past matrons and past patrons of Mayflower chapter occupied the chairs at the regular meeting on Tuesday evening, at the 20th anniversary of the chapter and gave a fine exemplification of the work, initiating two candidates. The officers were:

W. M., Mrs. Elizabeth Peyton, W. P., Ellis Gardner, A. M., Mrs. Isora Guy, Cond., Mrs. Ellen Kidder, Asst. Cond., Mrs. Esther Richards, Secretary, David Kidder, Treasurer, Fred H. Langhost, Chaplain, Joan Merrill, Marshal, Mrs. Flavia Gardner, Adah, Mrs. Nellie Denbroeder, Esther, Mrs. Amelia Severance, Martha, Mrs. Annie Beck, Electa, Mrs. Cora A. Baker, Warden, Mrs. Ella Walbrock, Sentinel, Bro. Brown.

The musical numbers were by Mrs. Alice Merry, and the recitations by Worthy Patron Bain. A large number of applications were received. Refreshments were served.

Look! Here is the globe spread out flat before your eyes. See those stars? Every star shows where a U. S. Navy ship was on September 2nd, 1919. The Navy travels the Seven Seas.

Don't you want to see the World?

ROMANCE is calling to you! Strange and smiling foreign lands are beckoning to you. Shove off and see the world!

Learn to "parley-vo" in gay Paree. See the bull-fights in Panama. See surf-riding on the beach of Waikiki.

Learn the lure that comes with the swish and swirl of the good salt sea. Eat well—free; dress well—free; sleep clean—free; and look 'em all straight in the eye—British, French, Chinese, Japanese, Spaniards, Egyptians, Algerians and all manner of people.

Come! Be a real man of the world. See the world. See it with the red-blooded, hard-working, hard-playing men of the U. S. Navy.

Pay begins the day you join. On board ship a man is always learning. Trade schools develop skill, industry and business ability. Thirty days care-free holiday each year with full pay. The food is good. First uniform outfit is furnished free. Promotion is unlimited for men of brains. You can enlist for two years and come out broader, stronger and abler.

Shove off—Join the U. S. Navy. If you're between 17 and 35 go to the nearest recruiting station for all the details. If you don't know where it is ask your postmaster.

Shove off! - Join the U. S. Navy

On Life's Journey.
We should rather be life's good comrades than its passionate lovers, neither easily offended, nor imagining evil, yet not taking its affairs too lightly. Let us hold life faithfully by the hand, loving it through fair and ill repute; as good travelers, grumbling little, praising much, and sharing sun and shadow and wayside inns.—Exchange.

Better Than Medicine.
Remember that medicine is, for most part, nothing but the substitute of exercise and right thinking. And it does not take a great deal of either right thinking or fresh air to enable you to throw off any ordinary symptom of illness. All that is necessary is for you to hold in your mind the thought that you are both healthy and cheerful.

About the Diamond.
The diamond is the hardest known. Its name (French, dia derived from the Greek adamas—untamable. The word was probably attached to the stone because it conveyed the idea of invincible hardness. No acid will scar it; no solvent will dissolve it. Ages may pass without dimming the luster of its adamantine face.

BARES SECRETS OF SLEEP SICKNESS

Chicago Man Recovers and Tells His Experiences.

SYMPTOMS OF THE MALADY

Persistent Series of Illusions During Periods of Wakefulness One of the Peculiarities of Disease — Beach, Flowers, Castles and Sea Mark Six Months' Visions of Chicago Legislator—Under Sleep Spell.

After hovering under death's wing for more than six months as a victim of sleeping sickness, former Alderman Theodore K. Long, now a member of the Illinois legislature, returned to Chicago from Battle Creek, Mich., and told for the first time the symptoms of the strange malady.

"Less than 10 per cent of those who contract sleeping sickness live to tell their experience," he said.

The principal symptom of sleeping sickness he described as a persistent series of illusions during periods of wakefulness.

Beaches—Chimes—Flowers.
"I imagined I was at the seaside, and could see hundreds of men and women in bathing," he continued. "Of course, I had other illusions, but beach scenes predominated."

"Sometimes I could hear the ringing of what seemed a million cathedral chimes."

"Again, I saw wonderful examples of architecture, castles, battlements. 'Sometimes I wandered through fields of flowers, but, curiously, they had no perfume."

"And no matter what I saw, I could always hear the sound of the surf as it broke against the shore, and sooner or later I found myself on the beach again."

"In Springfield about seven months ago, while I was engaged in legislative work, I first noticed my health was not normal."

"I suffered from an intolerable languor."

Under a Spell of Sleep.
"Try as I would I could not resist the desire to go to sleep."

"I would be compelled to go to bed at any time of day the spells struck me, and I would sleep from 12 to 14 hours."

"When I awoke I would not be rested, but I had done a great deal of work. I was compelled to give up my work and come to Chicago's hospital, where I was treated."

"I was diagnosed as encephalitis, a sleeping sickness, and I was confined to bed for 14 weeks. It is a direct effect of influenza, and I have no doubt the germs spread by the tsetse fly of Africa in some manner have found their way to this country."

"After suffering from influenza, the body is especially subject to attack by the sleeping sickness germ."

RETURNS FROM WAR TO FIND FATHER DEAD

Sergeant is Met by Sorrow Instead of Expected Homecoming Celebration.

Michael Murphy's cup of happiness had been filled to overflowing. Had not his son, Sergt. Joseph T. Murphy, returned from overseas, where for more than a year he had been on the firing line?

He had come home, this strapping youngster, tanned and weather-beaten and with a German helmet as a souvenir.

The father's thoughts went back over the 20 years in which he had been employed by the city of Chicago. He had been a small cog in the big political wheel. He had brought up seven strapping children, two sons and five daughters. One of the sons was a city fireman. And the other, a chip off the old block, had come back from France with a German helmet. He had come home to be his comfort in his old age.

Ah, the world was brighter, now that Sergeant Joe was back. No wonder the Hindenburg line had crumpled with a fighting Irishman like Joe in the front trenches.

And now the neighbors were coming in for a bit of a celebration. The little home was in gala attire. The neighbors should see with their own eyes and hear with their own ears what a Murphy had done to the Fritz-les.

The aged man sank back in his favorite arm chair. A smile played over his honest Irish face. His eyes closed and he gave himself over to dreams.

A cheery voice was heard in the hall. "Why, hello, dad! Gone to sleep again? Company's coming, dad. Wake up."

Sergeant Joe shook the old man's shoulder gently. "Wake up, dad," he repeated. "Company's—"

But he was even then walking through the dark valley. He had died of the great happiness. The cup had been filled to overflowing.

REMINDED OF HUN TANK

Hears the Bird and in Dreams Started to Fight Again.

Ed Kramp, formerly assistant in the fuel administration office in Toledo, O., who returned recently from several months' service with an artillery organization overseas, says the first thing a soldier tries to do after getting home is to forget all about the scrap over there.

Kramp thought he had blazing guns, army rations, trench rats, cooties and Germans pretty well stored away in the back of his memory until an experience the other night.

Kramp went to bed early. Some time during the small hours a particularly noisy owl came rattling and clanking down the street past the house. In his sleep Kramp got the impression that the Germans had sent a tank over after him, and that the "square heads" would soon be coming over the top. He jumped up, seized a chair, and started to fight the war all over again.

CRAW JEWEL CASKET

Emerald Ring Worth $300 Found in Hen's Interior.

Andromeda is, or was, a plain drab-colored runabout Buff Cochon hen, with feathered pantslets and no especial claim to distinction. She belonged to H. E. Westerly, a farmer at Hayward, Cal., and led an existence as drab as her color. She wallowed in the dirt, cackled as per accomplishment and did her own scratching in a wholly middle-class way.

Now Andromeda is the most famous hen in the county. For Westerly decided that his hen would make a wonderful Sunday dinner. He killed her and opened her crop. Among the gravel of her grinder he found an emerald ring surrounded by diamonds, worth about $300. The ring was corroded and had apparently been in the hen's differential box for about a week.

It is thought the ring was dropped by some passing automobilist and Andromeda, attracted by the glitter, swallowed it.

"Love Her Only Crime."

"Her only crime is that of loving, and she should not be punished for that."

With this statement Judge McMahon of New York suspended sentence on Teresa Cieri, charged with bigamy.

She had defended herself by stating her first marriage was loveless, having been arranged by her parents two years ago, before she left Italy, whereas, when she met Luigi Izzo, she fell in love with him and married him last October, regardless of the law.

Wife Will Quit Smokes.

In answer to a charge of deserting a wife, a man complained at Birmingham, England, that she smoked cigarettes. "What can you do with a woman like that?" he asked. A magistrate suggested that smoking was not a crime. However, the wife said she would give up smoking and the case was adjourned to give the couple an opportunity of settling their differences.

Rich Ancient Mosaic Is Found.

Archaeologists have discovered in Rome a rich mosaic, believed to date back to the days of the Caesars.

The work was found in a perfect state of preservation under the foundations of the Casa Popolari. Its decorations are elaborate geometrical designs. The piece possibly composed part of the floor of one of the imperial palaces.

Here's an Up-to-Date Pastor.

Rev. R. J. Bennett, who has assumed pastorate of the Spruce Street Christian church of Morgantown, W. Va., believes in using business methods to get the congregation to attend services. Mr. Bennett is advertising his services in the newspapers, has installed electric fans in the church, and has hired a brass band at the services.

Rats Cost Britain $100,000,000 a Year.

Rats and mice have wasted tons of grain and other valuable food products in Great Britain each year, causing a total loss of $100,000,000, according to a bill recently introduced in the house of commons, asking a $4,500,000 appropriation for poison for the rodents.

Camel

Cigarettes

They Win You On Quality!

Your enjoyment of Camels will be very great because their refreshing flavor and fragrance and mellowness is so enticingly different. You never tasted such a cigarette! Bite is eliminated and there is a cheerful absence of any unpleasant cigarette after-taste or any unpleasant cigarette odor!

Camels are made of an expert blend of choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos and are smooth and mild, but have that desirable full-body and certainly hand out satisfaction in generous measure. You will prefer this Camel blend to either kind of tobacco smoked straight!

MOTOR CAR HELD ON STEEP GRADE

Engine Going Dead on Mountain Side Permits Automobile to Slide Backwards.

INVENTION OF OREGON MAN

Sharp, Tooth-Like Points Dig Into Ground and Hold Car in Place Until Engine Can Be Started Again—Danger Eliminated.

Many deaths have occurred in mountain touring due to the engine going dead while on a steep grade because of the driver's attempt to go up in a higher gear than he should. When the engine stops, the car slides backwards and in many cases goes over the edge of the road if the brakes are not in the best possible condition and the driver does not apply them without losing his head.

Built along lines very similar to the harrow used by farmers and drawn over plowed land to level it and break the clods, the novel brake device shown in the accompanying illustration

The Tooth-Like Points of the Harrow Brake Dig Into the Ground and Hold the Car in Place Until the Engine Can Be Started Again.

tion is designed to prevent automobiles used in mountain touring from running backwards down steep roads should anything go wrong with the regular brakes.

It is the invention of George Stickney of Oregon. It consists of a harrow-like frame suspended from a crosswise shaft pivoted to the chassis frame directly back of the engine and lowered into contact with the road by means of a system of levers controlled by a hand lever and notched quadrant in the driver's cab. The sharp, tooth-like points of the harrow dig into the ground and hold the car in place until the engine can be started again and the clutch thrown in. They also serve to hold the car until it gets under way. This eliminates the danger of starting under the same condition without the device, in which case the conventional brakes must be released before the clutch is thrown in. This might allow the car to gain sufficient backward momentum to prevent the engine from starting and permit the car to drop off the road if the brakes cannot hold it.—Popular Science Monthly.

MOTORTRUCKS ON HIGHWAYS

Prospective Operator Should Communicate With Service Commission as to Restrictions.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The prospective motortruck operator should communicate with the public service commission or such other body as may have jurisdiction over the operation of trucks in his territory and inform himself in advance as to legal restrictions covering the operation of trucks on the highways.

Finding Trouble.

A great many car owners in searching for trouble create more than they find. By that is meant that indiscriminate changing of adjustments usually gets the operator further away from the real cause of the trouble. The best piece of advice that can be offered the owner is to be sure what the trouble is and then start to rectify it.

Oiling Out-of-Way Holes.

Frequently it is desired to use an ordinary oil filler can with a metal spout in filling some out-of-the-way oil hole. By slipping a piece of rubber hose over the end of the spout almost any location can be reached.

Shift Cross Links.

It is a very good plan to shift the cross links of the tire chains from time to time. That is, move them so that they do not depend on the same link of the main chain all the time.

To Clean Battery Terminals.

A strong solution of washing soda is the best agent for cleaning battery terminals that have become corroded. After drying the terminals should be coated with vaseline.

Carriage of Farm Products.

The motor truck as a medium for the carriage of farm products is now assuming a permanent place in the general scheme of transportation.

MODEST AVOWAL.

"Is this the office of the Toadville Clarion?"

"Yes, sir," answered the rubicund old gentleman who was lounging in the doorway with a cornob pipe stuck in his mouth.

"And is it the leading paper here?"

"Sir," replied the old gentleman, with an impressive air, "I feel that it is a duty I owe myself and my family to tell of Toadville. Furthermore—ahem!—there is no other paper here."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

No Sense of Humor.

"Mrs. Jagsby."

"Well, Mr. Jagsby?"

"When I came home last night—er—

we'll say at a late hour, did I retire in good order?"

"In fairly good order, Mr. Jagsby, but I once saw a comedian on the stage try to catch his bed as it came round to him and I did not think his performance at all funny."

Long Sentences.

In "Les Miserables" Victor Hugo has one sentence of a hundred lines, and earlier in the book, in one of the chapters descriptive of Waterloo, there are over 50 lines without a full stop. England's record is held by the foreign enlistment act, one section of which reaches its six hundredth word.

UGLY CHARGE.

"I understand Mrs. Twobble and Mrs. Gadsbur have had a falling out."

"Alas, yes."

"Is it serious?"

"I fear so. Mrs. Twobble makes the charge that when Mrs. Gadsbur borrowed a quarter of a pound of butter she returned an inferior brand."

The Spendthrift.

You have to reap as you have sowed, And should you go the pace, You'll surely find the same old road Leads to the same old place.

Unfeeling Father.

"Have the Blitherbys named their new twins yet?"

"Yes, but they were not given the names applied to them by Mr. Blitherby when they first arrived."

"What did he call the precious pair?"

"'Trouble' and 'More of It.'"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Receptacle for Hairpins.

Mrs. Styles—This paper says that in front of a large London building there was recently found a pigeon's nest made of hairpins. Where do you suppose the pigeons found the hairpins?

Mr. Styles—Oh, I suppose a lot of women in the vicinity couldn't keep their mouths shut.

Caustic Words.

"Is the jury still out?"

"Yes," said the sarcastic lawyer for the defense. "And I'm not surprised."

"No?"

"When I looked in the faces of those jurors I could see there was 'nobody home.'"

Physician's High Privileges.

In England the only civilian who has a right to pass through marching troops is the court physician on his way to a royal residence. He can make even the household cavalry open their ranks to him.

SETTING THINGS RIGHT.

"I am told that you referred to me as an ogre."

"The idea!"

"Don't try to evade the issue, madam. Did you or did you not call me an ogre?"

"Certainly not. I wouldn't be so unkind. I merely said your face threw my little Christopher into convulsions."

Away With Him.

I do not care For Jasper Whizz. He always tells How great he is.

Mistaken.

Maud—Your friend, Miss Blank, going to be married? Why, I had the impression that she was a woman in her declining years.

Ethel—Oh, dear, no, she's in her accepting ones.

The Modern Psyche.

Cupid (breathlessly)—Quick. Another quiver of arrows, wifie!

Psyche (bursting into tears)—You made me what I am today—a mere amputated worker!

Keeps His Promises.

"Wiggins is a chap who will promise anything."

"But does he keep his promises?"

"He must; nobody sees or hears anything of them afterward."

Misunderstood.

Fat Old Lady—Could I get a seat near the stage, please.

Box Office—Why, certainly, what row do you want?

Fat Old Lady—Don't get fresh, young man.

Great Practice.

"Where did you learn such a curve?"

"Throwing paper wads around a girl's head to reach a boy sitting two seats in front."

He was then transferred to the Heavy Artillery where as corporal gunner he served to almost eighteen months overseas.

—The Union Congregational church of Weymouth and East Braintree has extended a pastoral call to Rev. J. C. Justice of Kingston to become its pastor. The church has been without a pastor since March 1, when Rev. Albert P. Watson resigned to accept a call to the Congregational church at Hatfield.

—The pastor of the Methodist church at East Braintree will begin a series of special evangelistic services Sunday evening, subject: "What is the matter with America?"

EAST WEYMOUTH and WEYMOUTH CENTER

—The Ladies Social Union of the White church held its opening social and entertainment last evening. A wood supper was served. "Beautiful Ireland" was the subject of the entertainment, presented under the direction of the Friendship Class, Mrs. Ford teacher. The program showed considerable work. Colored slides were used and Miss Lillie Taylor sang.

—Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Torrey have received word from Ponta Delgada, of their son James, who left Newport in August on the U. S. S. Bidgley for a cruise to Gibraltar, Italy and Turkey. We all wish Jimmie a good time, and hope to see his smiling countenance among us soon.

—At the 45 party at the Central Fire Station last week, seven tables were entered.

—The young people of Faith Mission church will observe Sunday, Oct. 12, with other Young Peoples Societies of the Christian and Missionary Alliance as a rally day. This will prevail all through the United States and Canada. Services in the chapel, 28 School street, on Sunday, at 2.30 and 7.30 o'clock, led by the young people. Speeches from abroad and singers together with home talent will be full of interest. All, both young and old are invited.

—Walter F. Miller, youngest son of Henry Miller, is recovering from anthrax, a disease uncommon in this part of the world and in nearly all cases fatal. He was stricken while he was handling a shipment of wool that came to the Wool Scouring plant from South America. It is said that only fifteen out of one thousand persons afflicted are cured, death coming within seventy-two hours after the poison sets in. Fortunately Dr. Libby who handled the case had just received a serum from Washington which he applied with success. Specialists who came out from Boston Tuesday expressed surprise at the wonderful improvement shown in the patient's condition.

We wouldn't care to return to the Old Oaken Bucket

There's a sentimental value attached to the old moss-covered utensil, but most of us prefer the cheaper and more convenient community method of reservoirs, pipes and faucets.

There's also a sentimental value attached to carrying home the groceries in a basket.

But when hundreds of housewives patronize a store it becomes more economical and more convenient for the store to maintain a community service in the shape of a delivery wagon.

Time and energy are saved—things which are mighty valuable in these days of busy housekeepers.

So that you get this and countless other services in our store.

One of these additional services is our knowledge of groceries. We know which brands are good and we tell you.

One of the good things is Ryzon Baking Powder. If you don't use an efficient baking powder you might blame the other ingredients we sell you for unsuccessful results.

When we recommend Ryzon to you we know just what you're going to say. "It's the best baking powder I ever used." We tested Ryzon because we knew it was creating a big stir all over the country. We soon saw why they called it, "the Perfect Baking Powder." It is thoroughly dependable, and economical at 40c per pound.

Monday, Oct. 13

Previous to the sugar shortage we advocated and advertised for people to buy sugar. Some took our advice. We now advocate the wise housewife to buy flour not on account of a shortage but all reports look like a higher market.

—Simon Edelstein is making alterations on the dwelling house occupied by him on North street.

—The 10 year old son of George Brown of Saunders street is at the Brighton Hospital with a bad case of diphtheria.

—Mrs. Leonard Parker is quarantined at her home with her young son who is ill with diphtheria.

—About 10.30 Wednesday evening two automobiles collided on Bridge street near Rosemont road, one of the machines turned turtle, but the driver miraculously escaped injury. At this point the road is torn up and this was presumably the cause of the accident.

—The small son of Charles Blakeney of Beals street is suffering from having run a needle into his foot while playing about the house.

—The old Burrill homestead now owned by Miss Adelaide Baxter is being rented to a fresh coat of paint.

—Arthur Sampson, 21, of North Weymouth has been elected manager of football by the Tufts A. A., to succeed F. Earle Conn, '20, who has left college. Sampson is captain of the varsity basketball team.

MONDAY CLUB.

The Monday Club held its first meeting of the season at Masonic hall, East Weymouth, on Monday afternoon. Rainy weather prevailed with the result of a light attendance. The 42 new members were present and are unanimous in their praise for the reception tendered them and the pleasing program rendered.

A scholarship fund of $50 was voted to be given to a pupil of the Weymouth High School, to be expended under the direction of the principal and the Superintendent of Schools. Mrs. Jennie Worster, a delegate to the General Confederation convention in the South, gave an interesting account of what occurred there.

Orchestral selections were given by Mrs. C. E. Merchant, piano, Miss Lena Thomas, violin; Miss Theodora Keith, cornet.

Miss Bessie Whiting pleased her audience with humorous and instructive readings.

Luncheon was served with Mrs. Harry M. Stetson as hostess, who was assisted by Mrs. Frederick L. Doucett, Mrs. Frederick L. Alden, Mrs. Edward P. Hunt, Mrs. George Perry and the following members of the social committee: Mrs. C. E. Stiles, Mrs. Wilson Beane, Mrs. Chas. Hollis, Mrs. Percy Cook, Mrs. Adrea Corino, Mrs. Edward Guttersen, Miss Carrie Robinson, Mrs. Charles W. Joy, Mrs. Emerson Dizer, Mrs. Henry Cottell and Mrs. Samuel Drew.

The Hospitality committee, Mrs. C. E. Style chairman intends to make the meetings of a most sociable nature, and the new members consider their first attempt a most successful one.

The ushers on Monday were Mrs. Parker T. Pearson, Miss Lillian Cantiss, Mrs. Arthur Cortell, Mrs. John McIsaac and Mrs. Walter Thompson.

Among the new members this year are Mrs. Lottie Tilden, Mrs. John Ahern, Mrs. Thomas Aldrich, Mrs. Leavitt W. Bates, Mrs. Franklin D. Barker, Mrs. Arthur C. Bicknell, Mrs. Otis L. Blanchard, Mrs. Cyril Bond, Mrs. Arthur Bryant, Mrs. Stephen C. Burgoyne, Mrs. Harley G. Carter, Mrs. George N. Cortell, Mrs. Henry C. Cottell, Mrs. Fred A. Cushman, Mrs. Emerson R. Dizer, Mrs. C. O. Drown, Mrs. George C. Dunham, Mrs. Frederick L. Fowle, Mrs. Myron P. Ford, Mrs. C. D. Harlow, Mrs. Henry I. Hubbard, Mrs. Frederick Humphrey.

Mrs. Edwin H. Loud, Mrs. Irving Loud, Mrs. Elmer Lunt, Mrs. Harry Mattson, Mrs. Lena G. McGill, Mrs. James Melville, Mrs. Gustaf E. Nelson, Mrs. William L. Nolan, Mrs. Manuel S. Page, Mrs. Francis B. Peyton, Mrs. Charles Phillips, Mrs. Napoleon Pichette, Mrs. A. Francis Pratt, Mrs. H. J. T. Pring, Mrs. Mary E. Saunders, Mrs. Florence R. Saunders, Mrs. Charles A. Spear, Mrs. Frank H. Sylvester, Mrs. Marcus E. Wight, and Mrs. Lewis S. Whitcomb.

CLAPP MEMORIAL.

The Ladies Gym. Classes under the direction of Miss Nellie Anderson met Tuesday afternoon and evening with a total attendance of sixty-six. Many more have enrolled, but were unable to attend this first lesson. There is still room for more, and we invite any who are thinking of joining to come and watch a class and see just what the work is.

The Ladies Bowling Club will meet for the first time this season on Thursday night, Oct. 16, and we want every member present.

Weymouth Heights

—Miss Ursula Marr of Portland, Me., has come to make her home this winter with her sister, Mrs. Paul Smith.

—Fred Lunt of Church street has been entertaining for the past week his cousin, Mr. Keene, from Auburn, Maine.

—Miss Mabel Kallach of Medford was a guest on Saturday and Sunday of her sister, Mrs. Parker T. Pearson.

—Miss Mary F. Loud of Commercial street is enjoying a visit from her nephew, Francis Loud.

—The Ladies Benevolent Society are holding a food sale at the home of Mrs. R. L. Steele of Church street this afternoon. Also the regular meeting will follow the sale.

—The Womans Missionary Society will hold a meeting next Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Parker T. Pearson.

—Mrs. R. A. Sutherland who has been making a visit with her niece Mrs. J. C. Nash, left on Wednesday to visit relatives in Quincy.

RALLY DAY CONCERT.

Last Sunday afternoon the Rally Day concert of the Old North Sunday School was a splendid service, the following program being rendered:

Songs and Scripture readings by the school.
Prayer, pastor.
Response, school.
Rally Day recitation, Theodore Bates.

Exercise, Miss White's Class.
Recitation, Louise Merrill.
Geography lesson, Miss Taylor's Class.
Recitation, Marion Perry.

Song, Primary Department.
Recitation, Dorothy Pearson.
Psalm 100, Miss Sladen's Class.
Greeting to the Cradle Roll, Miss Mary Humphrey.

Recitation, Elsie Emery.
Recitation, William Hutchinson.
Exercise, Miss Ries Class.
Song, "A Sunbeam," Junior Department.

Recitation, Marjorie Seabury.
Presentation of Diplomas, Miss Humphrey.

Salute to the Flag, School.
There were many who received diplomas for perfect attendance, four absences being allowed during the year. Miss Ruth Nash received one for nine years, Ruth Sladen seven, Florence Nash six, Robert Bates five, Theodore Bates four. Also there were other honored ones who received diplomas for one and two years who are on their way to many more years.

The pastor, Rev. Edward J. Yeager closed the service, each one feeling it had been a most interesting and profitable Rally Day.

LOVELL'S CORNER

—The Waneta Club commenced its second season with a most successful drama and musical comedy presented by members of the club assisted by Mr. Arthur L. Fish, accompanist. Wednesday evening in the vestry of the Porter M. E. church. The play entitled, "Love and Tea" by A. P. See, had a very excellent cast of the following: Misses Viola Johnson, Ella Stone, Marjorie White, Lezette White, Edith Smith and Messrs. Oswald Charwood and Roland Smith. The play was laid in the years 1775-1776. The costumes were of that period. A very appropriate song entitled, "In the Old Sweet Way" was very sweetly rendered by Misses Johnson and Stone. A comedy entitled, "The Customs Inspector" was enacted by Malcomb French and Roland Smith which kept the audience in gales of laughter. Two specialties "Aloha Lullaby" and "Hawaii Lullaby" were presented by six of the cast. The proceeds will be used for the benefit of the Lovell's Corner playground.

—Miss Weeks is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sherman.

—The Ladies Aid held their all-day sewing "bee" at the home of Mrs. Edward Hughes on Wednesday.

—The Improvement Association will hold their meeting at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Arthur S. Emig, next Tuesday evening.

—Thomas Roberts is the owner of an Overland car.

—Ralph Jennings was the week end guest of his aunt, Mrs. Charles Leach.

—Mrs. Markarian of Washington street has been confined to the house with a cold.

—The accident to Leonard W. Cain is reported in another column.

—The pageant "Youth and the New Day" at the Porter M. E. church last Sunday proved a very pleasing service. The full program was printed in the Gazette last week.

—Rather cool Wednesday and Thursday, but delightfully pleasant.

The KITCHEN CABINET

He was so human! Whether strong or weak, Far from his kind he neither sank nor soared, But sat an equal guest at every board, No beggar ever felt him condescend, No prince presume; for still himself he bare At mankind's simple level, and where'er He met a stranger, there he left a friend.

PIE GREAT AMERICAN DESSERT.

No matter what filling a pie contains, if the shell or crust is not flaky, rich and tasty the pie is a failure.

A Good Plain Paste.—Use one and one-half cupsful of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, six tablespoonfuls of fat and just cold water enough to mix well. Cut in the fat with two knives until it is fine and well mixed. Reserve a half cupful of this mixture and add the water to the rest; roll out a piece large enough to take the half cupful well sprinkled over it, then fold sides to the center, then ends to the center, and cut in halves. Roll out the under crust, add the filling and put on the thinly rolled upper crust. This method gives a very flaky crust with less than the usual pastry.

Mother's Apple Pie.—Fill the prepared pastry shell with sliced apples, add two or three tablespoonfuls of water and place the top crust. Bake and then carefully with a sharp knife cut around the crust and remove the top. Add sugar, spice, a tablespoonful of butter and replace the top. This pie will never run over and lose its sweetness on the oven bottom.

Fruit Pie.—This pie is best made with fresh fruit, but a cupful and a half of currants, raspberries, blueberries, or, in fact, any kind that has been put up uncooked will do. The recipe calls for one cupful of crushed fruit, one cupful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of flour, the yolks of two eggs and a little salt; put into the shell and bake, covering with a meringue made from the whites. The shell may be baked, the fruit cooked, then the meringue placed on top and browned and the pie is ready to serve. Either method will result in a good pie.

Ethereal Apple Pie.—Bake eight large tart apples and put them through a sieve, chill, then add three-fourths of a cupful of sugar and the whites of five eggs beaten stiff. Add a pinch of salt to the eggs when beaten. Add to the apple and bake in a buttered pudding dish. Serve with cream and sugar. This shell-less pie will be good for those who cannot enjoy pastry.

People have to live first before they can see, and they don't think until they are fed, and one needs always to have had enough turnips and cabbages to eat without the troubling about the getting them, in order to see in them anything except food.—Mrs. Wilkins.

FAVORITE FRENCH DISHES.

As for the French cook his business in life is to extract the utmost possibility from every article on the menu and present it in the most attractive form.

Bouillabaisse.—With us any fish, such as cod, fresh mackerel or any fine-grained fish will answer for this dish, although originally several sorts were generally used. Allow three pounds of fishfillets, mince two onions and one parsnip cut fine and fry them until a light brown. Add two large tomatoes, a bit of garlic, the juice of a lemon, half a teaspoonful of powdered saffron, some sprigs of parsley, and a bay leaf. Add one quart of boiling water and a cupful of light grape juice; cover closely and cook 20 minutes. Place diced toasted bread in the soup tureen, pour in the fish with the soup and serve hot.

Cream of Barley Soup.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, add two tablespoonfuls of flour and cook three minutes, stirring steadily. Then add one cupful of pearl barley and cook two minutes. Add slowly one pint of boiling water and one of milk, stirring until well blended and simmer gently for one hour. Rub through a sieve, return to the heat and add three pints of chicken stock, and one tablespoonful of cornstarch mixed with a little cold water. Boil up once and serve hot.

Apple Charlotte.—Peel and core ten fine apples and mince them fine. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, add one cupful of sugar, the grated rind of a half a lemon and half a teaspoonful of cinnamon. Stew in this sirup until they are soft. Mash fine, add two tablespoonfuls of apricot marmalade and let it cool. Butter a large mold, cut thin strips of bread, dip them in melted butter and line a mold, letting them lap a little. For the bottom lay the strips in the form of a star. Fill the mold with the prepared apple, cover with a large slice of buttered bread and bake in a moderate oven for 40 minutes. Turn out on a plate and dust with powdered sugar.

Undoubtedly, we believe that spiritual virtues should concern us more nearly than material ones; but equally do we believe that if a thing be done, it had best be well done, except it be a canvas back duck; and no housewife ever lost her title to future bliss through the keeping of a good table while she was on earth.—Owen Winter.

A WILDERNESS OF SWEETS.

Tortes are the cakes par excellence. They are rich in nuts, eggs, and crumbs, and when carefully made and baked are especially toothsome.

Walnut Torte.—Beat the yolks of six eggs with one cupful of sugar, add one-fourth of a pound of ground walnut meats and six grated lady fingers, two tablespoonfuls of flour sifted with one teaspoonful of baking powder. Add the juice and rind of half a lemon, cut and fold in the stiffly beaten whites and bake in layers in a moderate oven.

Filling.—Beat one egg yolk, add two tablespoonfuls of sugar, three-fourths of a cupful of milk; cook, stirring until the mixture coats the spoon; add three-fourths of a pound of chopped walnuts with a teaspoonful of vanilla for flavoring; put between the layers and on top.

Date Torte.—Rub 16 sliced dates to a smooth paste with two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice. Beat two whole eggs and seven yolks, add one and three-fourths cupfuls of sugar, beat well, add the dates, three tablespoonfuls of chocolate, and one teaspoonful each of cinnamon and allspice, and a cupful of cracker crumbs; stir well and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of seven eggs. Bake in a large springerle form.

Moss Torte.—Beat ten yolks of eggs with one cupful of powdered sugar until light; add a portion of six ounces of finely ground almonds and lastly the beaten whites of seven eggs. Bake in layers and use sweetened and flavored whipped cream for filling.

Angel Food.—Beat one cupful of egg whites until stiff, adding a quarter of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Sift one cupful of sifted flour with one-quarter of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar, add one cupful of sugar lightly to the beaten whites, a pinch of salt and a teaspoonful of flavoring; then fold in the flour. Bake in a tube pan 50 to 60 minutes in a moderate oven.

A layer cake (unless a torte) needs a quicker oven than a loaf cake. When putting a cake in the pan, especially a loaf cake, always leave a depression in the center, as it will rise first there, and make a hump; this method results in a flat, even shaped loaf.

Do you covet learning's prize, Climb her heights and take it; In ourselves our future lies— Life is what we make it.

GOOD THINGS FOR THE TABLE.

In the time of year when chestnuts are in season the pudding par excellence is

Nesselrode Pudding.—Make a custard of three cupfuls of milk, one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt and four egg yolks; cook, strain and cool; add one pint of thin cream, one-fourth of a cupful of pineapple sirup and one and one-half cupfuls of blanched chestnuts cooked soft in boiling water and put through a sieve. Line a two-quart melon mold with part of the mixture; to the remainder add one-half cupful of candied fruit cut in small pieces, one-quarter of a cup of sultana raisins and eight chestnuts broken in pieces and soaked in maraschino sirup for several hours. Fill the mold, cover, pack in salt and ice and let stand two hours. Serve with whipped cream flavored with maraschino sirup.

Jellied Chicken.—Dress, clean and cut up a four-pound fowl. Put in a saucepan with two slices of onion; cover with boiling water and cook slowly until the meat falls from the bones. When partly cooked add a half tablespoonful of salt. Remove the chicken, reduce the stock to three-fourths of cupful, strain and skim off the fat. Decorate the bottom of the mold with parsley and hard-cooked eggs, sliced. Pack in the meat, freed from skin and bone and sprinkled with salt and pepper. Pour over the stock and place the mold under a heavy weight. Keep in a cold place until firm. In warm weather add a teaspoonful of gelatin to the stock.

Medley Sandwich.—Take two-thirds of a cup of minced chicken, one-third of a cupful of minced ham and tongue; add cayenne, and enough mayonnaise to make smooth spread on buttered brown and white bread and make ribbon sandwiches.

Variations In Fall Styles

To say the least, suits for fall have been presented in greatly varying styles, much to the satisfaction of women who aspire to looking more slender than they really are, as well as those whose aspirations are all in the other direction. In spite of the persistence with which fashion artists draw attenuated ladies, in writhing poses, for our admiration, women continue sensible enough to object to looking angular and skinny. The designers of suits have been kind and there are new models for the too slender and the too stout figure. The possessor of a "model thirty-six," or any other model of good proportions, can choose any of the various styles.

At the right of the two suits, shown in the picture above, is a model that will simply shave off pounds from the stout figure. Long and gently curving lines, almost unbroken from head to heels, are cleverly calculated to deceive the eye and smooth out the sharp curves in stout figures. American women having insisted on longer skirts, Paris accepted their decree, and this suit takes advantage of the mode to go to an extreme of it. By this means the figure is lengthened. The coat follows the same strategy and note that the waist line is indicated as very long by the group of three narrow tucks in the back of the coat that end in an arrow head, or "crow toes," far below the normal waistline. Silk embroidery on two flat strips of cloth applied at the sides is in the same color as the suit. These bands are a concession or a recognition of the vogue for widened hip lines, but they do not actually widen the figure at all. The suit is made of dark brown tricot.

The model at the left is an interpretation of the Russian blouse suit, always dear to the thin woman. The plain skirt is shoe-top length. The coat has a full blouse and a skirt gathered in at the natural waist line, giving fullness about the hips. It is short enough to break the figure and prettily decorated with a round silk braid couched on. In this coat the choker collar is made of opossum fur and arranged to fasten up about the chin. In the other suit, fur is left out, but the popular choker collar is retained, made of the fabric and decorated with carefully done embroidery. For the blouse suit, one of those new cloths that have a silvery sheen, due to a napped surface of gray tone (which is used with all colors) looks particularly well with the gray tones in the fur collar.

Alas, yes! suits are expensive especially when embroidered. But clever women have been known to buy a plain suit and put embroidery on it themselves, thereby saving about $25 and presenting themselves with an exclusive design.

Ribbon for Costumes.

Ribbon is used to a considerable extent by American designers making up their autumn models. And a big use of ribbon prevails in the development of costumes for several important and extensive theatrical productions.

The business woman must usually be her own beauty doctor, and she need not regret this if she gives herself fifteen minutes time at the end of each day, just before retiring. The hands, as well as the face and scalp, must have systematic attention.

Many girls who do office work, or sell goods over a counter, injure their hands unnecessarily by not washing them often, for much damage is done the nails and skin by permitting an accumulation of dirt to remain in the pores for several hours.

When cleansing hands so stained, soap and water should not be the first application, for nothing but a soft grease will be effective.

The finger tips require several extra strokes. Rinsing must be thorough. Drying finishes the cleaning, but is not the simple process that many persons think, and in the manner of doing it lies half the secret of having pretty nails. Each finger must be taken separately, the towel rubbed down the sides, back and front, beginning at the top.

The common mistake is to begin at the finger base and rub up, which simply trains the cuticle down over the nails and thickens the tips. Every nail must be wiped individually, commencing at the top and pressing gently down to the crescent at the base of the nail.

File the Finger Nails.

To keep the nails in good condition, always file them, never use the scissors to cut. Cleanse under the nails with equal parts of lemon juice and water. Use an orange-wood stick; also keep the cuticle around the nails smooth. Polish the nails whenever necessary.

Nails that break easily must be given a course of olive oil. It should be rubbed into the finger tips each night. Massage well and occasionally give the fingers a bath in hot olive oil.

If it is not convenient to use the oil, vaseline is a good substitute. Whenever doing rough work the fingers should be protected with gloves. If it is not comfortable to wear them over the whole hand, fingers can be cut from old gloves.

Polish for Nails.

An inexpensive and harmless nail polish is made by thoroughly mixing together a half ounce of talcum powder, a half ounce of powdered starch, a half ounce of pulverized boric acid and 15 drops of tincture of carmine. Do not rub the nails until the sensitive flesh beneath burns, as this causes them to become dry and brittle.

CHURCH NOTES

EPISCOPAL Church of the Holy Nativity, 564 Main street, South Weymouth. Morning service and celebration of the Holy Communion at 10:30; celebrant, Rev. William W. Love, Sunday School at 12.

EPISCOPAL Trinity church, Weymouth. Rev. William Hyde rector. Service with sermon next Sunday at 10:30 A. M. Sunday School at 12. Subject, "Confirmation."

UNION CONGREGATIONAL Weymouth and Braintree Sunday morning service at 10:30 o'clock. We are pleased to announce that Rev. Oliver B. Loud will occupy the pulpit. He has many friends here who will be glad to hear him, and greet him as one of our boys. The Sunday School will meet at 12 o'clock. The Christian Endeavor will meet at 6 o'clock.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH Lincoln Square Sunday Rev. C. W. Allen of Hingham will occupy the pulpit. Morning service at 10:30. Sunday School at 12 o'clock. Y. P. S. C. E. at 6 o'clock. Evening service at 7:30. All are welcome. Prayer meeting on Thursday evening at 7:45.

FIRST METHODIST EPISCOPAL East Weymouth Rev. Frank Kingdon, pastor. Sunday October 12, morning service at 10:30, with sermon by the pastor on "The Wise Worker." Church Bible School at 12, in the vestry and George W. Dyer class for men in the auditorium. The Men's class will begin their studies in the New Testament which will constitute this winter's work in service in the vestry. Mrs. Kingdon will read a paper on "Alfred, Lord Tennyson" and the members will discuss his works. Evening service at 7:30; live music and an evangelistic sermon feature the hour. The evening's sermon will be on "Great Possessions."

Tuesday, 7:30 P. M., weekly meeting for devotional fellowship in the vestry. Topic of the evening, "The Old and New Commandment." This service continues our study in the Epistles of John.

Please note that the Sunday evening service is back at seven o'clock for the winter months. This is the church of the warm welcome.

OLD SOUTH UNION CHURCH South Weymouth O. A. Price, pastor. Go-To-Church Rally Sunday for church and Sunday School last Sunday brought a large increment to the attendance and interest for the day. A good program, music, sermon, short addresses on Religious Educational work from local leaders and teachers and by Mr. Converse representing the Norfolk School of Religious Education, made up the service which began at 10:30 and ended at 12:20.

As a result of the newly awakened interest in religious educational training, the Men's Class voted to pay the expenses of as many as six teachers or would be teachers who would attend the Norfolk School. The six persons were not difficult to secure. As a result six will go once a week to the above named school. In addition others expect to attend the Boston University School of Religious Education.

Next Sunday we trust the attendance will be kept up and large numbers will be present to hear Dr. Puddfoot who will be the preacher at 10:30. Mr. Puddfoot is known to many people of the town and those who have heard him will want others to hear him. Come also with the main desire to worship and pray and join in the hymns of love and praise.

The Sunday School will convene at 12. Classes are provided for one and all. The finest work of the church lies along this line of religious educational training, and all, especially parents should interest themselves in this work.

Sunday evening at 6 o'clock the Christian Endeavor holds a service which will interest both young people and others not so young. Thursday evening at 7:30 prayer and devotional service conducted by the pastor.

Friday evening of next week, Clark Union holds a special meeting at which time a speaker of National reputation in Young Peoples work will speak. In the afternoon of Friday Mr. Gates, the speaker, will hold a special conference with pastors and leaders. We especially urge, however, the attendance of young people of Weymouth at the evening service at 8 o'clock. Mr. Gates is worth anybody's time in hearing. Do not miss this. At 6:30 prompt there will be a banquet served in the vestry of the church by the Old South Union C. E. Society. If you wish to attend notify one of the C. E. members of said society.

PILGRIM CHURCH (Congregational) North Weymouth. Thomas Bruce Butler, minister. No one is urged to come—but all are cordially invited. Morning worship at 10:30. Subject "Voyages of Discovery." Sunday School following. Attention is called to the first meeting of the Men's Fellowship Class. This class will meet for just half an hour immediately after the church service. We hope to make it a half hour brimful of interest on live topics of the day, discussed in the light of modern thought. Opening subject, "The Bible and the Present Day—does it fit?" All shades of opinion welcomed. Come and tell us what you think. Christian Endeavor at 6. If you don't think it worth attending, come and make it so by your presence and interest. Evening service at 7. The regular meeting and supper of the Ladies Aid will occur on Wednesday. Midweek praise service Thursday evening at 7:45.

PORTER M. E. CHURCH Lovell's Corner. On Sunday morning at 10:30 the sermon subject will be "A Personal Question." The evening service at 7 will begin with a 15 minute song service. Last Sunday this "sing" was very helpful. Mr. Thomas Roberts has charge, appointing leaders as he sees fit. In recognition of "Harvest Sunday" the evening subject will be "Our Part in the Harvest."

In the evening at 6:15 the Epworth League meets. Miss Edith Smith is the leader; the topic being "Christianity and the Health of America." The prayer service on Thursday evening at 7:30. The study of the "Social Principles of Jesus" will be undertaken.

Conquest and Consequence will be the theme of the address at the regular Sunday service at 10:30 A. M. Elbert W. Whipple will conduct the service. A cordial invitation is extended to you. Church School will meet at 11:45 P. M. in Lincoln hall. Pictures will entertain and instruct the little ones. Let the little children come and be influenced by our wholesome service. Misses Esther Bicknell and Ethel Smith will be present at the meetings of the State Young People's Christian Union held at Worcester, Oct. 11, 12, and 13. Franklin Whitten and the pastor of this church will go on Sunday, the 12th, after the regular Sunday services, to remain until Monday night. This is the representative body of our young people throughout the State.

Those planning to attend the National Convention at Baltimore include John P. Hunt, Franklin Whitten and Mr. Whipple. Delegates will make verbal report to the church on the return. This convention extends from Oct. 20 to 25. This church will omit the preaching service on October 25. Church School will be held as usual. Young people of this church plan a social dance for Friday evening, October 17, in Pythian hall.

THIRD UNIVERSALIST CHURCH North Weymouth Mr. Whipple's subject at the regular Sunday service at 2:30 P. M. will be, "Conquest and Consequence." This day is the anniversary of Columbus, the discovery of America. Shall we come together or thought upon the great courage of such men as he. You will be welcome. All seats free.

Church School will assemble at 11:15 P. M. Our new handwork should be begun at once. Let your children start right the work of the year. Mrs. E. R. Sampson, superintendent. The Blues are out to take that supper from the Reds, for the Reds are already sure they'll win. Is your child a Red or a Blue? Help your side to win and save baking a pie at the end of the contest.

Mrs. John Leighton will represent our society at the National Convention at Baltimore, October 21, 22, 23 and 25. She will also attend Missionary and Church School Conventions held at the same time. It is possible that others may go also. Mr. Whipple will be in attendance for a part of the session.

Interest in the Ferry Beach Convention produced most interesting meeting last Sunday evening at the regular Y. P. C. U. period. Already a large delegation is planning to go to the Worcester State Convention, October 11, 12 and 13. Mrs. Dingwall and Mrs. Leinonen will go Saturday to stay through except as Miss Leinonen returns for a part of Sunday to sing.

Others planning to go by motor Sunday after the service, will be until Monday night with Mr. Whitten of Weymouth and Mr. Whipple, are Percy Ames, Addison Dingwall and Misses Mabel Sampson, Mary Ford and Elizabeth Holbrook. Miss Leinonen will return, also. This, with the First Church representatives, will constitute a delegation of eleven. Five go as official delegates, as well as Mr. Whipple, ex-officio, our full quota.

The church choir has been augmented by several new voices. Misses Hazel Smith, Garfield and Hessey. Older veterans are Misses Ford, Leinonen, Bailey, Holbrook and Dingwall, also Mrs. Frank M. Tupper. Those present on Sunday were pleased with the work accomplished through this action by our music committee.

The regular meeting of the Men's Club is coming on October 27. This will be the annual business meeting. We are glad Bartlett Spooner, formerly Miss Venus Thayer, and her husband of Quincy, Mass.

THE WHITE CHURCH (Congregational) East Weymouth With the coming of these crisp autumn days we are reminded that the season for enlarged church activities is now here. Let us bear in mind that the church is a cooperative Christian agency for the furtherance of the interests of our Christian civilization. Respect for established law, an ordered society, fidelity to our solemn obligations, and all sound and truly progressive thinking are made more real and secure through its contribution. Nor must we forget that the church is our best ally in aiding us to understand and to realize right relationship to God and to our fellowman. This is life's supreme interest. Give the church a chance to show you how it can help you in the way of right living, in these critical times of world destiny.

Morning service of worship with sermon by the pastor at 10:30; pastor's topic (by request) "What our Denomination is Doing." Church Bible School (in all departments) at noon. Midweek prayer and social service Tuesday evening at 7:30. A cordial welcome to all.

SECOND UNIVERSALIST CHURCH South Weymouth Services as usual Sunday October 12, at 10:30 A. M., in charge of Rev. Hendrik Vossema of Somerville Good music under direction of Miss Deane. Sunday School after the morning service, Ralph Hollis superintendent. Y. P. C. U. at 6 P. M. All are welcome at this church.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Quincy, 20 Greenleaf street. Morning service and Sunday School, at 10:45. Subject of the lesson-sermon "Are Sin, Disease and Death Real?" Golden Text: Matthew 10:7,8. As ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand. Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils: freely you have received freely give.

Testimony meeting every Wednesday evening at 7:45. Free public reading room, Hancock building, City square, 11 A. M. to 5 P. M., every week day, holidays excepted.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Norfolk, ss. Probate Court.

To the heirs at law, next-of-kin, and all other persons interested in the estate of

HENRY TERRELL late of Milton, in the County of Queens, and Province of Prince Edward Island deceased:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Thomas J. Terrell of Boston in the County of Suffolk, with certain papers purporting to be copies of the last will and testament of said deceased, and of the probate thereof in said Province of Prince Edward Island, duly authenticated, representing that at the time of his death, said deceased had estate in said County of Norfolk, on which said will may operate, and praying that the copy of said will may be filed and recorded in the Registry of Probate of said County of Norfolk, and letters testamentary thereon granted to him, without giving a surety on his bond;

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Dedham in said County of Norfolk, on the nineteenth day of November, A. D. 1919, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks in the Weymouth Gazette and Transcript, a newspaper published in Weymouth, Mass., the first publication to be thirty days at least before said Court.

Witness, James H. Flint, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this sixth day of October, in the year one thousand nine hundred and nineteen.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts Superior Court No. folks, ss. To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court, next to be held at Dedham within and for the County of Norfolk:

Respectfully libels and represents Emma O'Brien of Weymouth in said County, that she was lawfully married to Michael J. O'Brien of parts unknown at Weymouth on the tenth day of May, A. D. 1914, and thereafter, afterwards your libellant and the said Michael J. O'Brien lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit: at Weymouth aforesaid that your libellant has always been faithful to her marriage vows and obligations, but that the said Michael J. O'Brien being wholly regardless of the same at Weymouth on or about the first day of May, A. D. 1916 did utterly desert your libellant and has continued such desertion from that day to the date hereof, being more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel. Being of sufficient ability, grossly or wantonly and cruelly refuses and neglects to provide suitable support for your libellant and children.

Whereof your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Michael J. O'Brien, and for custody of minor children, Michael R. O'Brien, born February 17, 1914, Mary M. O'Brien, born February 12, 1916, and for such other orders and decrees as to your Honors shall seem meet, and as justice may require.

Dated the twenty-fifth day of August, A. D. 1919.

EMMA O'BRIEN.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Norfolk, ss. Superior Court. On the foregoing Libel, it is ordered that the Libellant give notice to the said Michael J. O'Brien, the Libellee, to appear before the Justices of this Court, to be held at Dedham, within and for said County, on the first Monday of November next, by causing an attested copy of said Libel, and of this order thereon, to be published once in a week, for three consecutive weeks, in the Weymouth Gazette, a newspaper printed at Weymouth, in the County of Norfolk, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said first Monday of November next, and further, by sending through the mail, as soon as may be, by a registered letter addressed to the last known residence of the said Michael J. O'Brien an attested copy of said Libel, and of this order thereon, that the said Michael J. O'Brien may then and there show cause why the prayer of said Libel should not be granted.

By the Court. R. B. WORTHINGTON, Clerk. September 5, A. D. 1919. A true copy of said Libel, and of Order thereon.

"Your Feet must be RIGHT, Son"

So says Uncle Sam to all of America's young manhood!

The Trupedic Shoe is the very best answer to this nation-wide demand for better fitting footwear, because it is built upon new principles which INSURE proper fitting shoes.

What distinctly marks Trupedics from the others, is the fact they are made in three types on the same style toe—infant, straight and outflare. Science says "All normal feet are of one of three types and not of one standard type." This fact is now established after years of scientific research and study.

The Trupedic Shoe, in the right type for your foot, will prove to be one of the most attractive, as well as best fitting shoes, you ever had. Come in and try on all THREE types.

With the State Guard On Duty in Boston

Several of the Weymouth men in the State Guard are members of A Company of Hingham or C Company of Quincy. The Gazette would be pleased to hear from them. The Hingham Journal publishes the following interesting letter from "The Man in the Ranks:"

Friday, Oct. 3, 1919.

On Duty With A Company at Police Station 11, Dorchester.

After three weeks of steady work at Station 11 the boys have settled down into a routine which has become that of the regular police.

This Dorchester district which we guard is a big one. It extends from Crescent Avenue, near the South Boston line to Newport Bridge and from Uphams Corner along Hancock, Bowdoin and Washington streets to Codman square, Peabody square and to Milton Lower Mills. Twenty guard posts are established. During the day these are covered by a single sentry. At night we work in pairs. Three platoons are working on eight hour shifts. Lieut. James of A Co. is commander of the First Relief which is on duty from 4 P. M. to midnight. The Second Relief is under Lieut. Lincoln of A Co. which goes on duty at midnight and comes off at 8 A. M. Lieut. Hodgkinson of C Co. of Quincy commands the Third Platoon which works on the streets from 8 A. M. to 4 P. M.

The guard details are sent to their posts by foot and by trolley. During the first two weeks a large omnibus was used but was too slow so that the men on the distant posts were kept out too long. Now they are relieved promptly.

Ten days ago Camp Calvin Coolidge was established on the Mt. Ida playgrounds, an ideal spot near by, commanding a fine view of Boston Harbor. Here three streets of tents were pitched by Sergt. Foster's detail. Wooden floors have been installed and cots with mattresses, blankets have been issued to each man but unfortunately they contain but a little wool.

During the late pleasant weather better conditions could not be desired but the first two nights under canvas, in the heavy rain, were very uncomfortable. Two inches of water under our cots was unpleasant to see upon awakening. Last Sunday many Hingham and Weymouth people took occasion to visit the camp.

While we were quartered in the Police Station things were quite different. The men were crowded in the third floor dormitory and during the change of Reliefs all were waked up by the resultant noise. The Relief coming off Guard had to occupy the cots of Relief going on duty. Hopeless confusion of blankets and equipment arose. At Camp Coolidge, however, each tent has two men and all their belongings. The bath-house on the grounds affords excellent bathing and sanitary accommodations. This is under our care.

Station 11 is also under our care, and it is safe to say that never has it been so clean from top to bottom as during our tour of duty. Reed and his detail are constantly on the job. Headquarters are still at the station and all the reliefs are posted from there. There also they report when coming off duty.

C Co. of Quincy is on duty with us here with a strength of 80 men and officers. Our strength is 64 men and officers. Steps are now being taken to secure the discharge of the schoolboys in our ranks, and this will mean putting a great deal more work on those of us who remain. Quite a few Hingham boys will be sent home, and we, here, would greatly appreciate it if a dozen or more men would volunteer to help us out for the duration of the emergency.

The overseas men with us are doing fine work, and indeed the younger men have taken hold of this policing duty efficiently. To handle the public properly requires headwork and judgment, and our boys are delivering well on every occasion their judgment is called upon.

It is needless to say that every man here fully appreciates what Hingham has done and is doing for them. The rubbers which were sent up by our original commander met a great need, and the boxes of chocolate, socks, handkerchiefs, etc., from the same source, were met with cheers.

The Red Cross, Y M. C. A. and K. of C. once a week furnish eats and smokes. Coffee is sent in each night. Sweaters have been furnished every man by the Red Cross, and tentative arrangements have been made for necessary sewing.

Should our services be needed here for any length of time further food seems likely, it will be imperative to have woolen uniforms. It is rumored that some will be issued us, but—like the rumor of new and modern rifles—"Rumor" is the word.

The general health of the boys is excellent as are their spirits.

It is a great source of satisfaction to us original members of A Co. to realize that we have stayed with the game until the State Guard has received the appreciation of the entire state. The duty on which we are engaged is one of importance to the whole country as is clearly shown by the daily papers from coast to coast. We sincerely hope that the employers of our men will recognize this fact and that our men will not suffer loss of income by their absence from business. We are giving up our business temporarily in order that ALL business may be carried on.

—The Man in the Ranks.

WEYMOUTH BOY WRITES INTERESTINGLY FROM SIBERIA

Mrs. Joseph P. Ford of 67 Raymond street, East Weymouth, has received the following interesting letter from her son David Ford, who is a medical officer with the American Red Cross in Siberia. It was not written for publication, but the Gazette is glad to print it in full:

Dear Mother:—
I am established for an indefinite time at Irkutsk. There seemed to be good reasons why I should not get on to Omsk as was originally planned.

Irkutsk is the biggest city in Siberia, lying on both banks of the Angara river, not far from Lake Baikal, built by Russian exiles. I don't know how many people there are here as times are very abnormal. No one knows. It is full of refugees and soldiers of all kinds. The hospitals are full of wounded and sick.

The railway yards are packed with long trains of box cars crowded with people of all classes. Refugees moving gradually eastward, to live—no one knows where. I believe that there are 75,000 people in Siberia living in box cars, and in long trains moving from town to town. Old men, women and children with the household furniture (or part of it) often a cow and chickens, make these cars their homes. The wood supply is piled on top; clothes lines alongside. Babies are born and are growing up to know nothing but life on the tracks.

Get used to them and forget to wonder what life these people knew before they had to flee. There are often signs of past luxuries—furs, dishes and samovars of good quality.

Our travelling west was slow and we had to be for many hours alongside and between these trains. It is a new and unpleasant world, but one gets accustomed to it more or less.

For five hot, dusty days we lay in the yards at Manchuria City fighting flies and bating each other. Sanitary habits are wholly unknown here and dysentery the common thing. About twenty-five per cent. of the people have it.

Here in Irkutsk I've been surgeon at the new military R. C. Hospital. Not chief, but second. Our patients are Russian soldiers wounded further west. All surgical and neatly all bad. They come in often from four to six weeks in sanitary trains and box cars. Some have had surgical attention elsewhere. All in the most extremely rotten shape.

I had hoped to get further west—to Omsk—nearer the fighting areas, but for reasons I'm unable to explain here; this is not to be yet.

Yesterday I received orders from Major Mangit, our Western Division chief to go back to Virmo Uinsk to establish and run a 150 bed hospital there. Military with a ward for civilians. Virmo Uinsk is on the other side of Lake Baikal about twenty-four hours from here by slow train. There are American troops there and nurses who had been waiting for something to do.

I've been waiting all day here in the train expecting to start anytime. Happily, a R. C. train is going back to Vladivostok, and I have a bunk on it. I thought at first I would have to go on the present Russian passenger train. Box cars crowded with all the mixed lot of human animals that can pack in. I would surely have surely got bugs and probably lost my baggage.

Outside, as I write, there is a little girl dressed in white and just now relatively clean, pulling a large wooly horse back and forth on wheels. A Chuch-Slovak soldier is trying to get her to ride while he pulls. Two of our guards are passing ball along the rails, while the man on post marches up and down with his rifle ready for use. Women are getting samovars going, to prepare tea for supper—each family is collecting by its car to help with the household duties.

Monday I took a trip in an auto, about twelve miles west along the railway. (One can't go away from the railway). Everywhere refugees and other crowded trains; and German prison camps. I got pictures of the biggest and oldest Trapist Monastery in Siberia.

There are some bright spots in this country. The climate is great, now; like late September at home. In another four weeks we go into winter quarters. There are wonderful colored effects and sunsets. The railway is a wonderful thing. The employees are paid little and over-worked. There is extreme congestion with refugees, freight, Jap, French, English Russian, Chuch-Slovak and American military and Bolshevik plots. Yet they "carry-on." We think them (Continued on Page 16)

The great seal of the United States was adopted by congress 136 years ago. The design was suggested by Sir John Prestwich, an eminent English antiquary, to John Adams, then United States minister to Great Britain, and was formally accepted by congress on June 20, 1782. It is composed of a spread eagle, bearing on its breast an escutcheon with 13 stripes, and in its talons holding an olive branch and 13 arrows, symbolic of both peace and war. The eagle, the suggestion of an Englishman, has ever since been the national bird of the United States.

"THE WORD OF A SOLDIER AND GENTLEMAN."

Synopsis.—In 1832 Lieutenant Knox of the regular army is on duty at Fort Armstrong, Rock Island, Ill., in territory threatened by disaffected Indians. The commandant sends him with dispatches to St. Louis. He takes passage on the steamer Warrior and makes the acquaintance of Judge Beaucaire, rich planter, and of Joe Kirby (the Devil's Own), notorious gambler. Knox learns Judge Beaucaire has a daughter, Eloise, and a granddaughter, Rene, offspring of a son whom the judge has disowned. Rene's mother is a negress, and she and her daughter, never having been freed, are slaves under the law, although the girls have been brought up as sisters. Kirby induces the judge to stake his plantation and negro servants on a poker hand unfairly dealt by Joe Carver, Kirby's partner. Kirby accuses the judge of cheating. Beaucaire, infuriated, drops dead. Knox tries to induce Kirby to give up his stolen winnings. Kirby and Carver throw Knox overboard. The lieutenant swims ashore and reaches a hut. Knox lies unconscious for ten days. Recovering, he finds he is in a cabin owned by Pete, a "free nigger," who had shot him, mistaking him for an enemy. His dispatches have been forwarded. Recovering from his wound, Knox sends Pete to bring Haynes, Beaucaire's lawyer, and they arrange, with Pete's help, to get the women to the cabin of an abolitionist, Amos Shunk, before Kirby comes. At the Beaucaire place Knox overhears a conversation between the sheriff and his deputy, and learns the truth about the situation. He is witness to an interview between Kirby and Rene Beaucaire.

CHAPTER VI—Continued.

"I know," she said distinctly, "I am no longer a free white woman; I am a negro and a slave."

"Oh, you know that, do you? Then you must also be aware that you are my property. Perhaps it will be well for you to remember this in answering my questions. Now tell me who informed you of all this?"

"I cannot answer."

"Cannot! You mean you will not. Well, young woman, I'll find means to make you, for I have handled your kind before. Where is Eloise Beaucaire?"

"Why do you seek to find her? There is no slave blood in her veins."

"To serve the necessary papers, of course."

He spoke incautiously, urged on by his temper, and I marked how quickly her face brightened at this intelligence.

"To serve papers! They must be served, then, before—before you can take possession? That is what I understood the sheriff to say. Then I am not really your slave—yet?" her voice deepening with earnestness and understanding. "Oh, so that is how it is—even if I am a negro I do not belong to you until those papers have been served. If you touch me now you break the law. I may not be free but I am free from you. I am glad to know that!"

"And d—n a little good it is going to do you," he growled. "Sheriff or no sheriff, my beauty, you are going to St. Louis with me tonight; so I advise you to keep a grip on that tongue of yours. Do you think I am going to be fooled altogether by a technical point of law? Possession is the main thing, and I have you where you can't get away. You hear me?"

She had not moved, although her form had straightened and her hand no longer rested on the table. Kirby had stepped close in front of her, his eyes glowing with anger, his evident intention being to thus frighten the girl into compliance with his wishes, but her eyes, defiant and unafraid, looked him squarely in the face.

"I certainly hear," she replied calmly. "Your voice is sufficiently distinct. I am a slave, I suppose, and in your power; but I despise you, hate you—and you are not going to take me to St. Louis tonight."

"What can stop me? The sheriff? Puh! a few dollars will take care of him. The judge is a friend of mine."

"It is not the sheriff—nor the judge; I place reliance on no friend of yours."

He grasped at her arm, but she stepped back quickly enough to avoid contact, and the red lips were pressed together in a thin line of determination. Her hand had suddenly disappeared within the folds of her skirt; but the angry man, apparently blinded by the violence of his passion, his eagerness to crush her spirit, thought only that she counted on outside aid for deliverance.

"You silly little fool," he snapped, his mustache bristling. "Why, what could you do to stop me? I could break your neck with one hand. So you imagine someone is going to save you. Well, who will it be? Those yokels down at the Landing? Haines the lawyer? You have a surprise up your sleeve for me, I suppose! H—! it makes me laugh; but you might as well have your lesson now as any other time. Come here, you wench!"

He caught her arm this time, brutally jerking her toward him, but as instantly staggered backward, grasping at the table, the flash of anger in his eyes changing to a look of startled surprise. A pistol was leveled full in his face, the polished black barrel shining ominously in the light of the overhead lamp.

"Now perhaps you know what I mean," she said. "If you dare to touch me I will kill you like a dog. That is no threat; it is true as God's gospel," and the very tone of her voice carried conviction. "You may say I am a slave—your slave! That may be so, but you will never possess me—never! Life means nothing to me any more, and I never expect to go out of this house alive; I do not even care to. So I am not afraid of you. Do not drop your arms, you low-lived cur, for you have never been nearer death in all your miserable life than you are now. God knows I want to kill you; it is the one desire of my heart at this moment to rid the earth of such a beast. But I'll give you one chance—just one. Don't you dare call out or answer me. Do what I say. Now step back—back along the table; that's it, a step at a time. Oh, I knew you were a cowardly bully. Go on—yes, clear to that window; don't lower those hands an inch until I say you may. I am a slave—yes, but I am also a Beaucaire. Now reach behind you and pull up the sash—pull it up higher than that."

Her eyes dilated with sudden astonishment and terror. She had caught sight of me, emerging from the black shadow just behind her victim. Kirby also perceived the quick change in the face fronting him, read its expression of fright, and sought to twist his head so as to learn the truth. Yet before he could accomplish this or his lips could give utterance to a sound, my hands closed on his throat, crushing him down to the sill, and throttling him into silence between the vise of my fingers.

CHAPTER VII.

To Save a "Nigger."

It proved to be a short, sharp struggle, from the first the advantage altogether with me. With all the old-time dislike in my heart, all the hatred aroused by what I had overheard, I closed down on his throat, rejoicing to see the purple of his flesh turn into a sickening black, as he fought desperately for breath and as he lost consciousness and ceased from struggle. I was conscious of a pang in my wounded shoulder, yet it seemed to rob me of no strength but only added to my ferocity. The fellow rested limp in my hands. I believed I had killed him, and the belief was a joy as I tossed his helpless body aside on the floor and stepped through the open window into the room.

In my heart I hoped he was dead, and in a sudden feeling of utter contempt I struck the inert body with my foot. Then, as my eyes lifted, they encountered those of the girl. She had drawn back to the table, startled out of all reserve by this sudden apparition, unable to comprehend. The pistol yet remained clamped in her hand, while she stared at me as though a ghost confronted her.

"Who—who are you?" she managed to gasp in a voice which barely reached my ears. "My God! who—who sent you here?"

"It must have been God," I answered, realizing instantly that I needed to make all clear in a word.

My Hands Closed on His Throat, Crushing Him Down to the Sill.

"I came only to help you and was just in time—no doubt God sent me."

"To help me? You came here to help me? But how could that be? I—I never saw you before—who are you?"

I stood straight before her, my eyes meeting her own frankly. I had forgotten the dead body at my feet, the incidents of struggle, the pain of my own wound, comprehending only the supreme importance of compelling her to grasp the truth.

"There is no time now to explain all this, Miss Rene. You must accept the bare facts—will you?"

"Yes—I—I suppose I must."

"Then listen, for you must know that every moment we waste here in talk only makes escape more difficult. I tell you the simple truth. I am Steven Knox, an officer in the army. It chanced I was a passenger on the boat when Judge Beaucaire lost his life. I witnessed the game of cards this man won, and afterward, when I protested, was attacked and flung overboard into the river by Kirby here and that fellow who is outside guarding the door. They believe me to be dead; but I managed to reach shore and was taken care of by a negro—'Free Pete' he calls himself; do you know him?"

"Yes—oh, yes; he was one of the Carlton slaves." Her face brightened slightly in its bewilderment.

"Well, I knew enough of what was bound to occur to feel an interest, and tonight he brought me here for the purpose of warning you—you, your mother and Eloise Beaucaire. He has his cart and mule out yonder; we intended to transport you across the river, and thus start you safely on the way to Canada."

"Then," she said slowly, seeming to catch at her breath, her voice trembling, "then it must be really true what these men say—Della is my mother? I—I am a slave?"

"You did not really know? You were not warned by anyone before their arrival?"

"No, there was no warning. Did anyone in this neighborhood understand?"

"Haines the lawyer did. He furnished me with much of the information I possess. But I am the one puzzled now. If the truth was not known to any of you how does it happen the others are gone?"

"So far as I am aware that is merely an accident. They walked over to the old Carlton place early this evening; there is sickness in the family, and they hoped to be of help. That is everything I know. They were to return two hours ago, for I was here all alone, except for the negroes in their quarters. I cannot conceive what has occurred—unless they have learned in some way of the trouble here."

"That must be the explanation; they have hidden themselves. And these men told you why they came?"

"The only one I saw at first did. He came in all alone and claimed to be a deputy sheriff. I was terribly frightened at first, and did not at all understand; but I questioned him and the man liked to talk. So he told me all he knew. Perhaps I should have thought he was crazy, only—only some things had occurred of late which led me to half suspect the truth before. I—I wouldn't believe it then, but—I made him repeat everything he had heard. Horrible as it was I—I wanted to know all."

"And you acknowledged to him that you were Rene Beaucaire?"

Her dark eyes flashed up into my face questioningly.

"Why—why, of course. I—I could not deny that, could I?"

"Perhaps not; yet if none of them knew you, and you had claimed to be Eloise, they would never have dared to hold you prisoner."

"I never once thought of that; the only thing which occurred to me was how I could best protect the others. My plan was to send them warning in some way. Still now I am very glad I said I was Rene."

"Glad! Why?"

"Because it seems it is Eloise they must first find to serve their papers on. They dare not take away the slaves until this is done. As for me, I am nothing—noting but a slave myself; is that not true?"

To look into her eyes, her face, and answer was a hard task, yet one I saw no way to evade.

"Yes; I am afraid it is true."

"And—and then Della, the housekeeper, is actually my mother?"

"That is the story as it reached me."

She held tightly to the table for support, all the fresh color deserting her face, but the lips were firmly set and her head remained as proudly poised as ever above the round throat. Whatever might be the stain of alien blood in her veins, she was still a Beaucaire. Her eyes, filled with pain as they were, met mine unflinchingly.

"And—and knowing all this, convinced of its truth—that—that I am colored," she faltered, doubtfully, "you came here to help me?"

"I did; that can make no difference now."

"No difference! Why do you say that? Are you from the North, an abolitionist?"

"No; at least I have never been called one or so thought myself. I have never believed in slavery, yet I was born in a southern state. In this case I merely look upon you as a woman—as one of my own class. It does not seem as though I could ever consider you in any other way. You must believe this."

"Believe it! Why, you and I are caught in the same net. I am a slave to be sold to the highest bidder, and you—you have killed a man to save me. Even if I was willing to remain and face my fate I could not now, for that would mean you must suffer."

And—and you have done this for me."

My eyes dropped to the upturned face of Kirby, on which the rays of light rested. The flesh was no longer black and horrid, yet remained ghastly enough to increase my belief that the man was actually dead—had perished under my hand. He was not a pleasant sight to contemplate, flung as he had been in a shapeless heap, and the slight brought home to me anew the necessity of escape before those others of his party could learn what had occurred.

"From whatever reason the deed was done," I said, steadying my voice, "we must now face the consequences. As you say, it is true we both alike have reason to fear the law if caught. Flight is our only recourse. Will you go with me? Will you trust me?"

"Go—go with you? Where?"

"First across the river into Illinois; there is no possible safety here. In a way your danger is even more serious than mine. I have not been seen—even Kirby had no glimpse of my face—and might never be identified with the death of this man. But you will become a fugitive slave and could be hunted down anywhere this side of Canada."

"Then being with me would add to your danger."

"Whether it will or not counts nothing; I shall never let you go alone."

She pressed the palms of both her hands against her forehead as though in a motion of utter bewilderment.

"Oh, I cannot seem to realize," she exclaimed. "Everything is like a dream to me—impossible in its horror. This situation is so terrible; it has come upon me so suddenly I cannot decide; I cannot even comprehend what my duty is. You urge me to go away with you—alone?"

"I do; there is no other way left. You cannot remain here in the hands of these men; the result of such a step is too terrible to even contemplate. There are no means of determining where the others are—Della and Miss Eloise. Perhaps they have had warning and fled already; I urged desperately."

Her eyes were staring down at Kirby's body.

"Look, he—he is not dead," she sobbed excitedly. "Did you see then—one of his limbs moved, and—and—why, he is beginning to gasp for breath."

"All the more reason why we should decide at once. If the fellow regains consciousness and lives, our danger will be all the greater."

"Yes, he would be merciless," her lips parted, her eyes eloquent of disgust and horror as she suddenly lifted them to my face. "I—I must not forget that I—I belong to him; I am his slave; he—he, that hideous thing there, can do anything he wishes with me—the law says he can." The indignant color mounted into her face. "He can sell me, or use me, or rent me; I am his chattel. Good God! think of it! Why, I am as white as he is, better educated, accustomed to every care, brought up to believe myself rich and happy—and now I belong to him; he owns me, body and soul."

She paused suddenly, assailed by a new thought, a fresh consideration. "Is it so, is it the law that these men can take possession of nothing here until after Eloise has been found and their papers served upon her?"

"Yes, I believe it is," I said. "She is the legal heiress of Judge Beaucaire; the estate is hers by inheritance, as I am told there was no will. All this property, including the slaves, would legally remain in her possession until proper steps had been taken by others. Serving of the papers would be necessary. There is no doubt as to that."

She drew a deep breath and stepped toward me, gazing straight into my face.

"I believe in you," she said firmly. "And I trust you. You look like a real man. You tell me you serve in the army—an officer?"

"A lieutenant of infantry."

She held out her hand and my own closed over it, the firm, warm clasp of her fingers sending a strange thrill through my whole body. An instant she looked directly into my eyes, down into the very soul of me, and what I read in the depths of her brown orbs could never find expression in words. I have thought of it often since—that great, dimly lighted room, with the guard at the outer door; the inert, almost lifeless body huddled on the floor beside us, and Rene Beaucaire, her hand clasped in mine.

"Lieutenant Knox," she said softly, yet with a note of confidence in the low voice, "I am going to trust you absolutely; there are reasons why I do decide which I cannot explain at this time. I have not known you long enough to venture that far. You must accept me just as I am—a runaway slave and a negress, but also a woman. Can you pledge such as I your word of honor—the word of a soldier and a gentleman?"

"I pledge it to you, Rene Beaucaire," I answered soberly.

"And I accept the pledge in all faith. From now on whatever you say I will do."

I had but one immediate purpose in my mind—to escape from the house as quickly as possible, to attain Pete's cart at the edge of the woods, and be several miles up the river, hidden away in some covert before daylight, leaving no trail behind. It would prove decidedly to our advantage if I was not seen or recognized. The very mystery, the bewilderment as to who had so viciously attacked the gambler and then spirited away the girl, would serve to facilitate our escape.

I stooped and removed a pistol from Kirby's pocket, dropping it, together with such ammunition as I could find, into one of my own. The man by this time was breathing heavily, although his eyes remained closed, and he still lay exactly as he had fallen.

"Keep your own weapon," I commanded her. "Hide it away in your dress. Now come with me."

She obeyed, uttering no word of objection, and stepping after me through the open window onto the narrow balcony without. I reached up and drew down the shade, leaving us in comparative darkness. The night was soundless and our eyes, straining to pierce the black void, were unable to detect any movement.

"You see nothing?" I whispered, touching her hand in encouragement. "No evidence of a guard anywhere?"

"No—the others must still be out in front waiting."

"There were only the four of them, then?"

"So I understood. I was told they came up the river in a small keelboat, operated by an engine, and that they "Can You Pledge Such as I Your Word of Honor—the Word of a Soldier and a Gentleman?"

anticipated no resistance. The engineer was left to watch the boat and be ready to depart downstream at any moment."

"Good; that leaves us a clear passage. Now I am going to drop to the ground; it is not far below. Can you make it alone?"

"I have done so many a time."

We attained the solid earth almost together and in silence.

"Now let me guide you," she suggested, as I hesitated. "I know every inch of the way about here. Where is the negro waiting?"

"At the edge of the wood where the wagon road ends, beyond the slave quarters."

"Yes, I know; it will be safer for us to go around the garden."

She flitted forward, sure-footed, confident, and I followed as rapidly as possible through the darkness, barely keeping her dim figure in sight. Our feet stumbled over the ruts of a road, and I seemed to vaguely recognize the spot as familiar. Yes, away off yonder was the distant gleam of the river reflecting the stars. This must be the very place where Pete and I had parted, but—where had the fellow gone?

"Here is where he was directed to wait," I explained hurriedly. "I am sure I am not mistaken in the spot."

"Yet he is not here, and there is no sign of him. You left no other instructions except for him to remain until your return?"

"I think not—oh, yes, I did tell him if you women came without me he was to drive you at once to the boat and leave me to follow the best way I could. Do you suppose it possible the others reached here and he has gone away with them?"

She stood silent and I strove by peering about to discover some marks of guidance, only to learn the uselessness of the effort. Even a slight advance brought no result, and it was with some difficulty I even succeeded in locating her again in the darkness—indeed, only the sound of her voice made me aware of her immediate presence.

"The negro's boat is some distance away, is it not?"

"Four miles, over the worst road I ever traveled." A sudden remembrance swept into my mind, bringing with it inspiration.

Love's Labor Lost.

A young and enthusiastic golfer at a dinner party started to enumerate to his partner the details of a golf match that he had been playing that day. It was not until dessert was brought in that he suddenly bethought himself that he had been talking all the time; indeed, the young lady at his side had not said a single word during the progress of the meal. "I am afraid I have been boring you with this talk," he said in half apology. "Oh, no—not at all!" was the polite response. "Only, what is golf?"

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE TABLE'S HOLIDAYS.

"It's funny," said the table, "but I didn't like it at all."

"What didn't you like?" asked the arm chair.

"You know," said the table, "that I am a little tea table."

"Yes, I know that," said the arm chair.

"Well so far, so good."

"What do you mean by that?" asked the arm chair. "I am afraid I do not understand. You know I'm rather lazy and not one for thinking much."

"I mean," said the table, "that you understand what I have told you thus far."

"But you've only told me you were a tea table so far," said the arm chair.

"That's so," agreed the tea table. "But you understand me thus far and so I say so far, so good."

"Ah, yes," said the arm chair, slowly, "now I understand. But you mustn't be too quick with me, for as I said before I am lazy. I like to sit back and do nothing, and everyone who uses me feels the same way. It's the way I make them feel—my way."

"I know that," said the tea table. "Well, I got all tired out," it continued. "I wasn't used as a tea table only. I was used for after-dinner coffee, and I was used when folks had birthdays and wanted to fix their birthday presents on a table where they could show off their presents to their friends."

"Then I was used as a table for sewing and one person used me all the time to put her knitting bag on."

"I was used for books and I was used for meals which some people had when they were ill in bed."

"You see the whole trouble was that I was in a house where there were a great many people and they all liked to use me. What is more they could move me around easily because I was so light."

"Aren't you still light?" asked the arm chair. "I thought that was why we always had gotten along so well together. I'm a light arm chair and you are a light weight, or in other words there isn't so much to you. You are light in your table brains and all of that."

"Of course I am, and I am still light," said the little tea table. "I've no doubt that that is why we are such good friends, just as you have said it."

"Then what is the trouble?" asked the arm chair.

"I grumbled," said the tea table. "I grumbled and said I wished I had been a big tea table which was heavy and had to be wheeled about and that my front wheel would cause a good deal of trouble by going all around in the wrong way. You see I am a little tea table, a very little one, and I fold up and can be lifted around as I said before. I am a good-natured little table."

"Then too, I am pretty. I hope you won't think that it is conceited of me to say so."

"I won't," said the arm chair. "I think I am good-looking myself."

"As I have said I grumbled about being used so much and for this and that and for each person who happened to want to use me."

"But do you know that the people put me away for some time when they had a great many summer visitors and when they didn't use me at all."

"Well, then I felt dreadfully. If they had gone away and I had simply been idle with the rest of the furniture I wouldn't have minded. But they were all here and just didn't use me."

"I believe they must have known I had grumbled. Well, I didn't like my holidays at all. And I hope no one will ever hear me say again I am used for too many purposes and by too many people."

Just at that moment the mother of the family came up to the little table and said,

"Let's get out the table for the birthday presents."

And the little table creaked and said to the arm chair, "Now, I'm happy!"

FORMER RESIDENT.

The following article concerning William Chessman is from a paper published at Helena, Montana, and will be read with interest by the older people of Weymouth and Braintree, as Mr. Chessman is a native of Weymouth, and has made many visits here since he went West, and is now very much interested in Weymouth.

William A. Chessman, a pioneer of Montana and one of the early builders of the Capital city, celebrated his eighty-ninth birthday last Tuesday. Though retired from active business pursuits for a number of years, Mr. Chessman still is interested in the growth and prosperity of Helena, toward which he gave his best efforts.

Helena Lodge, No. 3, A. F. and A. M., of which Mr. Chessman is a member and for years one of its most ardent workers, remembered the anniversary with a beautiful bouquet of roses. Accompanying the floral remembrance was the following letter:

"Helena, Mont., Aug. 18, 1919.
"Mr. William A. Chessman, Helena, Mont.

"Dear Brother Chessman:
"Helena lodge No. 3 deems itself indeed fortunate and highly privileged in being permitted to extend to you its felicitations on this, your eighty-ninth birthday. It is given to but few to reach four score and nine, and to still fewer to reach that age with faculties practically unimpaired. The Grand Architect of the Universe has dealt kindly with you, and it is our sincere wish and earnest hope that His goodness in this respect may continue for many years. Four times in the past did your lodge honor itself in placing upon your shoulders the duties of master, a distinctive unique in its history and perchance never again to be bestowed. While we now miss you from our frequent gatherings we are, nevertheless, appreciative of the fact that in our present day phenomenal growth and prosperity we are but reaping that which was sowed by you and others of the old time craftsmen representing a type of citizenry all too few in these days of turmoil.

"The undersigned, master and secretary, respectively, representing 332 of your brethren, transmit to you this and through the medium of the bouquet of roses—the queen of flowers, whose language is more eloquent than mere words—our best wishes for your continued health and happiness.

Fraternally,
"C. W. MAHAFFEY, W. M.
"A. C. SCHNEIDER, Secretary."

LICENSES FOR FISHERMEN.

The act passed by the Legislature this year (Chapter 296, Acts of 1919) extending the license requirement to fishermen as well as to hunters, will affect a large number of people throughout the Commonwealth. To all those who pursue the sport of fishing a resume of the provisions of the law will be of interest.

1. The act takes effect Oct. 1, 1919.
2. It provides that all persons must have a license to hunt, or to fish in any inland waters of the Commonwealth stocked since Jan. 1, 1910 by the commissioners on fisheries and game, with few exceptions.

OUR BOYS IN MAINE.

"Twas on an August morning,
A morning clear and bright,
Three boys left together,
Looking for fortune and sights.

They had only their car fare
One sandwich, one night's bed,
But bravely stood the action,
These boys named Nelson and Fred.

They landed in the evening,
In the state of Maine to roam;
They found things so much different
Than they were at home.

But still they were no slackers,
They kept right on ahead,
And the last accounts we heard,
They were earning their daily bread.

We wish them best of wishes,
And their fortune they'll find
So they'll come home a smiling
To these friends they left behind.

Encouraging Bolshevism

Everything that falsely encourages unrest also encourages bolshevism.

Misunderstanding of American industrial organization, and of its benefits to mankind, leads to unrest, dissatisfaction, and radicalism.

For example, the Federal Trade Commission tells the public that the large packers had an agreed price for lard substitute (made of cotton-seed oil.)

It reproduces letters taken from the files of one of the packers, showing that such agreed price existed.

But it failed to mention that the agreed price was determined at the request of and in co-operation with the Food Administration!

Even the Department of Justice, in its unjust attempt to create prejudice against the packers, has made public these same letters, with no explanation.

How long must this kind of misrepresentation continue? In so far as it is believed, it not only breeds discontent, but results in injustice to our industry.

How more fitting can we give expression to the reverent emotions of our grateful hearts towards those noble men and women who (to borrow the words of an eminent statesman, applied to revolutionary ancestors) "were willing themselves to endure the toil and incur the hazard, that we and our descendants, their posterity, might reap the harvest and enjoy the increase," than by this festival gathering on the natal day of the glorious nation their labors so largely contributed to establish; here to recount their deed of heroism and sacrifice; to study for ourselves the lesson of their lives, and to teach it to our children,—the lesson of supreme devotion to duty, heedless alike of transitory interests and of human commands,—obedient only to conscience and to God.

In this spirit we celebrate our anniversary; in this spirit we joyously welcome you, our honored guests. Whether now returning to your native soil,—to your ancestral homes,—or whether, by our own choice, your lot has heretofore been cast with ours, we, with fraternal hearts, welcome you back to these pleasant scenes, and to an equal participation with our most favored citizens in all the rights and privileges, the duties and honors, of this memorial day.

But especially, we would tender our most cordial thanks to those, eminent in public and private life, who, being attracted neither by the claims of former residence or of nativity within her borders, have kindly responded to our invitation by their presence and sympathy on this birthday festival of our Alma Mater. And to all from abroad, whether neighbors or strangers, distinguished or unknown to fame, we extend our hearty greeting and welcome.

But fellow-citizens, to us, mainly, is committed the duty—may I not rather say the high privilege—of cherishing, with a jealous care,—of defending, perpetuating, magnifying, the honor and fair fame which are the chiefest jewels in the coronet of our venerable town. If by the observances of this day we shall be stimulated to new endeavors, and strengthened for renewed efforts to discharge worthily the exalted trust which, by the favor of a kind Providence and the labors of an honest ancestry, have been confided to our keeping, then it shall not be in vain that we celebrate, today, the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the settlement of Weymouth.

Prayer was then offered by Rev. Elbridge P. McElroy, pastor of the First Congregational Church in East Weymouth, and the following hymn, composed for the occasion, by Gilbert Nash, Esq., a native of Weymouth was sung by the choir:—

Five times have fifty years,
Joy-crowned or sad with tears,
Fled swift away,
Since yonder ocean bore
Our fathers to this shore,
Where, honor we once more,
That natal day.

They found a desert here,
And shared their homely cheer
In the wild waste,
Their toil, through faith and prayer,
Made it a garden fair;
And we, their names who bear,
Us fruitage taste.

No pile, in stately grace,
Stands forth to mark the place
Where first they trod;
But yon old church-tower's bell,—
Yon school, by memory's spell,
These living hearts, may well
Point out the sod.

Small need of monument
To speak the name they lent
To this dear spot,
If their unsullied fame,
Their scorn of wrong and shame,—
If each home-altar flame Proclaim it not.

Brave deed and word, sincere
Their worthy record bear
In lines more sure—
Faithful in every trust,
In act and purpose just;—
We honor most their dust
By lives as pure.

Thanks for those noble sires!
Thanks for their altar fires!
God's precious gifts!
Now let the praises sound
That in our hearts abound,
Till heaven's blue vault profound,
The chorus lifts.

COUNTY TREASURER.

The vote of the Republican caucus for nominee for county treasurer was overwhelmingly for Frederic C. Cobb of Dedham. He received 2,566 to 2,440 for Kemp, and 1,603 for Harding.

ON A NEW VENTURE.

Ty Cobb, the greatest of all base ball players, has decided to take up for a winter pastime, the selling of automobile tires, and as the "Georgia Peach" has never been satisfied with anything but the best, he has secured the exclusive agency in Augusta, Georgia, for the famous Pennsylvania Vacuum Cup Tires and "Ton Tested" Tubes.

Mr. Cobb has with him as his partner in business Mr. Sanford, who is well known to everybody in Augusta and was the principal of the High School which was responsible for turning out such a celebrity as Mr. Cobb.

Mr. Cobb played his last game of ball in Chicago on Sept. 27, and hastened to Augusta in time for the opening of the Cobb-Sanford Tire Company on October 1, and incidentally to meet the new member of the Cobb family who arrived a few days ago.

RENEWED TESTIMONY

No one in Weymouth who suffers backache, headaches, or distressing urinary ills can afford to ignore this Weymouth man's twice told story. It is confirmed testimony that no Weymouth resident can doubt.

Benj. W. Hewett, gardener, 191 Washington St., says: "At one time I was so bad with my back, I couldn't bend over to pick up anything from the floor. Doan's Kidney Pills fixed me up and have always given me good results when I have needed them." (Statement given May 22, 1915)

DOAN'S ALWAYS RELIABLE

On March 19, 1917 Mr. Hewett said: "I still use Doan's Kidney Pills when I have need of a kidney medicine. They always give me excellent relief and I recommend them whenever I get a chance."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Hewett had. Foster-Milburn Co. Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Was Laid Up In Bed

Doan's, However, Restored Mrs. Vogt to Health and Strength. Hasn't Suffered Since.

"I had one of the worst cases of kidney complaint imaginable," says Mrs. Wm. Vogt, 6115 Audrey Ave., Waltham, Me., "and I was laid up in bed for days at a time."

"My bladder was inflamed and the kidney secretions caused terrible pain. My back was in such bad shape that when I moved the pains were like a knife-thrust. I got so dizzy I couldn't stoop and my head just throbbed with pain. Heads of perspiration would stand on my temples, then I would become cold and numb. My heart action was affected and I felt as if I couldn't take another breath. I got so nervous and run down, I felt like wasn't worth living and often wished that I might die so my suffering would be ended. Medicine failed to help me and I was discouraged and despondent."

"Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I could tell I was being helped after the first few doses. I kept getting better every day and continued to be cured. My health improved in every way and best of all, the cure has been permanent. I feel that Doan's saved my life. Sincerely, Mrs. Wm. Vogt, 6115 Audrey Ave., Waltham, Me."

A Game for Three

By A. W. PEACH

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Betsy Norcross, waiting in the den for the return of her lover, knew by the expression of his face that he had met with disaster. He had gone into the library where Mr. and Mrs. Norcross were reading, and there he had asked permission to wed the girl of his choice, who happened to be their bright-haired, blue-eyed daughter.

"No luck, Ray?" Betsy asked.
He sat down glumly. "Not a bit. Your mother did the talking, and informed me that under no circumstances was I to have you. She was willing that we continue as friends, but as for marriage—not a bit of it! And she made no bones of saying so. Then your father agreed with her!"

"I can't understand father!" Betsy said explosively. "He likes you, I know; and all mother has against you is—well, dear, she thinks you aren't blue-blooded enough, while I think—"

"She snuggled herself beside him by way of completing the sentence."

"I'm not blooded enough just now," he answered, smiling faintly down into the petal-like uplifted face. "Betsy, how can I ever, ever give you up?" Pain and longing were in his voice.

She looked up at his worried, hungry eyes, and the rose deepened in her cheeks. Mischief was in her glance and meaning.

"Do you have to?" she questioned. He started as he caught her meaning, and she felt his firm shoulder quiver. "You mean?" he asked, hope, doubt and love mingled in his eyes.

"Why, my dear, I do not intend to let my mother's prejudice come between me and you; so I say, 'Let's pack up and go!'"

He sprang to his feet and caught her to him in a bearish hug. "And I can't! I simply can't give you up! We'll skip—when?"

"Tonight," she said, wriggling loose from his arms.

The quick brain that had made him a valuable man in one of the downtown broker's offices turned the possibilities over once. "Betsy, can you manage to get out—say, about nine o'clock? That will give me time to make arrangements." The fire died in his eyes. "We can do it. I'll telephone Mr. Judson, an old minister friend of mine, who lives about 20 miles out. But is it right by you?"

She drew his face down to hers and kissed him. "Everybody trusts you except mother; so folks will be with us. As for me, I am willing to give myself to you and your care; and if you don't take me—grab me now you have a chance—I'll begin to believe you are something of a coward!"

It was a challenge. Ten minutes later Elder was on his way to make the arrangements, and she was sauntering serenely into the library, where her mother sat reading, and where her father came a moment later. Betsy wondered if he had been in a position to overhear the conversation in the den.

"My dear, I am sorry, but Mr. Elder will not do. I have better hopes for you," her mother said in her firm way. "I am sure your father agrees with me."

Her father peered over his paper. "Elder has a fine reputation among the men, but I am inclined to think he jacks something the right sort of a man should have, and that is nerve," Mr. Norcross said unsmilingly.

"Oh, is that so?" Betsy said, smiling. "Mother, do you agree?"

"Well, I have always thought he was lacking in stamina," her mother answered.

Betsy went out, hiding her smiles. "I wonder what they will think after tonight?"

At nine o'clock she was ready, a slight, eager, joyous figure, just where the tall trees on the corner threw their heavy shadows.

Elder's quick, steady stride caught her ear as he came up the almost deserted street. In a moment he was at her side.

"Betsy, the deuce is to pay. Your mother telephoned Novell's garage, and Novell, afraid he'd lose her trade, wanted me to promise I was not up to anything. It's enough to drive a man mad. Now I've got in touch with some downtown garage. It's a—"

A car rolled softly to the curb. "Pardon me, sir, but is this Mr. Elder?" I am from Novell's garage. He told me to tell you that he had changed his mind, and that I am under your orders, sir," the husky voice of the driver said.

One moment for thought and Elder acted. He lifted Betsy into the car, gave the directions to the driver. The powerful motor whispered a little, and they rolled off into the dusk on their adventure.

Elder gathered the slight figure beside him into the shelter of a protecting arm, and he whispered into one small ear: "Betsy, we are on the way. Novell evidently had a change of heart. But if anywhere along you have the least doubt, say the word and we will turn back."

She pressed a cool cheek against his. "I am with you, dear, to the very end of this ride and all the years!"

The big car whispered rapidly through the quiet residential streets, picked up speed as the country roads were reached, and soon was speeding to its destination bearing with it two serenely happy hearts, who, because of the love between them and the happiness nearing, had no question of the future.

Only one fear remained with Elder. Mrs. Norcross in her determined, tenacious way might have reached out in some other way to wreck the plans she had sensed might be formulated. But as the lights of Canton showed faintly in the distance and the car sped toward them the fear passed.

In half an hour the fear had gone, for Elder found himself in Mr. Judson's library, the rosy-cheeked, golden-haired girl beside him.

Mr. Judson smiled at them. "We shall have to locate another witness. Mrs. Judson was called away suddenly. My housekeeper will serve as one. I will see it—"

"We don't want to wait, Mr. Judson, really. Why—why not ask the chauffeur?" she queried, turning to Raymond.

"I'll call him," the housekeeper said, hustling out.

A moment later the door opened and the driver stepped in, his low-fitting cap off, revealing grayish hair, and—Betsy screamed: "It's father!"

Raymond stared, beyond speech. Mr. Norcross grinned with delight. "Yes, it's the old man. Now, you youngsters get busy before your mother finds out what we are up to!"

"But—but—what—how?" Raymond tried to say something.

"Simple enough, my boy. Mrs. Norcross is quite set sometimes—as you may find this young lady to be—and must be handled with care. I sympathized with you, and made up my mind to help you. When she called Novell, I listened. Novell called, saying that you wanted a car at 8:45. She told him not to let you have it. Then I took a hand—I got it. Then, too, Doctor Judson happens to be a friend of mine and he telephoned to find out if everything was all right. It certainly is. Now let's get busy, and we'll motor back, and all three of us will break the news to mother. I don't want to do it alone—and, Betsy, here's something you don't know—your mother and I eloped! I want you to use that as a clinching argument. Now, Judson, your turn!"

"Simple enough, my boy. Mrs. Norcross is quite set sometimes—as you may find this young lady to be—and must be handled with care. I sympathized with you, and made up my mind to help you. When she called Novell, I listened. Novell called, saying that you wanted a car at 8:45. She told him not to let you have it. Then I took a hand—I got it. Then, too, Doctor Judson happens to be a friend of mine and he telephoned to find out if everything was all right. It certainly is. Now let's get busy, and we'll motor back, and all three of us will break the news to mother. I don't want to do it alone—and, Betsy, here's something you don't know—your mother and I eloped! I want you to use that as a clinching argument. Now, Judson, your turn!"

ROYALTY AS A "SIDESHOW"

On Payment of Small Sum All Who Wished Might See British Monarch at His Devotions.

George III was the last of the British monarchs to live in regal state at the palace where the prince of Wales has taken up residence, says the Manchester Guardian. After George had abandoned St. James' in favor of Buckingham palace, he continued to attend the services at the chapel royal. It was here, says Fanny Burney relates, that the king stayed so long over his prayers that "the queen and family dropped off one by one, used to leave the king, the parson and his majesty's equestry to freeze it out together." An eighteenth century guide book to London informs visitors that "at the St. James' chapel royal, by knocking at the side door and slipping a shilling for each person into the hand of the verger who opens it, you may have admittance, and stand during divine service in the presence of their majesties. For one shilling more each person you may sit in the royal presence, not in pews, but on turn-up seats on the outside of them."

The first horses imported into the United States were brought to New England in 1629. One horse and seven mares survived the voyage. Horses were not highly esteemed nor much needed in America at that time nor for a hundred years afterward. There were no race courses nor trotting parks and the roads generally were so poor that speed was not desirable had it been possible with safety. Oxen were found to be much better for all farm work.

Most of the land was rough, rocky and full of stumps, so that oxen, being strong, patient and slow, made much the better team for agricultural purposes and lumbering than did horses, and they were cheaper kept, needing but little grain even when at hard work and none at all when in pasture. They required no expensive harness like horses, only cheap yoke and chain, and were quickly yoked.

Snakes. "I had been losing eggs for some time, and had been laying the loss to some hounds of a neighbor, which were frequently around," writes L. B. Holmes in Boys' Life. "Perhaps some of the loss was justly laid to them. One night I found only one egg in a house where I thought there should be quite a number, and was just leaving the house when I discovered a black snake about six feet long, with a knot or bunch in his middle that looked as if it might be an egg. I killed him and carried him to the dwelling house, where I opened him to get the other egg. It proved to be a glass nest egg. It had probably prevented his escaping through the hole he entered the hen house by, and so proved a snare for him."

Jobless Expert. "Can't you find work at your trade?" "No, ma'am." "Why not?" "Well, you see, just as I had qualified as a handwriting expert everybody went and bought a typewriter."

THE BLUE DRESS

By BERTHA HERMAN.

"Very well, if you are going to be as snobbish as that you can have your old ring back! So there!" Tossing a beautiful diamond ring from her, and with a bang of the porch door May stood up the stairs to her room. There, standing before the mirror, her face ashen and her eyes wonderfully blue, she said:

"Well, I'm glad of it! I'm glad of it! To think I might have married such a mean, unreasonable thing!"

The difficulty was the eternal lover's quarrel. Bob was going away for several weeks on a business trip to Detroit, and had asked May to cancel the bungalow affair that they had promised to attend the following week. Now dad had just given May a new summer outfit, all the beautiful, soft, silky things a normal girl craves. In special evidence was her dear little blue georgette evening gown, massed in tulle, in which May looked more like an ethereal fairy than an ordinary girl. To give up the thought of wearing that dress was beyond reason!

B-r-r-r-ring! The telephone bell tinkled loudly. In an excited voice May answered the phone, thinking it possibly might be Bob. If it were, she would—no, she wouldn't—yes, she would just hang right up!

"Hello, May! Yes, this is Ida. Ida Scholl. Did you hear what the club is doing? Didn't you? Oh! We're going to have a camp. Yes, with tents 'n everything. Yes, out in Maine. Sure all the girls will be there. You'll come, too? Great! Will I sign up for you? For the whole month of August. That's fine. We've only one week to wait. I'm so excited. Isn't it thrilling!"

May hung up, after receiving this news, and contemplated the result. Yes, she was glad she gave Bob back his ring. She wondered if he took it. She had flung it out on the porch. He might be fool enough to walk off and leave it there. Some impulse prompted her to run out and see if the ring were still there. Of course he took it. Well, she would go away to camp and have an exceedingly good time with the girls and forget him. He was a mean thing anyway. Possibly she might meet some other hero there. Ah, romance was stirring within her! Wouldn't it be wonderful to show Bob that she could not be trifled with!

The first of August found a happy group of effervescent youth at North station. Weren't they going out to camp, and weren't they going to have a wonderful time? One little girl in a pink linen dress and big blue eyes looked a trifle more serious than the others, but she, too, had the delightful look of expectancy on her face.

One perfectly incomparable week full of delightful experiences with canoes, cameras, campfires, gentlemen and the like had already slipped by to the regret of most of them. To May, however, it seemed as though the day were made of about 72 hours and the week of almost 180 days. Her thoughts were constantly turning homeward, and especially to the scene on her porch two weeks before. Could she stick it out, the four weeks away from home and him? Did he ever think of her? Was he going out with other girls? Should she write to him and tell him she was sorry? Oh—what was she to do!

Another week passed brimful of pleasure for Ida, Bess, Hilda and the rest, but painfully dull for May. The next evening Ida laid her hand on May's shoulder and whispered something in her ear.

"Is that true?" asked May, a new light suddenly aglow in her eyes.

"Yes, and he didn't even have to go to Detroit. He hasn't gone out with anyone, not even the boys, once since you left, and he feels perfectly miserable. It'll do him good, though. He will appreciate you more when you get back, although, goodness knows, you were the one who always started the quarrels."

The morning of the third week dawned bright and clear. Six o'clock they all went in for a dip. Everyone was there but May. They called for her, blew the bugle time and time again, but no May responded. Dripping wet from swimming, they all rushed into her tent, intending to awaken her and pull her down to the stream. The bed was empty, but stuck up in her mirror was a note which read:

"Girls: Don't call me a quitter. Bob is lonesome and so am I. Just had to go back. You know, May."

They knew.

Feast Days in Seville. Seville celebrates many feast days, but none more typically than that of Corpus Christi. Throughout Spain this churchly holiday calls for parades, but Seville finds no fete day—whether religious or secular—complete without a bull fight and dancing, and so her program includes the spectacle of the bull ring and a strange dance seen nowhere else in Spain.

The parade is the big religious event of the day. Long before it starts an excited populace crowds the line of march. Roofs, balconies and windows are filled with dark Spanish scarves and their cavaliers, dressed of course in the most elaborate of modern fashion. Flags and damask hangings lead to the streets a touch of carnival atmosphere, unsoftened by the crowd's display of fiery and its tolerant and carefree holiday manner.

Alabastine

Instead of kalsomine or wallpaper

How much better, when you have a new home, to start right than to have to correct errors afterward from former treatment with other materials, when you come to the use of Alabastine, as does nearly every one sooner or later.

Once your walls are Alabastined you can use any material over it should you desire, but having used Alabastine you will have no desire for any other treatment.

Alabastine is so easy to mix and apply—so lasting in its results—so absolutely sanitary—and so generally recognized as the proper decorative material in a class by itself that it is becoming difficult to manufacture fast enough to supply the demand.

Alabastine is a dry powder, put up in five-pound packages, white and beautiful tints, ready to mix and use by the addition of cold water, and with full directions on each package. Every package of genuine Alabastine has cross and circle printed in red.

Carl Emil Junck, the Chicago millionaire importer, said at a sangerfest:

"Only an incurable optimist like my Wash White could regard Germany's future as promising and hopeful."

"I met Wash the other day with a big raw gash in his forehead."

"What does that gash mean, Washington?" I asked.

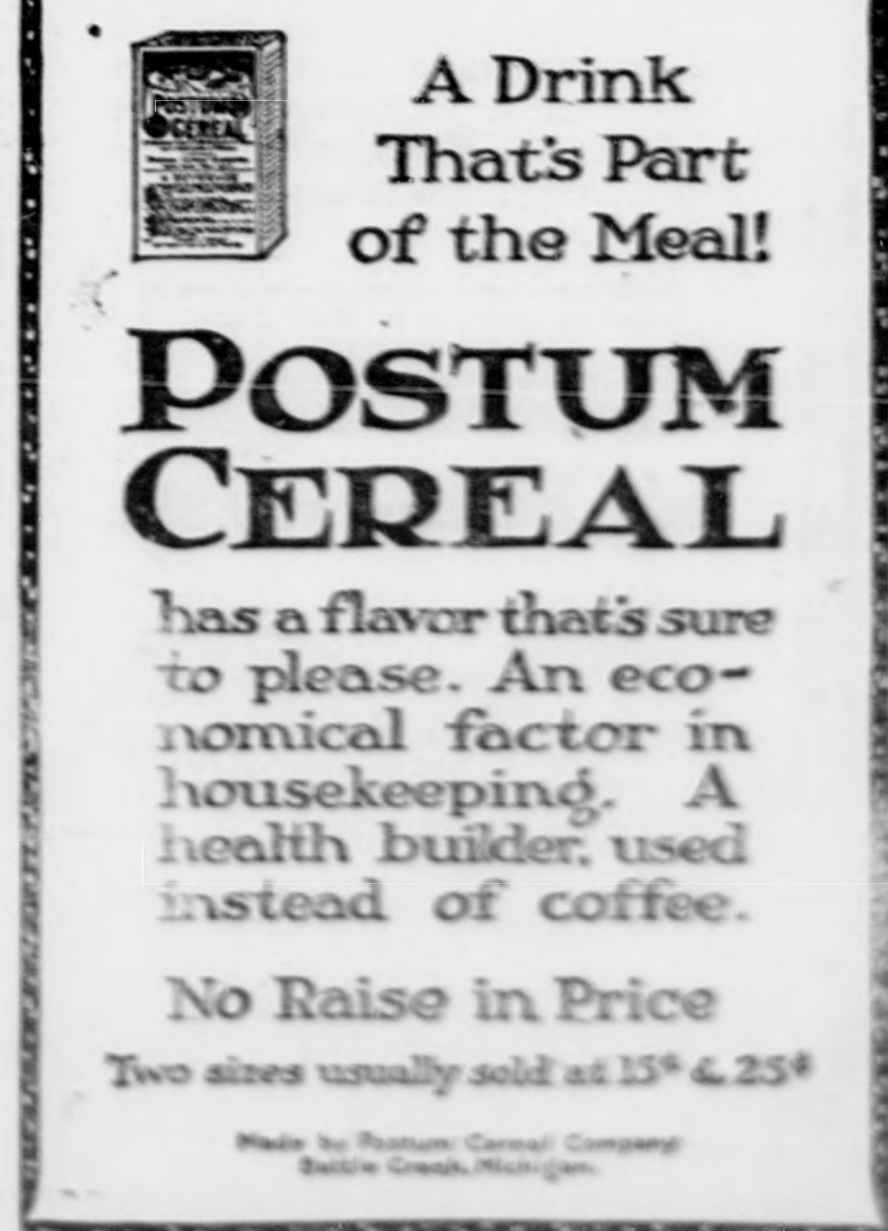

"What does it mean?" grinned Wash. "Why Mr. Junck, it means good luck, dat's what it means. I prayed the Lord last night to gimme a good-luck sign and de fust 'ting dis mawnin' when I opened de stable do' de mule Lazarus up wid his hoof and fotch me a kick in de face. On Thin Ice. Out West one dark, cold December evening I lost my way to camp after hunting in a large forest. As there was no farmhouse, or other shelter within many miles, I decided to pass the night in the open.

After looking around for a while I selected what I thought to be a ravine running through the underbrush of the woods and started to gather wood for a fire, which I put around me to keep warm on all sides and to keep the coyotes off. As heavy snow was on the ground I deemed it a snug place, and soon fell asleep.

Early the next morning I awoke to hear a strange, bubbling sound and to find myself, to my great astonishment, imbedded deeply in the ice covering a small, lustily flowing creek.

"Bosker Time" is Cheerful. The term a "bosker time," which the Australians use to describe a cheerful leave, comes home to its birthplace, little altered. "Bosky," with a similar meaning, was an English colloquialism in the eighteenth century. And "bosky" is still current slang with us, but implying too generous use of the wine cup. There is one phrase in the book of slang which is decidedly pleasing, "Australian grip." It stands for that best of greetings, the honest, hearty hand shake.—London Chronicle.

THE "BLUES" Caused by Acid-Stomach

Millions of people who worry, are despondent, have spells of mental depression, feel blue and are often melancholy, believe that these conditions are due to outside influences over which they have little or no control. Nearly always, however, they can be traced to an internal source—acid-stomach. Nor is it to be wondered at. Acid-stomach, beginning with such well defined symptoms as indigestion, belching, heartburn, bloating, etc., will, if not checked, in time affect to some degree or other all the vital organs. The nervous system becomes deranged. Digestion suffers. The blood is impoverished. Health and strength are undermined. The victim of acid-stomach, although he may not know the cause of his ailments, feels his hope, courage, ambition and energy slipping. And truly life is dark—not worth much to the man or woman who has acid-stomach!

Get rid of it! Don't let acid-stomach hold you back, wreck your health, make your days miserable, make you a victim of the "blues" and gloomy thoughts! There is a marvelous modern remedy called EATONIC that brings out such quick relief from your stomach miseries—sets your stomach to rights—makes it strong, cool, sweet and comfortable. Helps you get back your strength, vigor, vitality, enthusiasm and good cheer. So many thousands upon thousands of sufferers have used EATONIC with such marvelously helpful results that we are sure you will feel the same way if you will just give it a trial. Get a big 50 cent box of EATONIC—the good tasting tablets that you eat like a bit of candy—from your druggist today. He will return your money if results are not even more than you expect.

A SUMMER COLD

A cold in the summer time, as everybody knows, is the hardest kind of a cold to get rid of. The best and quickest way is to go to bed and stay there if you can, with a bottle of "Boschee's Syrup" handy to insure a good night's rest, free from coughing, with easy expectation in the morning.

But if you can't stay in bed you must keep out of draughts, avoid sudden changes, eat sparingly of simple food and take occasional doses of Boschee's Syrup, which you can buy at any store where medicine is sold, a safe and efficient remedy, made in America for more than fifty years. Keep it handy.—Adv.

DEWS OF EVE

No More Gentle Than
"Cascarets" for the Liver, Bowels

It is just as needless as it is dangerous to take violent or nasty cathartics. Nature provides no shock absorbers for your liver and bowels against calomel, harsh pills, sickening oil and salts. Cascarets give quick relief without injury from constipation, biliousness, indigestion, gases and sick headache. Cascarets work while you sleep, removing the toxins, poisons and sour, indigestible waste without gripping or inconvenience. Cascarets regulate by strengthening the bowel muscles. They cost so little too.—Adv.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased. Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble. Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions. Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

ARMY DISCIPLINE HAS MADE RUETHER ONE OF MOST FEARED HURLERS IN BIG LEAGUES

Here is One of the Peculiar Tricks of Photography. The Hand Being Nearest the Camera's "Eye" Makes Ruether's Pitching Hand Look Twice, Too Large for His Body.

Captain Cook, athletic director for Camp Lewis, believes that the discipline Walter "Dutch" Ruether, Cincinnati pitcher, received in the army helped make him one of the most feared hurlers in the big leagues.

Cured of Irritation. The captain told how Ruether was cured of one cause of irritation.

It was at the service game last year and Del Baker, now with the Portland Coast league, had been thrown out of the contest. This made Ruether angry and he refused to pitch. Captain Slim Scott tried to get him to continue, but he would not.

"I won't pitch another ball," Baker did not get a square deal," he said. Captain Cook pleaded with him after Scott had failed. Ruether was obstinate.

"I'll not pitch," was the stubborn defiance. It finally got on Captain Cook's nerves.

Ruether Finished Game. "Private Ruether!" he snapped. The left-handed pitcher came to attention automatically.

"Private Ruether," said Cook, "you have just thirty seconds to get out in the box and pitch or go back to Camp Lewis under guard, and you won't go on that California trip, either."

"Yes, sir," saluted Ruether. He finished the game so angry that the ball came over looking like a pea. But he finished it just the same.

in baseball. Clarence, accompanied by five of his ball players, tried to get through the pass gate in the Indianapolis park. The guardian of the gate, who is a faithful watchdog, according to McGill, stopped Rowland with the question:

"How many are you trying to bring in here?"

"Five, count them," answered Rowland.

"Well, one bat boy is all you need," was the answer.

Rowland had to summon help to get his ball club inside the park. They looked like candidates for the bat boy's job to the trusty gatekeeper.

GOODBY, WOMEN'S TROUBLES

The tortures and discomforts of weak, lame and aching back, swollen feet and limbs, weakness, dizziness, nausea, as a rule have their origin in kidney trouble, not "female complaints." These general symptoms of kidney and bladder disease are well known—so is the remedy.

Next time you feel a twinge of pain in the back or are troubled with headache, indigestion, insomnia, irritation in the bladder or pain in the joints and lower abdomen, you will find quick and sure relief in GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. This old and tried remedy for kidney trouble and allied derangements has stood the test for hundreds of years. It does the work. Pains and troubles vanish and new life and health will come as you continue their use. When completely restored to your usual vigor, continue taking a capsule or two each day.

Too Ill to Work

Scores of Women

in homes, stores, offices and factories are not fit to be at work. They toil on day after day and year after year suffering with distressing weaknesses and derangements, hoping against hope that they will soon feel better, but how can they hope to do good work or escape permanent invalidism?

Such women are in danger of derangement of women's functions. They owe it to themselves to try that good old fashioned root and herb remedy Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for more than forty years has been restoring American Women to health and strength.

Here is a Notable Example

Joplin, Missouri.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to see if it really would do as it was advertised and it sure did, and more. I was weak and could not do much work, had bearing down pains and had to go to bed. I learned about the Vegetable Compound from my mother and my husband told me to get it. After taking one bottle I was able to be on my feet most of the time and do my work again. I have a baby eleven months old and I have done all my own work, even the washing and ironing since she was three weeks old. I certainly recommend your great medicine to everyone who complains of female trouble and I am more than willing for you to use my testimonial."

—Mrs. TIMOTHY GRANEY, 426 Connor Ave., Joplin, Mo.

And Another

Chicago, Illinois.—"I suffered for four years with pains in my sides, hips and legs and a terrible backache. I could not do any work at all. I was treated by many physicians but they did not help me. I read in one of your books where other women have been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I tried it and it helped me very much so that now I can do everything in the house. I have told my friends about Vegetable Compound and you have my permission to use this letter."—Mrs. I. OVENSTEIN, 902 S. Marshfield Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

ROLL OF HONOR.

As a result of the query in last week's Gazette for information relating to George Henry Bird and others who made the supreme sacrifice, relatives visited the Gazette office and the Town Clerk on Tuesday.

It seems that the correct name was not used on the program for the Memorial services on Sept. 28, for it should have been George Henry Bird instead of Charles B. Bird.

Mr. Bird was born in Boston, but was a North Weymouth boy residing with his grandparents, Mrs. Mary Nesbit of Harbor View avenue. He attended the Athens school. Going West he enlisted at San Houston, Texas, July 12, 1917, under the name of William Sweeney, in Co. A., 3d Ammunition Train, as a private, and later went overseas. He was seriously gassed, and was not expected to recover. At his request, although in a weakened condition, he was put aboard the U. S. S. Antigone for Newport News. He died on board the ship Dec. 31, 1918, and burial was at Mt. Auburn, Cambridge.

His mother was Mrs. Ada M. Levangia, now residing at 188 Belingham avenue, Beachmont. Later she hopes to obtain his war record, and send same to the Gazette.

PIG CLUB.

Members of the Weymouth Pig Club made eight entries at the Brockton Fair, seven pigs and one model equipment. We took eight prizes—four first, three seconds, and one third.

Adrian Barnes took 1st on Chester White darrow.

Edward Nash took 1st on Chester White sow, also 2nd on darrow.

Ralph and Joseph Cushman took 3rd on Chester White darrow.

Esther Glover took 1st on Berkshire pig.

Mitchell Brothers took 3d on Berkshire pig.

George Husbands took 1st on ungraded pig, also 1st on model equipment.

Boys belonging to the Pig Club were allowed to enter the judging contest. Adrian Barnes took 1st prize in five stock judging, 2nd in pig judging.

Thomas Chisholm took 5th in live stock judging.

A good record for the Weymouth Pig Club.

CLASSES IN WEYMOUTH.

The Department of University Extension has had class work in Weymouth ever since the establishment of the department. Last year a most successful class in French was carried on in South Weymouth. This year arrangements are being made for a class in appreciation of English Literature which will probably be held at the Weymouth High School. Doctor P. W. Long of Harvard will teach a course of twelve lectures. It promises to be most interesting. There is no expense connected with taking the course other than an enrollment charge of two dollars which covers the cost of the textbooks actually used by the pupil.

Information concerning this class may be had from Mr. Pearson, Superintendent of Schools in Weymouth, and enrollment blanks may be obtained from him. If a sufficient number enroll, the first lesson will be held upon Monday evening, October 13, at 7.30. In order to be sure of a place in this class, it is well to get your name in to Mr. Pearson as soon as possible.

GAZETTE APPRECIATED.

Editor Gazette and Transcript: In behalf of the Weymouth Welcome Home Committee, I desire to thank the Gazette and Transcript for the publicity given to its notices in reference to the Welcome Home Day celebration, and to the Memorial Service held in honor of the Weymouth boys who made the supreme sacrifice, and through your columns to thank all those who contributed towards the success of the celebration and the Memorial Service.

The committee deeply appreciates the readiness in which the citizens of the Town responded to its requests.

Yours truly,

William J. Holbrook,

Secretary.

LETTER FROM SIBERIA.

slow and insufficient and chaff at delays and missent telegrams, but the railway does the work first upon it and keeps up the right of way.

The churches and cathedrals are very beautiful. You have seen them in pictures and know the Greek architecture, but the coloring you haven't seen. On the spires are the cross and ball in gold.

The domes are blue or pale green with green and white, or blue and white below, with a little gold decoration. A few are deep red throughout—excepting the domes. But each church is a harmony in color and architecture.

I had hoped and planned to visit the Trapist Monastery with its (among other things) twenty-seven ton bell. I rather hate to leave Irkutsk just yet, there are so many interesting things. I wanted to see the river freeze over to the road across. It flows at twenty miles an hour and is about two hundred and fifty yards wide. Early in November the pontoon bridge is broken in the middle and swung along shore. Then for a week or ten days there is no crossing, while the ice sets. Then all traffic goes across on an ice road.

Yesterday one of the few tug boats plying up and down the river from Lake Baikal went thru with a barge in tow. It took three hours. The steamer tied up at the shore, far up the river while the bridge was opened. Planking was taken up and a pontoon loosened from its mooring and let down stream. All the drowsy and carts lined up for blocks on each side. When all was ready the tug came down stream running hard to keep ahead of the barge and both shot thru the hole in the bridge like a canoe shooting the rapids. It was very skillfully done, and very dangerous for the bridge.

The little girl playing along the tracks outside my window reminds me of the refugee train here in the yards when we came in over two weeks ago. It was a load of three hundred children from Petrograd and going to Vladivostok. For a while they had been in a home near Omsk until it became advisable to get them farther East. Red Cross people had them in charge with the help of Russian women, one for each box car. It was quite a task to feed and clothe, and keep them together in the long, slow journey. All were lost to their friends and relatives and many of the younger ones without names.

There was a train of Bolshevik prisoners in here for a few days. Closed box cars with little barred windows high up. A guard for each car. Men and women all crowded in together. Some were taken across the river presumably to the big prison by the city. They went in batches thru different mornings, many chained together, and there were children with them.

I hope you are getting my mail. As for letters reaching me, it is mere chance. Plenty of mail sent from Vladivostok is lost. I haven't received a bit yet.

I am buying little. There are few things worth buying. No precious stones are on the market, furs are nearly as expensive as in the United States, and there is nothing for one who knows nothing about them. The second hand markets are worth searching, but I haven't had time to get to one in the morning.

This letter is getting to be so long and heavy that I'm afraid I'll have to cut it into two.

Love to all of you. I'll have lots to tell that cannot be written. Try to bump along the shore of the lake. Wonderful beautiful. Feels and looks like New Hampshire, but bigger grander and more intense coloring. Snow next month.

Remember me to all the folks.

DAVID.

AMERICAN LEGION.

A meeting of unusual interest was held at Memorial hall, South Braintree, Oct. 3, when South Braintree Branch of the Special Aid Society for American Preparedness invited Post 87, G. A. R., and Braintree Post 86, American Legion to be their guest for the evening. A woven silk American flag was presented to the Legion, and $100 to the Grand Army. On motion of Dr. F. R. Mack, a vote of thanks was tendered the Special Aid Society followed by three rousing cheers for them and the Grand Army. About 80 members of the Legion were present who sang war songs, the program concluding with the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

American Legion Sunday comes Nov. 9. All clergymen are urged to preach a sermon on that day on the ideals for which the Legion stands.

Thinking people will sense the fact that the American Legion is apparently in safe hands. Many an effort to swerve it to serve personal interests and to use it as a pawn in politics, has failed because those who dominated had a greater vision than the multitude. General Pershing recently defined his attitude when he said that the American Legion "must be a non-political organization and stand for 100 per cent. Americanism. The world is big. The interests of others, divided from us by the oceans, are only in a limited way our interests, and we owe it to ourselves to battle first, last and always for our "100 per cent. Americanism!"

The estimated strength of the Army Sept. 18 was 388,867, not including 267 marines in the A.E.F. Of this number 39,550 were in Europe, 8,349 en route from Europe, and 307,409 in the United States. According to a recent cable 2,877 of the officers in Europe on Sept. 1, or 74 per cent. were emergency officers.

PRODUCTION COSTS MORE. On the ground that it will have to pay $500,000 more for its newsprint in 1920 than in 1919, the Seattle Times has increased its subscription price from 3 to 5 cents daily, and from 7 to 10 cents Sunday, and has also increased its advertising rates. Newspapers all over the country are confronted by the cold fact that the cost of production has greatly increased. They must increase revenues, diminish expenditures or suspend publication, the Times concludes.

CONVENTION SUCCESSFUL.

The convention of the Christian and Missionary Alliance held in Faith Mission Chapel at East Weymouth closed Sunday night. The speakers were Miss Barmenter, from South China and Mrs. Oldfield, from Central China who gave addresses each day. Rev. F. L. Allen of Brockton preached two powerful sermons on Friday, Saturday evening a young Italian preacher from Newton Theological Seminary spoke in English and also in Italian to those of his own nationality. Sunday Mr. Franklin arrived and gave two messages in his usual forceful manner.

Mrs. Loud, superintended the missionary offering and the receiving of pledges for the coming year. The pledges and cash offerings amounted to nine hundred and forty dollars with more to be handed in.

Messages in song were given during the convention by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Loud, the Misses Kennedy, Mr. G. H. Loud, Mr. Abbott Bates of Weymouth and Mrs. Wilkes of Boston. Mr. Allan Emery gave the closing message. The chapel was crowded and many agreed it was the best convention ever held here.

WEYMOUTH, MASS., FRIDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1919

PRICE SIX CENTS

A Game Warden Who Wants to be Friendly

Editor Gazette-Transcript:

An act passed by the legislature this year (Chap. 153, Acts 1919) provides a closed season for Bunted Grouse, or partridge, so called, until October 30, 1920.

Not many years ago such laws were enacted largely by a few citizens who would petition the legislature for only such laws that would best increase their particular sport but today we find that it is a much different story. Each year the various Fish and Game clubs in this State hold their meetings just after the close of the hunting season and debate the questions of new laws. They then proceed to advance their ideas to other Protective associations and by the time the Legislature gets ready for business we find that every club has a representative on the floor to fight for the laws or proposed laws as set forth by their club.

These clubs can now be found in nearly every live town. In this vicinity we are very well covered by the Norfolk Fish and Game Club. This club has headquarters at South Braintree but they boast of several members from Hingham and a large number from Weymouth, Quincy, Randolph and many other nearby towns. This club will hold one meeting in Weymouth this winter at which time moving pictures of hunting and fishing in this state will be shown. This club is one of the foremost in the state in proposing new legislation. The clubs got together last winter and took action to cause a closed season on Partridge for a year. Every live sportsman will agree that it was a move in the right direction. Last year was a bad one for the birds. Partridges decreased in large numbers. No authority claims that the decrease was due to the gun alone, for vermin, lack of cover in bad weather, heavy snows and wet brood seasons all helped to down the partridge and we agree that the closed season only abates one of the evils, that of the gun.

Now let us go over the damage done by the gun and what we will save by the closed seasons. We will go over the eighth Fish and Game district that covers the coast towns from Boston to Duxbury, the inland towns of Randolph, Abington, Norwell, Holbrook and Braintree, 14 in all. The records at the office of the Massachusetts Fish and Game Commission will show that the average seasons tell upon this bird will run about 100 to the town.

Take Weymouth. You know of many expert shots that net a dozen birds a season. And most any good runner gets a bird a week, and that you ever notice the large number of strangers you meet in the woods? Some come from distant towns and cities.

Take Quincy with its nearly a thousand and license hunters, they can't do much hunting in Quincy so migrate to the surrounding towns and when you consider all you will agree that 1,400 birds for the 14 towns is not a long way off but to consider the few birds this year let us assume an even thousand birds would have been killed had the season been left open.

Now we are making a drive to save that one thousand partridges this year in this district where you live and hunt. We have every good sportsman behind the move. The State will have a number of new deputies on the job and the forty unpaid special deputies will do their bit. The clubs will have their men out and there is no reason why we can't do the trick if we pull together. A thousand birds, if saved, means 500 pair of brood stock if the weather and house cat and favorable weather are on our side. Now to be conservative let us assume that 400 mated birds throw a brood of ten chicks next spring and that eight of these chicks come through to maturity. That means that with the two old birds saved we have 10 birds where we had one pair or 400 times 10 equals 4,000. So by this closed season we will have 4,000 partridges next year that we would not have had if we had opened the season this year. Every district in the state will go out this year to save the partridge and their success depends largely upon their ability to save the bird from the gun. Let's go to it and do the trick. We have a better class of sportsmen in this district than any (Continued on Page 8)

Field Day of Boy Scouts
At the Fair Grounds

About 300 Boy Scouts representing Troops in the Old Colony Council paraded at South Weymouth on the holiday and held a field day at the Fairgrounds. Troops from the Weymouths, Braintree, Hingham and Cohasset participated.

The line of march was from Colman Square to the Fairgrounds. The roster included a squad of police, the Braintree Bugle Corps of the Boy Scouts, and the various troops. American flags were carried, and upon arrival at the Fairgrounds there was a flag raising with salute to colors.

The judges of the sports were William H. Cowing and Russell B. Worcester of Weymouth, Maurice Walcott of Brockton and Oscar Hough of Hingham. The awards were as follows:

Equipment Race—Won by Troop 1 of Hingham; Troop 1 of Cohasset, second; Troop 5 of South Weymouth, third.

Rescue Race—Won by Troop 1 of Hingham; Troop 1 of Cohasset, second; Troop 6 of Braintree, third; Troop 5 of South Weymouth, fourth.

Pony Express Race—Won by Troop 1 of Hingham; Troop 1 of Hull, second; Troop 1 of Cohasset, third; Troop 6 of Braintree, fourth.

Leap Frog Race—Won by Troop 1 of Cohasset; Troop 1 of Weymouth, second; Troop 1 of Hingham, third; Troop 6 of Weymouth, fourth.

Fire lighting—Without matches—Won by Troop 1 of Cohasset; Troop 1 of Braintree, second; Troop 5 of Braintree, third.

First Aid Contest—Won by Troop 1 of Hingham; Troop 1 of Cohasset, second; Troop 6 of Weymouth, third; Troop 1 of Braintree, fourth.

Semaphore Signalling—Won by Troop 1 of Hingham; Troop 1 of Cohasset, second; Troop 6 of Weymouth, third; Troop 6 of Weymouth, fourth.

International Morse Code Signalling—Won by Troop 1 of Hingham; Troop 6 of Braintree, second; Troop 1 of Cohasset, third; Troop 6 of Weymouth, fourth.

Bugle Calls—Won by Scout Adrian Barnes of South Weymouth.

The committee of arrangement included Duncan MacKellar, Laban H. Barnes and Harold C. Lincoln.

CHARLES HARRINGTON.

East Weymouth was shocked Wednesday to learn of the sudden death of Charles Harrington of Shawmut street, for many years a dealer in dry goods on Commercial street. On Tuesday he had visited Boston on business, and ate heartily upon his return, and was apparently in good health. About 3 A. M. his wife was awakened and he soon passed away without speaking. A physician was promptly summoned, but Mr. Harrington was dead before he arrived. Just before he was 18 years of age, Mr. Harrington entered the employ of Henry Lord, then one of East Weymouth's leading dry goods merchants, as clerk and bookkeeper. In 1870, with his brother-in-law, John Bates, he opened a dry goods store under the name of Bates and Harrington, at 1866 Commercial street. For the past 30 years, he conducted the business alone. He was a member of Orphan's Hope Lodge of Masons, and was director of the Fairmount Cemetery Association.

He was also prominently identified with the East Weymouth Methodist church. He leaves a widow and one son, Charles B. Harrington, who resides at Wollaston.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from his late home, 33 Shawmut street.

REV. L. A. ABBOTT.

Rev. Dr. Levi A. Abbott, pastor of the Weymouth Baptist church May 1, 1858, to May 31, 1863, died in Alton, Ill., Sept. 26, 1919, in his 96th year. While in Weymouth Mr. Abbott and all other Weymouth pastors were on the school board, he was the chairman. Going from Weymouth to Middleboro, Mass., he was from there sent to the Legislature, where he became intimately associated with such men as George R. Howe, Henry Davies, N. P. Banks, Henry Wilson and other men who became great in the country's history of those stirring times; showing himself a man of large political power, as well as a preacher and pastor of rare religious power. Dr. Abbott later became pastor at Alton for eighteen years, during and after which he was for many other years efficiently identified with the governing interests of Shurtleff College, always a man of stirring activities for God and man.

AMERICAN LEGION.

The Massachusetts convention of the American Legion closed at Worcester at 10 o'clock last night. These officers were elected:

Commander, Col. Edward L. Logan, South Boston.

First Vice-Commander, Maj. Lewis A. Northampton, Easton.

Second Vice-Commander, Maj. A. Platt, Andover, Gloucester.

Third Vice-Commander, Francis P. Madden, Revere.

Adjutant, Leo A. Spillane, Chelsea.

Finance Officer, Col. Frank S. Perkins, Salem.

Chaplain, Michael J. O'Connor, Cambridge.

Historian, Clem Putnam, Wellesley.

Members: National Executive Committee, Col. John F. J. Herbert of Worcester, Gen. E. Leroy Sweetser of Everett.

T. T. McCarty was elected as a Norfolk county delegate to the National convention.

Second Welcome Home
Supper and Dance

The invitations have gone out for the Second Welcome Home supper and dance on Monday evening, Oct. 27, of the East Weymouth Special Aid Society at Masonic hall.

It is meant to include in this second supper all those Service Men who had not arrived home on June 9, also those who were unable to attend the first supper on account of sickness or business, or because they were too far away at the time. If for any reason there has been an omission from our lists, upon notification of the chairman, Mrs. George Perry, the error will be rectified.

The new Legion Orchestra will furnish the music during the evening, and the staff of the Weymouth Post, 79, has also been invited. All East Weymouth Service Men are included in the dance invitations.

Young Man Drowned
At Whitman's Pond

A sad accident took place on Whitman's pond early Saturday evening when Kenneth McFawn, aged 16, was drowned. Accompanied by John Wright, and Joseph and Daniel Denbrosia, they started in the morning in two row boats for a hunting trip across the pond.

It was not until about 7 P. M. that they started to return, via Lake View Park at the head of the pond. When in the middle of the pond, the boat of Kenneth and John began to leak. They took turns in bailing and rowing, but the water gained on them, and the boat swamped. The boys attempted to swim ashore.

The Denbrosia boys rescued young Wright, but McFawn sank, and it was impossible to save him. Rowing to the Lake View Park hotel, the boys notified Miss Mabel Duncan, the bookkeeper, and she promptly called the police, doctors and others.

With the aid of grappling irons Herbert McFawn, a brother of the victim, and William Lombard recovered the body, about 9.30. Others assisting were Edward F. Butler, Thomas A. Boyle, Willie Tirrell and Willard R. Hare.

Kenneth lived with his sister, Mrs. Edward Fisher on Water street, East Weymouth. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon, being conducted by Rev. Arthur Emig of the Porter M. E. church. Six classmates were pall bearers, Donald Martin, Joseph Denbrosia, John McKenna, John Wright, Lawrence LeGalle and Daniel Denbrosia. Burial was at Mt. Hope cemetery, South Weymouth.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE.

Notice of a lecture on "Christian Science" will be found in another column of this paper. The lecturer will be William D. Kilpatrick, C. S. of Detroit, Michigan, who is a member of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church of Boston. The lecture will be given in the church edifice on Greenleaf street, Quincy, at 8 o'clock Sunday evening.

MASONIC VISITATION.

Rt. Wor. H. Everett Crane of Quincy, district deputy of this Masonic district, made an official visitation on Wednesday evening to the local lodge of Masons. He was accompanied by Wor. Frank A. Read as marshal and a large suite of officers and past masters of the other lodges in this district, the capacity of the Temple being fully tested.

Wor. Charles H. Chubbuck and the officers of the lodge gave a fine exemplification of the Master Mason's degree. The address of the deputy was a pleasing one, and some of the sentiments were applauded.

An incident of the evening was the presentation of a masters diploma to Worshipful Chubbuck.

A banquet followed with music by Maxims orchestra and speaking by Rev. Frank Kingdon and others.

REGISTER NOW.

Registration for the State election of Nov. 4 will close next week Saturday at 10 P. M. The Registrars will be in session that day from 12 noon to 10 P. M. at the town offices at East Weymouth. It would be better not to wait until the last day but to register this evening at Lovell's Corner, or Oct. 21 in Precinct 5; or Oct. 24 in Precinct 6.

—Delightful fall weather prevailed Monday, which was observed as Columbus Day.

PLANT ELMS AND LINDENS

For the Parkway They Have Many Advantages Over Others That Might Be Selected.

A correspondent asks advice regarding the kind of trees to plant in the parkway in front of his home.

"Several people advised elms," he writes, "but they are such slow growers, and as I am not young I would like to plant some kind that I will have a chance to enjoy. I am also thinking of planting four fruit trees in the yard, probably three cherries, as they seem to do better than most fruit trees, and a pear or an apple."

The American elm is by far the best tree for this purpose. It grows fast enough, starts to branch high and does not obstruct the view. It arches beautifully, high up over the street, and is a long-lived, hardwood variety, not seriously affected by insects and fungus pests.

The American linden might grow a little faster, but the tussock moth likes it too well. The American ash grows faster, but it soon gets shaggy, is susceptible to boring insects and drops its leaves in August. The sycamore is good and a faster grower, but its bark is shaggy. The hackberry is just as good as the elm, but slower growing. The red and pin oaks are better, but no one has the patience to plant them.

Do not plant cottonwood, box elders, soft maples, nor poplar where an elm, hard maple, hackberry, oak or gingko will grow.

NEED TO SHOW CIVIC PRIDE

Individual Citizens Must Recognize They Are Responsible for Town's Good Appearance.

Prosperity and a spirit of progress have caused a vast change for the better in the appearance and development of the smaller towns of the country in the past 25 years. This is strikingly noticeable in Indiana, which formerly showed too many villages with ragged edges, uninviting streets, tumble-down sheds and other unattractive features.

Now the outlook of the traveler is quite different. He sees clean, paved streets, cement sidewalks, beautiful shade trees, well-kept lawns, and a general appearance of cheerful well-being. There are exceptions to the rule, however; Indiana has many beautiful towns, but there are still some which are slipshod and carry the suggestion that their public spirit languishes. Some stimulus to their pride, something to encourage local improvement and arouse the people to the fact that they are not keeping up with the times, is needed. It might be done by a state society that would grade the work, offer suggestions and show that a town may be made beautiful without great expense and with each citizen doing his part.—Indianapolis Star.

ITS TURN COMING.

Some day we'll find unheeded
Grin war's relentless frown,
And we'll think upon what's needed
For our own home town.

To far-off people's movements
We'll be lending less renown,
And we'll hustle for improvements
In our own home town.

When we've taught the distant nations
To lay their burdens down,
We'll claim just appropriations
For our own home town.

Natural Desire for Home.

Civilization was founded on the decision of the caveman to establish for himself a home in the rocks, or ground, and it progressed as he toiled to make that home a better place for his family. And today, even as then, the torch of civilization is being carried by the home-building instinct.

Man, today, wants a home; something not ornate but beautiful, to kindle his imagination and form the center for his dreams. A place that will be a proper setting for a wife and children. A dwelling place that is a sentiment thing.

Dirty Piano Keys.

It is more important to keep the keys clean than many people are aware, especially if several students are practicing on the same instrument. Dirty keys are a source of infection. They should be wiped with a damp cloth every day. Not so wet that the water runs down between the keys, but sufficient to cleanse them of all matter. Dry with a soft cloth, and close the piano when the room is being swept, but open the lid afterwards, as ivory keys require light in order to keep them from turning yellow.

Why Soap Bubbles Collapse.

The air of an ordinary room is filled with tiny particles of matter which fall on an airy soap bubble, alter the surface tension, and—poof!—it is gone. The effect of these minute particles on the stability of bubbles was first brought to light, according to Popular Science Monthly, by Sir James Dewar. He experimented in clarified air until he was able to produce bubbles which lasted for months. He has even produced a soap film which was a year old recently and which seems to remain just as it was made.

—“and from there we went to Japan”

Talk about adventures!

Men in the Navy come home with the kind of experiences that most chaps read of only in the books.

Here's your chance!

Uncle Sam has, as you know, a big Navy and gives red-blooded young fellows like you an opportunity to step aboard and “shove off”.

What will you get out of it? Just this:

A chance to rub elbows with foreign folks in strange parts of the world.

The chance for good honest work on shipboard—the kind of work that teaches you something real: the kind of work that puts beef on your shoulders and hair on your chest.

You will get 30 care-free vacation days a year, not counting shore leave in home or foreign ports.

You will have the kind of comradeship in travel that sailors know.

You will have regular pay, over and above your meals, lodging and your first uniform outfit—good stuff all of it.

You can join for two years. When you get through you'll be physically and mentally “tuned up” for the rest of your life. You'll be ready through and through for SUCCESS.

There's a Recruiting Station right near you. If you don't know where it is, your Postmaster will be glad to tell you.

To any Father and Mother:—

In the Navy your boy's food, health, work and play, and moral welfare are looked after by responsible experts.

FACING DIVORCE SUIT LAWYER KILLS HIMSELF

Veteran of the Air Service Prefers Death to Hearing of Case.

The usual crowd of attorneys, court fans and litigants were streaming into Judge Jesse A. Baldwin's courtroom in Chicago one morning recently.

“Huszagh versus Huszagh,” called Gus Wedemier, clerk of the court.

“If the court please, I am prepared to argue—” began Attorney William F. Ader. He was interrupted by the judge.

“One moment—I have been informed by telephone that the defendant cannot be here,” said Judge Baldwin.

“But the case is set—it should—”

“I have just been informed that the defendant is dead,” said the judge. “He committed suicide early this morning.”

There was a pause. Then: “I move that the case be dismissed,” motioned Mr. Ader.

So came the end of the divorce suit filed by Mrs. Lorena Case Huszagh against Victor L. Huszagh, twenty-nine years old, an attorney.

Shots were heard in the morning in the Huszagh home, and when Rudolph D. Huszagh, also an attorney, went to his son's room, the young man was dead. The suicide was believed to have been prompted by the domestic difficulty that had arisen between the young lawyer and his wife.

They were married four years ago in one of Chicago's most brilliant romances. Some of his friends called the young man romantic. Soon after war was declared he enlisted in the air service, won his wings, and was commissioned a captain.

It is said the romance lived until he threw his leather coat and goggles in a supply office and came back to his wife at the end of the war. Two weeks ago Huszagh left his wife and subsequently she filed her divorce suit.

KENTUCKIANS ARE ALARMED

Their 16-Million-Gallon Reserve Is Fast Evaporating.

According to revenue officials in Lexington, Ky., prohibition is being aided even by evaporation and leakage of whisky which is being held in barrels by the government. There are 8,224,016 gallons of whisky held in the Lexington district alone. It is valued at many millions of dollars. Fully as much more is held in other revenue districts in the state.

Revenue men say that in 16 years this whole amount will have gone to “staves,” meaning evaporation and leakage from the wood will leave only the aroma. To prove this, it was shown at the revenue office that in 1880, at Paris, Ky., 250 barrels of whisky was not bottled for 14 years. Then it was decided to put it into new barrels. When the old barrels were opened not over two gallons remained in each barrel, so remorseless had been the process of evaporation.

NO RECORD OF LOST COMET

Cops Couldn't Help Searcher for Halley's Flyer.

Ever since Galileo charted the firmament through the medium of his rule glass mankind has been absorbed in the study of the stars. The fair lost Pleiad, the Great Hunter, the Dioscuri, and other constellations have inspired philosophers and poets. But policemen—

A searchlight glittered through one of the many interstices of the Central street station platform of the Northwestern elevated railroad in Evanston, Ill. The platform is but a few inches above the ground. Under the platform was Arnold Carlson, eighteen years old of Chicago. Beside him lay a pair of binoculars. The cop who investigated seized him rudely and asked:

“What are you doing?”

“I'm trying to locate Halley's comet. It's been gone a long time now and ought to be back. I got a straight tip.”

“Well, we ain't got no record of any Halley reporting a comet lost. Come on to the station.”

PET ROOSTER PILOT

Bird Shows the Way in Long Automobile Trip.

When R. J. Nagle, his wife and son rolled into a garage at Waterloo, Ia., the other night, the proprietor rubbed his eyes, then looked again, for there perched ever so nicely on the front door of the car was a wind-battered Rhode Island Red rooster.

No, Nagle hadn't stolen the bird, intending it for a future fry as he and his family wended their way overland. It was a pet rooster, taken along with the family dog, to help out in relieving the monotony of the journey, and also to eke out the family purse. For the fowl is a trained bird.

No other place than the wind-swept front door will do for his majesty, the rooster. The bird perches there, even at a 40-mile gait, and seems to enjoy it, Mr. Nagle said. At night when the family seeks a hotel the bird and dog guard the property. The Nagles started at Los Angeles. They will proceed to Philadelphia and from there to Florida and then back home to California.

BRITISH RAISE 440 SHIPS

Have Salvaged Sunken Vessels to the Value of $250,000,000.

The salvage of 440 vessels and the recovery of property valued at $250,000,000 is the four-year record of the British admiralty, which has been conducting operations in home and foreign waters.

From the beginning of October, 1915, to the end of November, 1918, British, allied and neutral vessels totaling 1,623,551 gross tons have been salvaged. The admiralty relied wholly upon steamers with high-powered pumps and a series of six lifting lighters, which can support a strain of 2,000 tons.

CLIMB ON HIGH WITH AN ARMY CHAUFFEUR

Rockiest Road to Dublin Is Located in France.

Private Employers Who Are Operating Large Fleet of Trucks for Delivery Purpose Are Told to Remember Army Men.

The chauffeur who used to consider Broadway and Forty-second street a hard place to cross went to war to discover that the rockiest road to Dublin lay in France, after all. For automobile driving became a supreme art over there, where there were no lights to illuminate the roads, and often no roads to illuminate.

With shells bursting on all sides, and bombs dropping from the Jerrys above, the truck, ambulance and lorry drivers soon learned a thousand new tricks in the trade: how to keep a straight course without benefit of compass or light, how to climb out of mud hub-deep, how to run on three wheels if something happened to the fourth, in short, how to do the impossible, all to the glory of the allies and November 11th.

These men are now coming back to the United States, master mechanics and drivers, trained in the hardest school to every emergency that an automobile could confront. Some of them are still jobless, and Col. Arthur Woods, assistant to the secretary of war, and in charge of the government's re-employment campaign for ex-service men, offers them as the best possible material in the world for expert automobile driving.

Private employers who are operating large fleets of trucks for delivery and transportation purposes, are especially recommended to these expert drivers. The various governmental and welfare agencies will be the means for bringing the men and the jobs together.

FIRST SUPER SCOOTER SEEN

Primitive Motor Car, Called "Buckboard," Driven by Auto Wheel Set in Rear Wheels.

Grahame White, who was at one time the most popular aviator in England and is one of the pioneers of aviation, has introduced into England the first super scooter, commonly called the "buckboard." It is practically a primitive motor car driven by an auto wheel set between the rear wheels. To throw out the clutch the wheel is lifted off the ground. Photo shows Mr. White with a little passenger.

TRAILER IS ESSENTIAL PART OF MOTOR TRUCK EQUIPMENT ON IMPROVED ROADS

Motor Truck Can Pull Trailer Where Roads Are Good.

Now that farmers are buying motor trucks in large numbers, it is desirable that these trucks show not only an economical performance but also that they pay as big returns on the investment as is possible to make them. As one power farmer expressed it not long ago, the motor truck takes the last drudgery out of farming. This is a whole lot to say, but many owners are finding it true. Not only that—they are also finding that the truck makes money by saving money in reducing production and marketing costs.

Advantages of Truck.

One of the big advantages of the truck is that it brings the market many hours, and even days, nearer the farm; and another factor in this connection which operates to bring farm and market still closer is the trailer behind the truck. Where conditions are favorable to its use, the trailer should be considered an essential part of truck equipment.

Trucks are usually equipped with motors having considerable reserve power, which is provided for pulling heavy loads up grades or over bad roads. If hauling to and from the farm is over fairly level, improved roads, as is the case in a great many instances, the motor truck even when loaded to capacity is capable of hauling a trailer, thus being able to handle nearly twice the normal rated capacity of the truck without overloading it.

Danger in Practice.

There is a danger, however, in this practice of hauling trailers behind trucks, because some owners are sure to use them when highway and other conditions are not favorable. The harm in doing this comes in overloading the truck motor beyond the capacity at which it will work economically and efficiently, which is probably the worst punishment that can be given a truck.—Power Farming.

FOR REBUILDING WORN TIRES

Simple Shoe May Be Used in Manner Shown in Illustration—Practically Self-Vulcanizing.

Getting the most out of a tire is quite consistent with the economy program. One offering in this line is a simple shoe which may be used to build up a worn shoe in the manner

shown. The new shoe has an inner coating of uncured rubber which becomes tacky when gasoline is poured on it. The tire may be used 20 minutes after it has been repaired. In warm weather the new shoe, by virtue of its uncured rubber, is practically self-vulcanizing.

Optimistic Thought.

Riches are a disgrace to him who hath kingsmen in want.

When a radiator leaks it is not advisable to use material to stop the leaks from the inside.

When any part gets rusty put kerosene on it, but be sure to wipe it off after it has stood a while.

Spend an hour or two going over your instruction book and learn more about keeping your car in good shape.

Every time you change a wire wheel put grease on the metal surfaces of wheel spindle where the hub touches it.

Motorists who use one of the hand pumps will do well to give the pump a few strokes before attaching it to the valve.

Ring Recovered From Gull.

Gulls are attracted by any small shining object, which accounts for a valuable engagement ring, which was accidentally dropped overboard in mid-Atlantic, being found in the gizzard of one of these birds, shot months afterward off the coast of Maine.

CURRENT WIT and HUMOR

His Greatest Achievement.
"Before you give your answer to this Gotorox boy," said the careful mother, "you must tell me what he has achieved in the world."
"Well, mamma," said the dutiful daughter, "among other things he has achieved a father who has a million dollars, and—"

Would It Were True!
"Ah," said the facetious caller, as he found Scribson busily pounding his typewriter. "Turning out a little up-to-date fiction?"
"Yes," replied Scribson, wearily. "I'm just dashing off a note to my importunate grocer telling him that I expect to sell a story to the Friday Evening Post in a few days."

Cured.
"One of our little pigs was sick, so I gave him some sugar."
"Sugar! What for?"
"For medicine, of course. Haven't you heard of sugar-cured hams?"

Elevator Man's Jest.
"The elevator man has asked for more money."
"So?"
"Yes. He says he quits going up unless his salary goes up to."

Sidewalk Humor.
Pedestrian—Hey, mister, you're losing something.
Autoist—What is it?
Pedestrian—The pleasure of my company in your auto.—Judge.

Eating at High Prices.
"I presume you are putting a little something by for a rainy day?"
"No. I'd rather take a chance on getting wet tomorrow and have something to eat today."

His Something Near.
"He hasn't changed his occupation except in degree."
"How so?"
"He used to be a bank-runner, and now he is a walking delegate."

The Only One.
Hilda—I have an instinctive feeling that I can trust you.
De Borro—Ah, darling, how I wish that others felt as you do!

Not Drifting.
"I see Senator Spug has canned his speech of 'Whither Are We Drifting?'"
"Yes, he's on a steering committee now."

His Gentle Hint.
"Misery loves company you know."
"Yes, but right now I'm not very miserable, although I am very busy."

Spiteful.
Young Jobbies has bought a rakish roadster. It's spitework, I fear.
"How so?" asked the other.
"The money spent for that car was intended for a bungalow. Young Jobbies wants to show the girl in the case that he has no intention of proposing a second time."

Sense of Human Responsibility.
"Didn't Hamlet say something about being born to set things right?"
"I believe so," said the man who doesn't care for poetry. "You meet so many people who feel that way about public affairs and simply succeed in making matters worse."

HANDICAPPED.
"You're always complaining of colds and rheumatism. I wouldn't care so much if you only had some fashionable disease."
"I wouldn't care either, but for two things. I haven't got the price and I can't pronounce their names."

Unrest.
"I cannot see how it will pay Or keep me in temper serene If I work only eight hours a day. And worry the other sixteen."

Woman's Way.
"Why don't you ask your husband's advice?"
"I intend to, my dear, just as soon as I've made up my mind what I'll do."

An electric car on the Quincy avenue line left the rail near Scammell street, Quincy, Tuesday afternoon, and attempted to enter a house.
No one was injured.

Peter Higgins of South Boston, a brother of Mr. Higgins of Harbor Villa, East Braintree, died of pneumonia Oct. 9. Funeral services were held Sunday at 2.30 P. M. in Evergreen cemetery, Brookline. Rev. William Hyde of Trinity church officiated.

George P. Niles spent the week and with his daughter, Mrs. Henry Bullard of Milford.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wolfe and daughter Laura have gone to Philadelphia, Pa., to reside where Mr.
Wolfe has a position.

William Brown is on a visit to relatives in Worcester.

Ellwood Pray is having a bungal-ow erected on Rosiland street, North Weymouth, and will occupy it the first of next month.

Benjamin Lelorey formerly of this town who has resided in Detroit, Mich. for several years past, is in town. He is a foreman of the Construction Company that is to erect fifty huge oil tanks for the new oil company now establishing a plant on Quincy avenue.

Mrs. Guy Fletcher is home from New York and Mr. Fletcher is expected the first of next month. He has accepted a position as travelling salesman for the shoe firm which recently started business in the Cate factory on Richmond street.

Melville Cate has taken a position at the shipyard.

Francis B. Payton has sold his home, 174 Front street to Victor Hall who buys for occupancy.

Rev. C. W. Allen, Y. M. C. A. secretary at Camp Hingham, who has occupied the pulpit at the First Baptist church for several years past, is in town. He has received a unanimous call from the church to become its pastor.

James P. White, who has been confined to his home for some weeks is seriously ill, and no hopes are entertained for his recovery.

Daniel Donovan of Walnut avenue suffered a shock of paralysis Tuesday, affecting his throat so badly that he is unable to swallow, even liquids. He was taken to the Massachusetts hospital Wednesday, where he is said to be in a very precarious condition. Mr. Donovan has had very hard luck. He has been in poor health for a few years past, and a year or more ago fell, breaking his hip, and but a short time ago was able to throw away crutches and go about with the aid of a cane. His many friends are in hopes that he will regain his health.

Frank Clapp of North Scituate driver of one of Edward Dwyer's teams was buried by a cave in at the Dixon sand bank on Spring street yesterday forenoon. He was buried up to his shoulders, and it was nearly an hour before he was discovered by Mrs. Fred Bartlett. She telephoned the police and Officer Charles W. Baker with a gang of men rushed to the scene in an automobile and dug him out. He was badly bruised and strained, but no bones were broken.

Judge James H. Flint presiding at the session of the Probate Court at Quincy on Wednesday, allowed Suzie C. Guttererson of Summer street, Weymouth, administratrix of the estate of her mother, Mary F. Nash,

312 weeks at the rate of $7 per week, totaling $2,184 for labor performed.

Edward L. O'Brien of 541 Washington street spent the week end with friends in Walpole. Mr. O'Brien was a resident of that place for several years before coming to Weymouth.

Miss Olive Gernyn is on a visit to friends in Lynn.

Mrs. Frank O. Whitmarsh has been spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Edgar Howland at Rockland.

Vandall Schraut spent the week end with relatives in Medford.

Miss Lillian Smith for the past two years in the office of the Rice
& Hutchins shoe factory at South Braintree has resigned to take a course in a Boston shorthand school.

Henry Cleary of Sterling street has been recommended by Congressman Olney as a candidate for a cadet-ship at West Point. He took the physical examination at Fort Banks on Monday.

Dancing and pictures every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evening at the Bates Opera House.

The Knights of Columbus conferred the first degree upon a class of 25 candidates at their new home in Commercial square last evening.
Several of the candidates were former service men.

Rev. Edward T. Ford officiated on Monday at the funeral of George W. Bates of 113 Grant street. Interment was in East Weymouth.

E. T. Newcomb is now assistant janitor at the Odd Fellows Opera House.

Dinners were served Wednesday noon at both the White church and the Methodist Episcopal church, by the ladies. Good menus and a bountiful supply.

Ernest B. Jones of Torrey street has returned from a business trip to Cleveland, Ohio.

At the age of 73 George Washington Bates died Saturday morning after a short illness at his home on Grant street. His wife survives him.

The lot on Commercial street opposite Odd Fellows Hall has been bought by the Order of Moose. They will erect on it an up to date building.

Charles Maloney is having his Chalmers completely overhauled. He intends soon to take a trip to his former home in Maine.

Bill Shields, edge setter at Alden's has left for a weeks vacation in Maine. With Clarence Pratt he will attend the Topham Fair.

Jim Peers and his son Walter have finished painting their house on East street. The deft touch of Peers figures is an old story to that house for it was built by Jim and his sons.

Jack O'Leary, for many years a delightful worker at the Weymouth Wool Scouring plant, has given up his position there.

Dumps Hutchinson returned to work Tuesday after a pleasant vacation spent with his family at home.

William Ganghen is again superintending Jackson Square's heavy Sunday traffic. Government regulations deprived him for a time of this pleasant means of spending the Sabbath but after a little legislation he resumed his duties last week.

Fred A. Loud and family have migrated from their summer cottage at Wessagussett to their winter quarters on Madison street.

After a fifteen week's tour of Canada, Bennie Litchfield came back to East Weymouth Sunday. As before Bennie looks cheerfully upon the world and the trip seems to have agreed with him. The only noticeable change in his appearance is a recurrence of the orangey mustache he brought home from France. He visited all important points of interest going as far west as Saskatchewan.

Opposed by a much heavier team
the Weymouth High eleven was beaten by the low score of 6 to 0 at Neshua, N. H. Early in the game a kick in the head laid Rand low ruffling him out of the fray for keeps.
Bogot played a great game at full,
after the game the team was entertained at a show and supper at Y. M. C. A. They play Newton High at Newton Saturday.

John O'Connell and William Johnson returned Sunday from a tour of the Mohawk Trail.

John H. Miller, lineman, had a queer accident last week. While boring into a pole he became so interested in the progress of his work that he brought his head too close to the bit stock and his flying fist came in violent contact with what he calls the Roman part of his nose. The bit stock was undamaged.

The familiar figure of Slim, who used to be on the Provost Guard, will no more be seen in Jackson Square.
He was paid off Saturday and left Sunday night for his home in Minnesota. Slim was a four year man but he had to serve 45 days over time probably because some dizzy yeoman couldn't find his records. Yeomen are some of the reasons why Slim says he won't ship over.

Everybody in East Weymouth didn't hit the Mohawk Trail on Monday. Judging by the crowds that stormed the doors of Odd Fellows Opera House, there were considerable hundreds who stayed in town. Keiths orchestra followed the action of the picture without a hitch. Manager McGrory is fortunate to have secured their efficient services. That the public appreciates his policy of showing only high class pictures will be clearly shown by the increased patronage.

It was fine holiday weather. Let's hope that the sky is clear on the night of November 11, when the Weymouth Post of the American Legion hold their first entertainment and dance.

the Pond street hall. After the business session a small play was presented "How the Story Grew" under the direction of Mrs. Abbie Cushing Gibson, with the following members of the Auxiliary in cast: Mrs. Guy Hart, Mrs. Wilfred Dunn, Mrs. Mabel Proctor, Miss Marion Proctor, Miss
Angie Paine, Mrs. Ralph Burrell,
Miss Helen Pratt and Mrs. Gibson.

About 40 present and a social hour followed. A dainty lunch of sandwiches was served under direction of Mrs. Wilfred Dunn. The Auxiliary regrets that Mrs. Henry T. Morse is to move to another part of the town;
her presence and ready assistance at all times has been an inspiration to the Auxiliary. We hope to have her with us occasionally.

Are You on Your Grocer's Pay-Roll?

If you are marketing on the Cash-and-Carry plan—if you are doing your own selecting, buying and carrying of your groceries, you should be on your grocer's pay-roll!

YOU ARE DOING HIS WORK!

Have you ever figured out just what he pays you

Well, it costs a grocer about $30.00 per week to deliver groceries to 600 customers. In other words when these customers take the place of a delivery truck and carry their own purchases, the so-called "economy" store can afford to divide just $30 between 600 customers.

If you are one of these customers, then your share is just 5c
Is it worth it? Is it the valuation you place on your time and labor?

We cater to people who are too intelligent to be impressed with the "economy store" fallacy. Our customers have confidence in our ability to serve them without their personal supervision.

They have learned that we are expert in our line—we recommend the best things for their use and we do not ask them to be our delivery boys.

We stand back of the goods we sell. Take BAKING POWDER for instance. We feature RYZON because we know its value from using it in our own homes. RYZON is 40 cents per pound and worth more—it is dependable and, used with the Ryzon Baking Book, you can always count on 100% results from your baking.

Ask how to get these 200 tested recipes for 30 cents.

—Mrs. Augustus Ducker of Main street is visiting the Rebekah Lodge at Portland, Maine, with the Rebekah Assembly Board.

—C. E. Small of West street has sold his estate to Harold Fay of East Weymouth who buys for occupancy.

—Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Gardner entertained Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Herlihy of Cambridge over the holiday.

Every indication points to the greatest winter, for all lines of sport, in the history of the country and we want the C. M. A. to be on the "front line" with a crackerjack team in basket ball, boxing and wrestling. There is plenty of championship material in Weymouth and now is the chance to show the world what we can do.

Basket ball practice will start Wednesday night, Oct. 22, and anyone who can hit the backboard is urged to be on hand in a suit ready for business. If we can get three or four teams we will play off a tournament to pick the best players to represent the association. Remember the date, Oct. 22.

About five years ago the C. M. A. had one of the cleverest wrestling teams in New England, and the tournaments held at the local gym were in many respects better than the New England championships. The World War took so many wrestlers, not only from the C. M. A., but from all the organizations in and around Boston, that the game has been practically dead, but it is coming back stronger than ever this winter. We want to put on a better team this season than ever before, and all the young "hustlers" in town are needed to make this possible. As coach for wrestling this winter we have secured Basil Warren, better known as "Runny," and he wants to meet all interested in the game on Thursday night, Oct. 23. "Runny" has a remarkable record on the mat, having won the National Y. M. C. A. heavyweight championship two years, and he has good coaching ability having served two seasons in that capacity at the Boston Y. M. C. A. During the World War "Runny" was in the Navy on board the U. S. S. Manning. Those interested in wrestling will remember the date of the first practice Thursday night, Oct. 23. We want men in all classes from 115 lbs up.

Boxers attention, Fred Cushman has been engaged to teach boxing at the Association during the winter, and any member wishing to take up the "Manly Art" can do so free of charge. On Monday night beginning Oct. 27, from 7 to 9 o'clock, the gymnasium will be given over to the boxing class. As in wrestling we want men in all classes, from 115 lbs up. Boxing is booming as never before, and there will be all kinds of chances to box in amateur meets this season. Mr. Cushman is an instructor of marked ability, and can teach you the inside points of the game. Join now; lessons free.

Those interested to learn tumbling in all its branches will have the chance of a lifetime this winter under the direction of William Mitchell, formerly on Keith's Circuit. Mr. Mitchell will be at the gym Monday Wednesday and Friday nights and will be glad to show you how its done.

Ladies gym classes going "Over the Top." Eighty-eight was the total attendance on Tuesday. Always room for more. We expect to add another class, join now.

Although the cost of maintaining the Association has more than doubled since 1914, the directors are to continue the policy established at that time, of giving all new members, that join prior to January 1, the balance of 1919. So anyone joining now will be given membership to Jan. 1, 1921. Fifteen months at the price for twelve. Something for nothing. Join now, and get the full benefits.

We are to have a basket ball team to represent the Association this season, and want all who have an eye for the basket to begin training at once. Gymnasium is open every night in the week except Tuesday and Sunday.

Pool tables are being newly covered this week.

Nothing like a wayward bit of Mother Earth to grip the human heart, nothing like a wild weed patch! It is a magnet, swinging us all around into line like iron filings. It isn't a run-down condition that makes most of us take a vacation, it's the call of a wild weed patch.

CHESTNUT DISHES.

The chestnut is especially popular, being the nut most enjoyed for Halloween parties. Its own delicacy of flavor blends so well with others that it is a general favorite and always a delight to the palate. Roasted and served with apples, cider and doughnuts, an October party is quite complete.

A Tempting Entree.—Roast and mash to a paste one pound of chestnuts. Add half a cupful of cream, a teaspoonful of chopped parsley and a dash of salt with two well-beaten eggs; pour into well buttered timbale molds and bake, set in a dish of hot water. When firm, in about 25 minutes, turn out and serve with a cream sauce or with a rich tomato sauce.

A delicious soup may be made with chestnuts as a foundation. Cook a quart of chestnuts in boiling water, slip off the brown skins and drop them into cold water. Drop again into boiling water; add a small onion, three stalks of celery, a small blade of mace and a bit of bay leaf. When the nuts are tender mash through a sieve, add white stock, a tablespoonful of salt, half a teaspoonful of paprika and a pint of hot milk. When boiling hot remove to the back part of the stove and add two well-beaten eggs and a half a cupful of sweet cream. Serve hot in bouillon cups.

A Chestnut Salad.—For a dinner salad, chestnuts are delicious. Mix after blanching with chopped apple and celery; garnish with water cress and serve with a mayonnaise dressing.

Dainty Chestnut Dessert.—Prepare a custard, adding a teaspoonful of softened gelatin, a little flavoring of any kind and add a pint of prepared chestnuts. Pour into a mold, and when serving surround with whipped cream.

Brussels sprouts and chestnuts served together is a greatly appreciated dainty. Serve in a thick cream sauce.

Chestnut croquettes is another good dish and with a few pounds of chestnuts and a little forethought one may prepare any number of delicious dishes.

O suns and skies and clouds of June
And days of June together,
Ye cannot rival for one hour
October's bright blue weather.
—Helen Hunt Jackson.

FRENCH DISHES FAVORITES IN AMERICA.

We will have to admit that the French have distanced us in matters of economy. They look with dismay upon the huge roasts and juicy steaks which are found on American tables. Though France knows much, she does not know it all, by any means.

Mark Twain, in his usual entertaining vein, says: "There is here and there an American who will say he can remember rising from an European table d'hôte perfectly satisfied; but we must not overlook the fact that there is here and there an American who will lie."

Onion Soup With Eggs and Cream.—Cut up six white onions very thin and fry in a tablespoonful of butter until light brown. Then add a quart of water and a pint of milk, season with one teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper, a teaspoonful of sugar and a pinch of mace. Cook slowly for an hour and strain; beat four eggs until light, add a cupful of cream and a tablespoonful of cornstarch mixed with a little cold water; cook until the starch is well done, before adding the eggs, as the soup must not then be boiled or the eggs will curdle.

Burgundian Pate.—For this dish the breasts of two chickens must be pounded into a paste; add to this one cupful of fresh bread crumbs and half a cupful of melted butter, half a teaspoonful of salt, a dash of cayenne and five beaten yolks of eggs. Cook six livers and six gizzards one hour in good stock. Then add a cupful of chopped ham and the same amount of chopped mushrooms cooked in butter. Cook a few moments and then cool. Line a pate mold with puff paste, fill with the mixture, cover with a paste and bake slowly in a moderate oven. Cover with paper if the crust browns too quickly and add stock through the opening. Serve cold or hot.

Cream Fritters.—Take a quart of milk, one cupful of salt, a cupful of blanched and chopped almonds and a tablespoonful of orange flower water. Roll the milk, add sugar, butter and salt and cook ten minutes. Then stir in six beaten eggs, and cook until thick. Spread in a well buttered pan an inch thick to cool. When chilled cut in diamonds, dip in crumbs and egg and fry a golden brown in deep fat. Serve hot with a lemon sauce.

Let me live in my house by the side of the road
Where the race of men go by—
They are good, they are bad, they are weak, they are strong,
Wise, foolish—so am I.
Then why should I sit in the scorners' seat?
Or hurl the cynic's ban?
Let me live in my house by the side of the road
And be a friend to man.

OUT OF THE ORDINARY CHICKEN DISHES.

One tires of the usual and ordinary and longs for some new way to present the familiar.

French cooks are masters of the art of surprising with the familiar, yet one does not always wish a dish to be entirely lost in seasonings. Some of the following dishes may seem extravagant, but no scrap of meat or bit of bone need be wasted, as there is stock, salad, timbales and canapés which may be made from small bits:

Chicken a la Marengo.—This dish is said to have been originated for Napoleon after the battle of Marengo. Singe and clean a five-pound chicken and cut it up for fricassee. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan and add three tablespoonfuls of the best olive oil. When it is hot add the dark meat of the chicken and cook five minutes. Then add the white meat with salt and pepper and a bit of garlic. Mix and stir over a good fire and cook 20 minutes, until each piece is a golden brown. Have ready a tomato sauce, made from one can of tomatoes a bit each of onion, carrot, parsley, cooked thick and rubbed through a sieve; add one-half pound of fresh mushrooms and the chicken. Cook the mushrooms in fat five minutes. Arrange the chicken on a platter; add the gravy in the pan three tablespoonfuls of the tomato puree, stir until it is hot; pour over the chicken and serve.

Chicken Baked in Milk.—Melt one-fourth of a cupful of butter, add one large onion thinly sliced; cut two young chickens in pieces for serving, cover and cook slowly, turning often, for ten minutes, then add one cupful of chicken stock and cook until the chicken is tender. Remove the chicken, put stock and onion through a sieve and add one and one-half tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour creamed together. Season with salt and pepper. Arrange the chicken on a serving dish, pour the sauce around it and garnish with sliced bananas cut in diagonal slices, dipped in flour and sautéed in butter.

A widespread hopeful disposition is your only true umbrella in this vale of tears.

SOME CHOICE CAKES FOR OCCASIONS.

Careful baking is a most important point in successful cake making. If the cake is to bake one hour, watch the oven the first quarter or 25 minutes and see that it commences to rise; the second quarter it should finish rising and begin to brown; the third quarter it should finish browning and begin to shrink from the pan, and the last quarter, finishes the baking. If a cake rises in the middle and bursts open, it may have too much flour or too strong a heat. A cake filled with large holes has either too much baking powder or soda or it has not been well blended. It is not best to move a cake in the oven until it has finished rising, then it can be safely turned. The first five minutes one may turn a cake without injuring it.

Chocolate Nougat Cake.—Cream one-fourth of a cupful of butter; add gradually one and one-half cupfuls of sugar and one egg beaten; when well mixed add two-thirds of a cupful of milk, two cupfuls of flour sifted with three teaspoonfuls of baking powder; add one-half teaspoonful of vanilla. To two squares of melted chocolate add one-third of a cupful of powdered sugar; add a third of a cupful of milk and cook until smooth. Cool slightly and add to the cake mixture. Bake in layers and put between the layers and on top.

Wedding Cake.—Cream one pound of sugar gradually and beat until well mixed. Separate the whites and yolks of 12 eggs; beat the yolks until thick and lemon colored, the whites until stiff and dry. Add the yolks to the first mixture. To four cupfuls of sifted flour (one pound) reserve a third of a cupful to dredge the fruit. The rest sift with two teaspoonfuls of cinnamon and three-fourths of a teaspoonful each of allspice, mace, and nutmeg and a half-teaspoonful of cloves. Then add three tablespoonfuls of orange juice, one of rose water and two of lemon juice. Add a pound of currants and figs, three pounds of raisins, one pound of citron, all cut fine and dredged with flour. Fold in the whites before adding the fruit. Bake three hours in a slow oven.

BLOUSES AND SEPARATE SKIRTS

What with suit skirts and blouses, eparate skirts and blouses and one-piece, all-day frocks, business women and others may achieve a good many variations of apparel with the minimum outlay for garments. The same blouse answers for several skirts, the same skirt for several blouses, and variety comes of these combinations sandwiched between days when blouse and skirt are replaced with the one-piece frock. The character of the toilette depends upon the choice of styles in blouses and skirts, and the tendency of the styles is away from severely tailored things.
The mannish, high-collared shirt-waist, however, is never entirely out of style, and its virtues are emphasized when it is occasionally worn or alternated with blouses that are less severe. It is trim and businesslike, and we notice these attributes and admire them more when not brought too often to our attention. Shirtwaists are, naturally, made of materials that stand laundering well without any special care in it, while blouses of more delicate fabrics have to be washed or otherwise cleaned with care, from the nature of the material.
Blouses of georgette crepe and of crepe in combination with other materials, lead all others in point of popularity. This dainty, fragile-looking goods is, in reality, very durable. More of the new fall blouses are made of it than of any other materials and a great many of the new models are much like the smocks that made such a success in styles for summer—they have short skirts or peplums. Two new models are shown in the picture, one having a skeleton jacket and cuffs of satin and one of georgette alone, with embroidered neck and sleeve.

In separate skirts there is about as much variety as in blouses. For street wear they are shown in plain woollens, in plaid and crossbar patterns and in stripes. For afternoon there are beautifully draped velvet and satin skirts and many in the fancy weaves of silk and silk fiber. Even for evening wear we have separate skirts of net and lace and of georgette, printed chiffon and fabrics of similar character. But it is the separate skirts for street and for afternoon wear that prove most interesting to women. In the accompanying picture the crepe and satin blouse is shown worn with a plain cloth skirt. The skirt at the right is a fiber silk weave, very simple in design and designed to be useful to its wearer for almost any hour of the day.

Along Comes the Banded Sailor

Although the severely plain tailored hat is giving place to fancier styles, along comes the plainest and simplest of street hats, making a tremendous success. It is a trim, smart hat that looks well in almost any company, whether with street frock or suit. But it shines at its best when worn with a suit equally trim and simple. If you are looking for a distinctive and wholesome style, select this combination for your fall street outfit, and find yourself admired for looking "well set up"—as in a uniform.
The sailor hat of silk beaver—or hatter's plush—has been received so enthusiastically that it appears with many variations of crown and brim. Crowns are straight or belled or sloping, high or medium. Brims are more or less wide, and occasionally slightly drooping. All these sailors are banded and nearly all bands are finished with flat bows at the left side. But there are exceptions with bows that are not flat and sometimes they are set at the front of the hat. These little variations of size and shape make it possible to suit all types of faces in a hat that is equal to being universally worn without becoming tiresome.
In the group above a square-crowned, wide-brimmed model, and a sloping crown with narrower brim, show two of the popular variations of the sailor. Almost any milliner display will provide a selection of four or five varieties of the same hat.
The pretty shirred tam for a younger girl, at the left of the group, is made of velvet and has a rosette and tassel of yarn. It is a jaunty hat for a miss of a type that may be found developed in duvety and angora for street wear, and is one of several tams that appear to lead in popularity for the half-grown girl. The Blue Devil tam, made of black velvet, with a pinwheel of ostrich at the side, instead of a tassel, is a pert and saucy little affair for the flapper. The tams of angora wool are made with scarfs for the neck to match, and these scarfs, in fur color, take the place of furs for young girls. One of them appears in the picture.

Julia Bottomley

Brown a Queen's Color.

Brown is the color most often chosen for the new autumn things. It is a hue which was much affected by the beautiful Austrian, Marie Antoinette, and consequently became the rage with both men and women of the gay court of Louis XVI. In those days it was known as puce or flea color, taking its name from a most unattractive source—the back of a flea.

Treating White Spots on Furniture.

If you carelessly place a hot dish on a polished table and find a white spot, put some oil on the spot and let it remain for a few hours. Lined oil is best, but it is expensive now, so sweet oil can be used if you wish.

NEW SUPERINTENDENT.

Maurice E. McCormick of Bangor, Maine, was yesterday appointed manager of the Quincy division of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company, succeeding Manager James G. Nellis, who resigned to engage in other business. Mr. McCormick has been connected with street railways since 1896, starting with the Bangor Street Railway Company as an armature winder and working up through various positions until he became manager of the New Brunswick Power Company at St. John in 1917. He continued in this latter position until the present year.

—At the scene of an auto accident at Braintree Highlands on Monday, H. W. McCauley of Weymouth and George C. Clives of Milton also had a head on collision.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

Richard Ordynski, the head director of the Metropolitan Opera Company will be in Boston to superintend the first performance of his new musical fantasy, "Fair Helen," which is the next attraction at the Majestic Theatre, commencing October 20.

"Fair Helen" is founded on Offenbach's celebrated opera bouffe "Le Belle Helene." The new book has been written by one of America's most well known writers, Austin Long, whose last delightful comedy, "The Wise Fools" has just concluded a one year's run at the Criterion Theatre in New York, and is duplicating its American success in London at the present time. Charles Hanson Towne, editor of McClure's magazine, is responsible for the lyrics of this new gay opera, and Joseph L. M. who for the past four years has supplied the Metropolitan Opera Company with his wonderful scenic pictures, has designed and painted the three acts in which this musical offering takes place. Marcia Van Dresser will be heard in the title role. She will be accompanied by a company of one hundred and fourteen artists, including a number of the members of one of New York's most well-known orchestras.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

Mrs. Fiske will open in her delightful new comedy, "Mis' Nelly of N. Orleans" at the Hollis Street Theatre on Monday night, Oct. 20. Romance and intrigue are linked in the sprightly plot of the new comedy which tells a story of young love and love that is ever young in the magic moonlight of New Orleans. Mrs. Fiske is at her best in the character of Nelly Davenport, investing the role with all the subtlety and finesse of her rare genius and the brilliancy and rich charm of her magnetic personality. She essays the part of the audacious Mis' Nelly who has just returned to New Orleans after twenty years' absence in Paris to supervise the love affair of a young niece who has been considered enough to fall in love with the son of a former suitor of the fair Nelly—a "bull-headed" Creole who jilted her at the altar twenty years before. She is determined that the marriage shall not take place but when she meets her erstwhile lover and discovers that he is working with the same aim in view, she rapidly reverses her tactics and involves her niece, former fiance and his son in a series of laughable delicious and breathless complications.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS

Whenever a Gazette subscriber wants a change of address he should promptly notify the publisher—address, Gazette, Weymouth, Mass. Don't expect the post office authorities to do it. For the same reason, please notify the publisher when you desire the Gazette discontinued. Usually the publisher does not stop a paper without notice, although the subscription has expired.

GAZETTE ON FILE FOR 20 YEARS

Weymouth people may be interested to know, that bound volumes of the Gazette and Transcript are on file at the State Library, State Home, Boston, for permanent reference. The State Library is open to the general public.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to thank those who assisted in the recovery of the body of our brother Kenneth McFaun—and in other ways on the day of the accident. Also to thank for their schoolmates and friends for their kindness in the hour of our bereavement, and for beautiful floral tributes. (Mrs.) EDWARD FISHER. HERBERT McFAUN.

Sketches of Some of Weymouth's War Heroes

At the request of the Gazette and Transcript, relatives and friends of the war heroes of Weymouth have forwarded the following sketches of some of them altogether too brief:

THOMAS F. DONOVAN, JR.
Thomas F. Donovan, Jr., 20 Franklin street, son of Thomas F. and Rose Donovan, mustered into service at Camp Devens, Oct. 5, 1917; rank, private; Co. K, 302d Inf. Left Camp Devens for Camp Merritt, March 6, 1918. Left Camp Merritt, March 10, 1918. Killed in action Oct. 4, 1918, in Commune of St. Etienne a Aines Ardennes, France, while serving in Co. M., 9th U. S. Inf.

GEORGE T. NESBIT.
George T. Nesbit was born in Quincy in 1891, being 27 years of age at the time of his death. His parents Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Nesbit moved to Weymouth in 1905 and now reside at 245 Pond street. He enlisted in Troop C, Cavalry, May 1917, and then Troop C, 102d Machine Gun Battalion in July, 1917, at Framingham, Mass. Was sent to France in September of same year. Had previously served three years in the Old Roxbury Horse Guard and did guard duty in the Lawrence strike in 1912.

HAROLD BRITTON KLINGEMAN
Harold Britton Klingeman was born in Pembroke, Mass., July 7, 1897. The early years of his life were spent in New York city where he received his education. While a pupil at the Newton High School, Elmhurst, Long Island, New York, he was a member of the class in manual training, where he turned out some very fine specimens of cabinet work, several of which are retained by the family. He was ambitious, always ready, working and looking for advancement. Fond of our door sports, to which he devoted most of his leisure time, was of a jovial disposition, and received a great deal of pleasure from his out-door life. Thoughtful and considerate of the feelings of others, straight forward and strictly temperate in his habits. He was always a favorite among his companions.

In Oct. 1914 he removed with his parents to South Weymouth. Soon after this he took his first position at Hill & Hill, Federal street, Boston, where he remained for about a year. He was then employed in the clerical department of the American Agricultural and Chemical Co., 52 State street, Boston, where his duties were interrupted by his enlistment and departure for camp. He enlisted in Troop C, 1st Squadron of Massachusetts Cavalry, Boston, leaving for France Sept. 21, 1917 with the same outfit, then changed to Company C, 102d Machine Gun Battalion. During the six months training in France, his work was largely clerical although his military training was kept up with the rest. On July 22, 1918, during the battle of Chateau Thierry he was severely gassed, and was in the hospital five or six weeks, joining his company again around the first of Sept. 1918. Received the rank of corporal shortly before the armistice was signed. He was killed in action in the Argonne forest, Nov. 10, 1918.

VINCENT L. GORMAN.
Vincent L. Gorman was born in East Weymouth. Graduated from the grammar school in 1911 and from High school in 1915. He was captain of the base ball team that year. He then took up a position as head paymaster at the office of the Hood Rubber Company, East Watertown.

Then came the call of his country which he answered willingly. He enlisted Oct. 12, 1917, in the Aviation Corps. He went to Fort Slocum, New York, Oct. 20, 1917, and was transferred to San Antonio, Texas, into the 50th Aero Squadron. He left Texas January 1, 1918, for Long Island New York. He came home on a forty-eight hour leave, was married, and received extension of four days. By doing so lost the ship and was transferred to the 100th Aero Squadron which left on the Tuscauta, and was torpedoed Feb. 5, 1918. He was assigned to life boat No. 10 which was dashed to pieces on the coast of Scotland and as far as can be learned from his commanding officer, he now lies in an unidentified and lonely grave. He leaves a widow, a father and mother, six sisters and two brothers. Gone but not forgotten by a heartbroken mother, father, sisters and brothers.

Other sketches of Weymouth boys who made the supreme sacrifice will be printed next week.

RALPH TALBOT
"It was characteristic of Dick to refrain from relating his exploits, even to his most intimate relations. And yet they were deeds worthy to be written among the greatest accomplished by the Americans.

Our pilots were sent to a British school, called the Pilot's Pool for a bit of practise after so long an absence from flying. Dick was the first from our squadron to go, leaving September 15. His flying attracted so much attention that he was allowed to take a Camel scout out, a privilege not given to the rest of our pilots.

Dick finished there about the 22nd and was given our only DeHaviland 4, with Liberty motor, to operate with the British.

About that time they were engaged in dropping bully beef to a detachment of French troops cut off from their supply base, and he got some of that work. It was quite dangerous, as the tins were dropped from under five hundred feet, and the ships were exposed to a terrific machine gun and rifle fire. It took stamina of the highest sort to stand the grueling, but Dick enjoyed it. He used to laugh about his aerial grocery work.

Then he went high bombing with the British, bombing Ostend and Zee Bruges from 12,000 feet. As his machine was so fast, he was given the very hard task of protecting the rear of the squadron. He could dive and circle about without being out-distanced.

On his first, or almost first raid, the squadron engaged in a running fight with a superior number of Huns and Dick, with his gunner, Corporal Robinson, shot down one Boche plane, for which he was given official credit by the British and commended by the commanding officer of the First Marine Aviation Force. After a few more raids he was recalled, to stand by until our squadron was ready.

On his first raid, Dick had motor trouble and hung about five hundred feet below the squadron. After two hours the ships straggled in, one by one, but Dick and Capt. Lytle were missing. Several hours later Dick came in with his plane shot very badly and his gunner missing.

It developed that eleven Huns had dived on him, that eight were too slow and remained firing from a distance, while three kept diving on him and firing. Robinson shot one down and his gun jammed. At that instant he received a stream of bullets through his left arm, rendering it useless.

While he was working with the gun, Dick turned on the Huns with his forward guns, but after three or four shots, they jammed.

Then Robinson recovering, shot down a second. The third dove and shot him through the chest and stomach.

Dick turned on the third with all guns useless, one of the most daring, magnificent bluffs of the war. Then, Robinson, having fainted and fallen on the controls, Dick dove to within

Nine Lives.
When they were organizing the American Legion there were some heated debates on various organization points. One delegation had a membership idea that it wanted put through. The majority turned it down on the ground that it was un-American. That was too much for one returned veteran. He came up on both feet with a roar.
"Do I understand," he demanded, waving both arms, "that those of us that went across have died in vain?" He was assured that such was not the case.
"Well, that's all I want to know," he said. "If I thought I had given up my life without result I would rise up in my grave!"

Much Decorated Flag.
At the New York Metropolitan museum there has just been placed on view a small flag, which possesses not a little sentimental interest. It was the official emblem of the first American organization which went to the front and the only one to remain under fire throughout the war. This was the American ambulance corps, which attracted volunteers from all parts of our country, and which was, of course, transferred to the service of our government (under the title, S. S. U. 5-646) as soon as the United States entered the struggle. Throughout years of suffering this American unit stuck grimly to its task. It took part in every great French engagement and many of its men were buried on the field. Its flag was honored whenever it appeared; it bears, in fact, no less than six Croix de Guerre, and it is decorated with two of the highly prized shoulder knots of fourrageres, which were affixed to it by Marshals Foch and Petain. A seventh cross is about to be added.

"DON'T MOVE OR CRY OUT! OBEY ORDERS!"

Synopsis.—In 1832 Lieutenant Knox of the regular army is on duty at Fort Armstrong, Rock Island, Ill., in territory threatened by disaffected Indians. The commandant sends him with dispatches to St. Louis. He takes passage on the steamer Warrior and makes the acquaintance of Judge Beaucaire, rich planter, and of Joe Kirby (the Devil's Own), notorious gambler. Knox learns Judge Beaucaire has a daughter, Elaine, and a granddaughter, Rene, offspring of a son whom the judge has disowned. Rene's mother is a negress, and she and her daughter, never having been freed, are slaves under the law, although the girls have been brought up as sisters. Kirby induces the judge to stake his plantation and negro servants on a poker hand unfairly dealt by Joe Carver, Kirby's partner. Kirby accuses the judge of cheating. Beaucaire, infuriated, drops dead. Knox tries to induce Kirby to give up his stolen winnings. Kirby and Carver throw Knox overboard. The lieutenant swims ashore and reaches a hut. Knox lies unconscious for ten days. Recovering, he finds he is in a cabin owned by Pete, a "free nigger," who had shot him, mistaking him for an enemy. His dispatches have been forwarded. Recovering from his wound, Knox sends Pete to bring Haynes, Beaucaire's lawyer, and they arrange, with Pete's help, to get the women to the cabin of an abolitionist, Amos Shunk, before Kirby comes. At the Beaucaire place Knox overhears a conversation between the sheriff and his deputy, and learns the truth about the situation. He is witness to an interview between Kirby and a girl who says she is Rene Beaucaire. Kirby insults the girl, and Knox attacks him. Believing Kirby dead, Knox explains affairs to the girl, and she agrees to try to escape with him.

CHAPTER VII—Continued.

"Have you ever visited the mouth of Saunders' creek? You have! How far away is that from here?"

"Not more than half a mile; it enters the river just below the Landing."

"And, if I understood you rightly," I urged eagerly, "you said that these fellows left their keelboat there; that it had been rigged up to run by steam, and had no guard aboard except the engineer; you are sure of this?"

"That was what the man who talked to me first said—the deputy sheriff. He boasted that they had the only keelboat on the river equipped with an engine and had come up from St. Louis in two hours. You—you think we could use that?"

"It seems to be all that is left us. I intend to make the effort, anyway. You had better show me the road."

I followed her closely, a mere shadow, as she silently led the way along the edge of the wood and back of the negro quarters. I felt confident of being able safely to approach the unsuspecting engineer and overcome any resistance before he could realize the possibility of attack. I was obliged to rely upon a guess at the time of night, yet surely it could not be long after twelve and there must remain hours of darkness amply sufficient for our purpose. With the boat once securely in our possession the engineer compelled to serve, for I had no skill in that line, we could strike out directly for the opposite shore and creep along in its shadows past the sleeping town at the Landing until we attained the deserted waters above. By then we should practically be beyond immediate pursuit. Even if Carver or the sheriff discovered Kirby, any immediate chase by river would be impossible. Nothing was available for their use except a few rowboats at the Landing; they would know nothing as to whether we had gone up or down stream, while the coming of the early daylight would surely permit us to discover some place of concealment along the desolate Illinois shore. Desperate as the attempt undoubtedly was the situation as I considered it in all its details brought me faith in our success and fresh encouragement to make the effort.

We moved forward slowly. I took the lead myself, bending low and feeling carefully for footing in the wiry grass. The darkness so shrouded everything, blending objects into shapeless shadows, that it required several moments before I could clearly determine the exact details. The mouth of the creek, a good-sized stream, was only a few yards away, and the boat, rather a larger craft than I had anticipated seeing, lay just off shore, with stern to the bank, as though prepared for instant departure. It was securely held in position by a rope, probably looped about a convenient stump, and my eyes were finally able to trace the outlines of the wheel by which it was propelled. Except for straggling rushes extending to the edge of the water, the space between was vacant yet sufficiently mantled in darkness to enable one to creep forward unseen.

At first glance I could distinguish no sign of the boatman left in charge. But even as I lay there, breathless and uncertain, he suddenly revealed his presence by lighting a lantern in the stern. The illumination was feeble enough yet sufficient to expose to view the small, unprotected engine aft, and also the fact that all forward of the little cockpit in which it stood the entire craft was decked over. The fellow was busily engaged in overhauling the machinery, leaning far forward, his body indistinct, the lantern swinging in one hand, with entire attention devoted to his task. Occasionally, as he lifted his head for some purpose, the dim radiance fell upon his face, revealing the unmistakable countenance of a mulatto, a fellow of medium size, broad of cheek, with unusually full lips and a fringe of whisker turning gray. Somehow this revelation that he was a negro and not a white man brought with it to me an additional confidence in success. I inclined my head and whispered in the girl's ear:

"You are not to move from here until I call. This is to be my part of the work, handling that lad. I am going now."

"He is colored, is he not—a slave?" "We can only guess as to that. But he does not look to me like a hard proposition. If I can only reach the boat without being seen the rest will be easy. Now is the proper time, while he is busy tinkering with the engine. You will stay here?"

"Yes, of course; I—I could be of no help."

She suddenly held out her hand, as though impelled to the action by some swift impulse, and the warm pressure of her fingers meant more than words. I could not see the expression on her face, yet knew the slender body was trembling nervously.

"Surely you are not afraid?" "Oh, no; it is not that—I—I am all unstrung. You must not think of me at all."

I realized the gravity of my task, and my eyes were watchful of the shrouded figure I was silently approaching. I drew nearer inch by inch, advancing so slowly and snake-like that not even the slightest sound of movement aroused suspicion. Apparently the fellow was engaged in oiling the machinery, for he had placed the lantern on deck and held a long-spouted can in his fingers. His back remained toward me as I drew near the stern, and consequently I no longer had a glimpse of his face. The wooden wheel of the boat, a clumsy-looking apparatus, rested almost directly against the bank, where the water was evidently deep enough to float the vessel, and the single rope holding it in position was drawn taut from the pressure of the current. Waiting until the man was compelled to bend lower over his work, utterly unconscious of my presence, I straightened up and, pistol in hand, stepped upon the wooden beam supporting the wheel. He must have heard this movement, for he lifted his head quickly, yet was even then too late; already I had gained the afterdeck, and my weapon was on a level with his eyes.

"Don't move or cry out!" I commanded sternly. "Obey orders and you will not be hurt."

He shrank away, sinking upon the bench, his face upturned so that the light fell full upon it, for the instant too greatly surprised and frightened to give utterance to a sound. His mouth hung open, and his eyes stared at me.

His Mouth Hung Open and His Eyes Stared at Me.

"Who—who was yer? Whatna want yere?"

"I am asking questions and you are answering them. Are you armed? All right, then; hand it over. Now put that light."

He did exactly as I told him, moving as though paralyzed by fear, yet unable to resist.

"You are a negro—a slave?"

"Yes, sah; Ah's Massa Donaldson's boy from St. Louee."

"He is the sheriff?"

"Yes, sah—yes, sah. What is Massa Donaldson? Yer ain't done bin sent yere by him, I reckon. 'Pears like I never see yer afore."

"No; but he is quite safe. What is your name?"

"Sam, sah—just plain Sam."

"Well, Sam, I understand you are an engineer. Now, it happens that I want to use this boat, and you are going to run it for me, do you understand? I am going to sit down here on the edge of this cockpit and hold this loaded pistol just back of your ear. It might go off at any minute, and surely will if you make a false move or attempt to foul the engine. Any trick, and there is going to be a dead nigger overboard. I know enough about engines to tell if you play fair—so don't take any chances, boy."

"Ah—Ah—reckon as how I was goin' fer ter run her all right, sah; she's sum conside'ble contrary et times, sah, but Ah'll surely run her, if that's eny run in her, sah. Ah ain't carin' 'bout bein' no corpse."

"I thought not; you'd rather be a free nigger, perhaps? Well, Sam, if you will do this job all right for me tonight I'll put you where the sheriff will never see hide nor hair of you again—no, not yet; wait a moment, there is another passenger."

She came instantly in answer to my low call, and through the gloom the startled negro watched her descend the bank, a mere moving shadow, yet with the outlines of a woman. I half believe he thought her a ghost, for I could hear him muttering inarticulately to himself. I dared not remove my eyes from the fellow, afraid that his very excess of fear might impel him to some reckless act, but I extended one hand across the side of the boat to her assistance.

"Take my hand, Rene," I said pleasantly, to reassure her, "and come aboard. Yes, everything is all right. I've just promised Sam here a ticket for Canada."

I helped her across into the cockpit and seated her on the bench, but never venturing to remove my eyes from the negro. His actions and whatever I was able to observe of the expression of his face only served to convince me of his trustworthiness, yet I could take no chances.

"She's just a real, live woman, sah?" he managed to ejaculate, half in doubt. "She sure ain't no ghost, sah?"

"By no means, Sam; she is just as real as either you or I. Now listen, boy—you know what will happen to you after this, if Donaldson ever gets hold of you?"

"I spects I does, sah. He'd just nat'ally skin dis nigger alive, Ah reckon."

"Very well, then; it is up to you to get away, and I take it that you understand this river. We are going to head upstream."

"Yes, sir; yer plannin' fer ter go nor'. Wal, sah, dar's plenty o' watah fer dis yere boat right now, wid de spring floods. Nothin' fer ter be afere'd o' 'bout dat."

"That is good news. Now, Sam, I am going to cut this line, and I want you to steer straight across into the shadows of the Illinois shore. I believe you are going to play square, but for the present I'm going to take no chances with you. I am holding this pistol within a foot of your head, and your life means nothing to me if you try any trick. What is the speed of this boat upstream?"

"'Bout ten mlie an hour, sah."

"Well, don't push her too hard at first, and run that engine as noiselessly as possible. Are you ready? Yes—then I'll cut loose."

I severed the line and we began to recede from the shore, cutting diagonally across the decidedly swift current. Once beyond the protection of the point the star-gleam revealed the sturdy rush of the waters, occasionally flecked with bubbles of foam. Sam handled the unwieldy craft with the skill of a practiced boatman, and the laboring engine made far less racket than I had anticipated. Pistol in hand, and vigilant to every motion of the negro, my eyes swept along that vague shore line, catching nowhere a spark of light, nor any evidence that the steady chug of our engine had created alarm. We were alone upon the mysterious bosom of the vast stream, tossed about in the full sweep of the current, yet moving steadily forward, and already safely beyond both sight and sound.

Every moment of progress tended to increase my confidence in Sam's loyalty. The fellow plainly enough realized the situation—that safety for himself depended on keeping beyond the reach of his master. To this end he devoted every instant diligently to coaxing his engine and a skillful guidance of the boat, never once permitting his head to turn far enough to glance at me, although I could occasionally detect his eyes wandering in the direction of the girl.

She had not uttered a word nor changed her posture since first entering the boat, but remained just as I had seated her, one hand grasping the edge of the cockpit, her gaze on the rushing waters ahead. I could realize something of what must be passing through her mind—the mingling of doubt and fear which assailed her in this strange environment. Up until now she had been accorded no opportunity to think, to consider the nature of her position; she had been compelled to act wholly upon impulse and driven blindly to accept my suggestions. And now, in this silence, the reaction had come, and she was already questioning if she had done right.

It was in my heart to speak to her, in effort to strengthen her faith, but I hesitated, scarcely knowing what to say, deeply touched by the pathetic droop of her figure, and in truth uncertain in my own mind as to whether or not we had chosen the wiser course. All I dared do was to silently reach out one hand and rest it gently on those fingers clasping the rail. She did not remove her hand from beneath mine, nor indeed give the slightest evidence that she was even aware of my action.

"Wus Ah to turn nor', sah?" asked the negro suddenly.

"Yes, upstream; but keep in as close to the shore as you think safe. There is no settlement along this bank, is there?"

"No, sah; dar's jus' one cabin, 'bout a mlie upstream, but dar ain't nobody livin' thar now. Whar yer all aim fer ter go?"

I hesitated an instant before I answered, yet almost as quickly decided that the whole truth would probably serve us best. The man already had one reason to use his best endeavors; now I would bring before him a second.

"Just as far up the river before daylight as possible, Sam. Then I hope to uncover some hiding place where we can lie concealed until it is dark again. Do you know any such place?"

"On de Illinois shore, sah? Le's see; thar's Rassuer creek, 'bout twenty mlie up. Ah spects you all knows whut yer a headin' fer?"

"To a certain extent—yes; but we had to decide on this action very quickly, with no chance to plan it out. I am aiming at the mouth of the Illinois."

He glanced about at me, vainly endeavoring to decipher my expression in the gloom.

"De Illinois ribber, boss; whut yer hope fer find thar?"

"A certain man I've heard about. Did you ever happen to hear a white man mentioned who lives near there? His name is Amos Shunk."

I could scarcely distinguish his eyes, but I could feel them. I thought for a moment he would not answer.

"Yer'll surely excuse me, sah," he said at last, humbly, his voice with a note of pleading in it. "Ah's feelin' friendly 'nough an' all dat, sah, but still yer mus' member dat Ah's talkin' ter a perfect stranger. If yer wud sure tell me fustt whut yer was aimin' at, then maybe Ah'd know a heap mo' Ah do now."

"I guess you are right, Sam. I'll tell you the whole of it. I am endeavoring to help this young woman to escape those men back yonder. You must know why they were there; no doubt you overheard them talk coming up?"

"Yes, sah; Massa Donaldson he was goin' up fer ter serve sum papers fer Massa Kirby, so he cud run off de Beaucaire niggers. But dis yere gal, she ain't no nigger—she's just a white pusson."

"She is a slave under the law," I said gravely, as she made an effort to move, "and the man Kirby claims her."

I could see his mouth fly open, but the surprise of this statement halted his efforts at speech.

"That explains the whole situation," I went on. "Now will you answer me?"

"'Bout dis yere Massa Shunk?"

"Yes—you have heard of him before?"

"Ah reckon as how maybe Ah has, sah."

"Do you know where he can be found?"

"Not perzakely, sah. Ah ain't never ont bin thar, but Ah sorter seems fer ter recollect 'sum'thin' 'bout whar he might be. Ah reckon maybe Ah cud go thar, if Ah jus' had it. Ah reckon if yer all held dat pistol plum 'gainst mah hed, Ah'd mos' likely find dis Amos Shunk. Good Lord, sah!"

And his voice sank to a whisper, "Ah just can't git hol' o' all dis—Ah sure can't, sah—'bout her bein' a nigger."

Rene turned about, lifting her face into the starlight.

"Whether I am white or colored, Sam," she said quietly, "can make little difference to you now. I am a woman and am asking your help. I can trust you, can I not?"

The negro on his knees stared at her, the whites of his eyes conspicuous. Then suddenly he jerked off his old hat.

"Ah spects yer kin, missus," he pledged himself in a tone of conviction which made my heart leap. "Ah's bin a slave-nigger fer forty-five years, but just de same Ah ain't never bin mean ter no woman. Yes, sah, yer ask Sam no mo'—he's a-goin' thro' wid yer all ter de end—he sure am, ma'am."

Silence descended upon us, and I slipped the pistol back into my pocket. Rene rested her cheek on her hand and gazed straight ahead into the night. Far off to the left a few twinkling lights appeared, barely perceptible, and I touched the negro, pointing them out to him and whispering my question so as not to disturb the motionless girl.

"Is that the Landing over there?" "Ah certainly spects it must be," said Rene; "dar ain't no other town directly 'round dese parts."

"Then those lights higher up must be on the bluff at Beaucaire?"

"Yes, sah; looks like de whole house was lit up. I reckon thinks am right lively up thar 'bout now." He chuckled to himself, smothering a laugh. "It's sure goin' fer ter bother Massa Donaldson ter lose dis nigger, sah, fer Ah's de only one he's got."

The lights slowly faded away in the far distance, finally disappearing altogether as we rounded a sharp bend in the river bank. The engine increased its stroke, giving vent to louder chugging, and I could feel the strain of the planks beneath us as we battled the current. This new noise may have aroused her, for Rene lifted her head as though suddenly startled and glanced about in my direction.

"We have passed the village?" she asked, rather listlessly.

"Yes; it is already out of sight. From the number of lights burning I imagine our escape has been discovered."

"And what will they do?"—an echo of dismay in her voice.

All fear of any treachery on the part of the negro had completely deserted me, and I slipped down from my perch on the edge of the cockpit to a place on the bench at her side. She made no motion to draw away, but her eyes were upon my face, as though seeking to read the meaning of my sudden action.

"We can talk better here," I explained. "The engine makes so much noise."

"You have not yet explained to me what we were to do. Your plans for tomorrow?"

"Because I scarcely have any," I replied. "This has all occurred so suddenly I have only acted upon impulse. No doubt those back at the Landing will endeavor to pursue us; they may have discovered already our means of escape and procured boats. My principal hope is that they may take it for granted that we have chosen the easier way and gone downstream. If so we shall gain so much more time to get beyond their reach."

But Her Eyes Were Upon My Face, As Though Seeking to Read the Meaning of My Sudden Action.

"But why have you chosen the northern route? Surely you had a reason?"

"Certainly; it was to deceive them and get out of slave territory as quickly as possible. There are friends in this direction and none in the other. If we should endeavor to flee by way of the Ohio we would be compelled to run a thousand-mile gantlet. There are slaves in Illinois—it has never been declared a free state—but these are held almost exclusively in the more southern counties. North of the river the settlers are largely from New England, and the majority of them hate slavery and are ready to assist any runaway to freedom."

"But you have spoken of a man—Amos Shunk—who is he?"

"You have certainly heard rumors, at least, that there are regular routes of escape from here to Canada?"

"Yes; it has been discussed at the house. I have never clearly understood, but I do know that slaves disappear and are never caught. I was told white men helped them."

"It is accomplished through organized effort by these men—Black Abolitionists, as they are called—haters of slavery. They are banded together in a secret society for this one purpose and have what they call stations scattered all along at a certain distance apart—a night's travel—from the Mississippi to the Canadian line, where the fugitives are hidden and fed. A station keeper, I am told, is only permitted to know a few miles of the route, those he must cover—the system is perfect, and many are engaged in it who are never even suspected."

"And this man—is he one?" "Yes—a leader; he operates the most dangerous station of all. The escaping slaves come to him first."

She asked no further questions, and after a moment turned away, resting back against the edge of the cockpit with chin cupped in the hollow of her hand. The profile of her face was clearly defined by the starlight reflected by the river, and I found it hard to withdraw my eyes. A movement by the negro attracted my attention.

"There is a small creek about four miles above the Landing, Sam," I said shortly. "Do you think you could find it?"

"On de Missouri side, sah? Ah reckon Ah cud."

Grease on Wallpaper.

To remove grease spots from wallpaper, sprinkle a piece of blotting paper with carbonate of soda and press it against the wall with a moderately hot iron. The blotting paper will absorb the grease, while the soda preserves the color of the paper.

S. O. S.

If Constipated, Bilious or Headachy, take "Cascarets"

Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, or sour, gassy stomach—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissues it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep.—Adv.

Encircling Movements.

"DANDERINE" PUTS BEAUTY IN HAIR

Girls! A mass of long, thick, gleamy tresses

Let "Danderine" save your hair and double its beauty. You can have lots of long, thick, strong, lustrous hair. Don't let it stay lifeless, thin, scraggly or fading. Bring back its color, vigor and vitality.

Get a 35-cent bottle of delightful "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter to freshen your scalp; check dandruff and falling hair. Your hair needs this stimulating tonic; then its life, color, brightness and abundance will return—Hurry!—Adv.

Two Estimates.

"The poor fish!"

A Feeling of Security

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder remedy. The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs.

It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses.

It is not recommended for everything. It is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Many Do.

Lift off Corns!

Doesn't hurt a bit and Freezons costs only a few cents.

With your fingers! You can lift off any hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the hard skin calluses from bottom of feet.

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs little at any drug store; apply a few drops upon the corn or callus. Instantly it stops hurting, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callus right off, root and all, without one bit of pain or soreness. Truly! No humbug!—Adv.

CHURCH NOTES

FIRST UNIVERSALIST CHURCH Weymouth

"Purpose for Progress," will be Mr. Whipple's subject on Sunday at 10.30 A. M. This service is open to all. Your presence is solicited. God cannot win alone without man's help. Neither can man win without God's help to any measure of success. Come!

Church school will meet at 11.45 A. M. in Lincoln hall. Pictures suggest some of the great thoughts of the Bible. Miss Esther Bicknell, superintendent.

The three representatives of our young people at the annual Y. P. C. U. convention at Worcester report a fine convention and an enjoyable visitation. Five dollars was pledged toward the young people's work for the coming year.

John P. Hunt, delegate to the Worcester convention, will start Monday night for the week's meetings. Oct. 21-25. Mr. Hunt will also attend the Congressional meetings at Washington as part of his trip.

On Sunday, November 1, the preaching session will be given over to reports by Mr. Hunt and Mr. Whipple. Our regular service will be held on Oct. 25, the pastors returning Saturday for this meeting.

The Men's Club will hold its meeting on October 21, in Lincoln hall, preceded by a supper at 7 o'clock. Secretary of State Langtry will be the speaker. All the men of the community are invited.

THIRD UNIVERSALIST CHURCH North Weymouth

Mr. Whipple will conduct the regular service at 2.30 P. M. on Sunday; his subject: "Purpose for Progress, or the church in the balance." Our choir is a valuable part of the service. Miss Ina Leionenen, soloist; Mrs. John Taylor, organist. All seats are free.

Church school is at 1.15 P. M. The Blue and Red contest is on. Let your children find which side they are on, then cheer for your side. The handwork in the school is a most valuable addition. It takes into consideration the activity, and vitality of youth.

The interest in this case should prove high. Let your children derive all the benefits that may be obtained. The best note-books will be exhibited on Children's Day next year, and the very best at the State Sunday School Convention at Waltham in May. Help make this year a great year of joy for the younger ones.

Y. P. C. U. will meet at 7 P. M. Sunday, the subject: "The Importance of Certain Virtues—Humility, Honesty, Purity, etc." After the many conventions we have attended we shall have new enthusiasm to enter our devotions and all union activities.

Our delegation to Worcester, at the 50th Y. P. C. U. State Convention counted nine as we all gathered with our three colleagues from the Land. At the dinner at Hotel Warren it took three tables of four to seat our party. An active part taken in the business of Monday morning by the young people, something like thirty-five dollars being pledged for State union work, ten dollars being for the local union to raise. The courteous welcome received at Worcester, the pleasure of renewing old associations, and the delightful rides by motor to and fro, contributed largely to the enjoyment of this outing.

Our young people will look forward to the annual banquet with increasing interest.

Mrs. John Leighton leaves October 21 for the National Church and church school convention at Baltimore, Maryland. Mrs. Leighton goes as our delegate and will make report on her return. Few people understand the value to a local institution of a representative at national assemblies. It is in accord with the democratic idea of representation, just as Weymouth wants a representative at the State House, and remonstrates if it could not have one. It pays to send it.

Also it is a good idea sometime to advertise the fact that we are not moss-grown or too feeble to travel. Every representative who goes to a convention makes increased prestige for the local unit. Our young people are giving us excellent advertising in foreign circles. We are glad to send Mrs. Leighton to report for us and of us at this meeting.

The Teacher's Training Class will meet on Monday, Oct. 20, at the ladies' parlor, owing to the fact that Mr. Whipple is to leave for Baltimore on Wednesday. These meetings including both Weymouth and North Weymouth teachers promise to be helpful to all. The study next week will be methods of teaching. Part II, Chapter 2. These studies are of interest to those who do not teach. Mothers in particular are invited. "The Pilgrim Training Course" is the book.

We have already welcomed a new pastor into our community life. He will prove of benefit not alone to his own but to us all. His presence in our midst is a help, and we greet his family as friends. Now that barriers are being tread down in the impulse to get together, we are able to welcome a new pastor as a co-worker. Certainly we shall be disappointed if this coming is not the signal for an even greater fellowship between our two churches than the already cordial relationship existing now and in the past. It is expected that our people will accept Mr. and Mrs. Butler as comrades and friends in the community life. So may it be.

The tickets for the Musical Club concert will soon be on sale. Remember last year, and buy early.

After the reading of the Declaration of Independence, by Mr. Edward Bicknell, an undergraduate of Harvard University, the principal address of the occasion was delivered by Charles Francis Adams, Jr., Esq., who, by his animated delivery and felicitous treatment of his theme, held the undivided attention of his large audience until the close of this admirable address.

Upon its conclusion, the Hon. Chas. Francis Adams, Sr., was called upon by the President of the day, and briefly responded in a humorous speech. He said that it was not customary to select entertainments to tomory at select entertainments to tomory, and that he thought they had been treated to a pretty large dish of the Adamses. He would therefore only consent to appear in the shape of a sauce. He was much impressed by the beauty of the prospect from the hill on which they were assembled and had felt ashamed to confess that he had never before been upon it. It was some relief, however, to be informed that one of the oldest citizens of Weymouth had that day made the ascent for the first time.

Alluding to the historical fact that President John Adams, when a young man, had come to Weymouth for a wife, the speaker facetiously remarked that if this event had not happened, neither of the Adamses—father nor son—would very likely have been there at that time. Referring to the address of his son, he disputed the statement that Thomas Morton, of unsavory memory, was the first settler of Quincy; alleging that he was only a carpet-bagger after the modern model and came there to make use of the Indians for his own private ends.

The following original hymn, written by Rev. George F. Stanton, pastor of the Old South Congregational church in Weymouth, was sung by the choir, the audience joining, to the familiar strains of Auld Lang Syne:

Scarce had the Mayflower's noble band,
On Plymouth's sterile shore,
Upreared their altars and their homes,
Their stormy wanderings o'er.
When, lo, on Vessagus's hills
The answering beacons shine,
Where other pilgrims-souls have found
Fair Freedom's sacred shrine.

Whatever their hopes or aims or fears,
As first these fields they trod;
They brought, as did our Plymouth sires,
Trust in the living God,
Faith, Freedom, Knowledge, these they sought,
Our blessing of today,
A heritage, increasing still,
As ages roll away.

Two centuries and a half have reaped
The harvest they have sown;
And nobler sheaves are ripening still,
For coming reapers grown.
God owned the faith which honored Him;
His blessings, rich and rare,
Have never failed, and all our homes
Their glorious fullness share.

We trace the long, long ages back;
They glow with light divine;
God's love illumined them, and we pray
Ten thousand hearts rejoice today,
And praise his guiding grace,
That gave our fathers these fair fields
This blest abiding place.

POISON LABEL.

Completely denatured alcohol, before being sold by either wholesaler or retailer, must now have under the familiar skull and bones symbol a new label printed in red bearing the word "poison" and a statement showing the injurious effects it has upon the skin and animal tissues. This change in labeling is due to a ruling by the Internal Revenue Bureau following reports of the abuses of completely denatured alcohol.

POSITIVE PROOF

Should Convince the Greatest Skeptic in Weymouth

Because it's the evidence of a Weymouth citizen.
Testimony easily investigated.
The strongest endorsement of merit.

The best proof. Read it:
Asa K. Binney, 112 Broad St., says "I had severe backache and my kidneys were weak and acted irregularly. Doan's quickly helped me. After using a few boxes the pains were entirely relieved and my kidneys were regulated." (Statement dated May 5, 1919.)

On March 19, 1917 Mr. Binney said "Doan's Kidney Pills have always given me relief and I praise them right along."
Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Binney had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo N. Y.

BOYS AND GIRLS COLUMN.

The canning clubs are to exhibit their work, by invitation, with the Monday Club on October 20 and with the Old Colony Club on October 23.

Miss Homer, assistant club leader will be present and judge this work. Those who are doing first year work will show three vegetables and two fruits. Those doing second year work will show two fruits, two vegetables, one for either soup, vegetable combination or meat and one jar of fruit product, that is jam, jelly, fruit, butter or conserve. Five jars in all for first year workers; six jars for second year workers. A few larger collections are to be shown. We know that more than one thousand jars of products have been canned by club members. When records are complete we shall have accurate figures. Stories of the year's work and records should be ready by the 20th.

Are there any new members for the poultry club. A new year starts November 1st. We want some good egg laying records.

Are you gathering all the dry leaves for bedding in your pig pen and for use in the scratching shed. Warm dry sleeping quarters may put twenty-five pounds on your pig. Deep litter may help you to a dozen extra eggs. See that your animals are the most comfortable in the neighborhood.

This week we have tried to count the seeds that have grown from one seed this year. Prince's Feather showed 1,500 seeds on one plant. Rag weed had 4,221 in one case and pepper grass had 2,100. That shows why one year's seedling makes seven years weeding. Incidentally we've learned what to do about it. We have learned too, something about the cabbage worm and we have discussed best ways of storing vegetables for winter.

Out of doors we are watching the juncos help us clean up the gardens. Have you seen the greyish black birds flying in flocks, showing white outer tail feathers as they fly and calling t-seep to each other. There is a sharp break in color between the dark throat and breast and the white under parts. They make one wonder if they understand Helen Hunt Jackson's little poem, "When all wild things lie down to sleep."

Commonwealth of Massachusetts

Norfolk, ss. Probate Court.
To all persons who are or may become interested in the estate herein after mentioned, held in trust under the will of

JOHN P. LOVELL
late of Weymouth, in the County of Norfolk, and to all persons whose issue not now in being may become so interested:

Whereas, George L. Wentworth, trustee under the said will has presented to said Court his petition praying that he may be authorized to sell, either at public or private sale, certain real estate held by him as such trustee, situated in Weymouth, in said County, and particularly described in said petition, for the reasons therein set forth;

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Dedham, in said County, on the fifth day of November, A. D. 1919, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by delivering a copy thereof to each person interested in the estate fourteen days at least before said Court, or by publishing the same once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Weymouth Gazette and Transcript, a newspaper published in said Weymouth, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court, and by mailing, post-paid, a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, James H. Flint, Esq., Judge of said Court, this tenth day of October, in the year one thousand nine hundred and nineteen.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts

Norfolk, ss. Probate Court.
To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court, next to be held at Dedham within and for the County of Norfolk:

Respectfully I belies and represents Emma O'Brien of Weymouth in said County, that she was lawfully married to Michael J. O'Brien of parts unknown at Weymouth, on the tenth day of May, A. D. 1914, and there, afterwards, your libellant and the said Michael J. O'Brien lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit: at Weymouth aforesaid that your libellant has always been faithful to her marriage vows and obligations, but the said Michael J. O'Brien being wholly regardless of the same at Weymouth on or about the first day of May, A. D. 1916 did utterly desert your libellant and has continued such desertion from that day to the date hereof, being more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel. Being of sufficient ability, grossly or wantonly and cruelly refuses and neglects to provide suitable support for your libellant and children.

Whereof your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Michael J. O'Brien, and for custody of minor children, Michael R. O'Brien, born February 17, 1914, Mary M. O'Brien, born February 12, 1916, and for such other orders and decrees as to your Honors shall seem meet, and as justice may require.

Dated the twenty-fifth day of August, A. D. 1919.

EMMA O'BRIEN.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts

Norfolk, ss. Superior Court.
On the foregoing Libel, it is ordered that the Libellant give notice to the said Michael J. O'Brien, the Libellee, to appear before the Justices of this Court, to be held at Dedham, within and for said County, on the first Monday of December next, by causing an attested copy of said Libel, and of this order thereon, to be published once in a week, for three consecutive weeks, in the Weymouth Gazette, a newspaper printed at Weymouth, in the County of Norfolk, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said first Monday of December next, and further, by sending through the mail, as soon as may be, by a registered letter addressed to the last known residence of the said Michael J. O'Brien an attested copy of said Libel, and of this order thereon, that the said Michael J. O'Brien may then and there show cause why the prayer of said Libel should not be granted.

By the Court,
R. B. WORTHINGTON, Clerk.
September 5, A. D. 1919

A true copy of said Libel, and of this order thereon.

Attest:

So says Uncle Sam to all of

The Tru-pedic Shoe is the very best answer to this nation-wide demand
for better fitting footwear, because it is built upon new principles which INSURE proper fitting shoes.

What distinctly marks Tru-pedics
from the others, is the fact they are made in three types on the same style too—inflame, straight and outflame.
Science says "All normal feet are
of one of three types and not of one standard type." This fact is now

The Tru-pedic Shoe, in the right

SPEED PLANS FOR RED CROSS DRIVE IN NEW ENGLAND

Chapters Appoint Chairmen to Direct Third Roll Call in November

Seventy of the 108 Chapters in the New England Division of the American Red Cross have already appointed chairmen to direct the Third Red Cross Roll Call for members and money from November 2 to 11, and these chairmen are rapidly organizing their forces for the campaign. Every effort will be made to exceed the present Red Cross membership of 1,500-000 in the New England Division.

The Roll Call will open on Sunday November 2, and before that date the clergymen of all faiths will be asked to devote their services on "Red Cross Sunday" to the American Red Cross and its membership appeal to the American people. The clergy will be provided with leaflets outlining what the American Red Cross did during the war, and presenting information on the things still to be done, together with suggestions for services on "Red Cross Sunday."

It is hoped that every church in New England will have at least one Red Cross service on the opening day of the campaign.

To Award Honor Flags.

To stimulate chapters and branches to exceed their quota in the Roll Call, James Jackson, manager of the New England Division, has decided to award honor flags. Each chapter that exceeds its quota will receive a Red Cross banner made of bunting and each branch that exceeds its quota will receive a Red Cross banner of bristol board. These banners may be hung in the Red Cross headquarters and will have the red cross on a white field with the words "Honor Flag" written above and "Third Roll Call" written below the cross.

The chapter that exceeds its quota by the largest percentage will receive a Red Cross banner made of silk.
It is believed that these honor flags will prove splendid incentives for chapters and branches to work for big results in their efforts to secure renewals of memberships and new members.

New Red Cross Films.

The New England Division has already secured four new Red Cross films for the Chapters to use in the motion picture theatres and at meetings in their territories. One of the most interesting of the films is a photo-play entitled "Winning Her Way." It deals with the public health nursing work of the Red Cross, and relates a story of how a Red Cross public health nurse, supported by the local Red Cross organization, won the support of the townspeople for community nursing.

The other new films are "Good-Bye Brest," which shows American troops leaving Germany and France and embarking for home; "Roumanian Relief," which shows the distribution of Red Cross relief supplies in Roumania, and "Helping Our Boys at Home," which illustrates the service rendered home-coming American troops in their journey across the United States to their homes.

Several other films will probably be ready for use before the close of the Roll Call campaign.

Another interesting feature of the Roll Call will be a lecture entitled
"The Heart of a Nation," illustrated by 100 colored stereopticon slides, picturing briefly the history of the American Red Cross during the war.

Division Tour a Success.

Division Manager Jackson is having splendid success in arousing interest in the Third Roll Call in his tour of Division territory, which will continue until the end of this month.
He is accompanied by Miss Lavinia
H. Newell, director of Chapter Production; Miss Elizabeth Ross, director of the Bureau of Nursing and Cheney C. Jones, director of Civilian Relief, all of whom are presenting details of the future work of the Red Cross in New England.

Dr. Livingston Farrand, the executive head of the American Red Cross has started a tour of the 13 divisions of the Red Cross in this country, and will come to the New England Division just previous to the opening of the Roll Call. According to his present schedule, he will address a public mass meeting in Symphony Hall, Boston, on the evening of October 24, and if his time permits meetings will be arranged for one or two of the other larger cities in New England.
It is expected that Red Cross workers from all over New England will go to Boston to hear Dr. Farrand who is devoting the principal part of his addresses to the health center plan.

Roll Call Posters.

Only three posters will be used throughout the country for the Third Roll Call. The most conspicuous of these is entitled "The Spirit of America" and was painted by Howard Chandler Christy. The feature of the poster is an attractive young woman wrapped in the folds of the American flag and beneath this figure is a huge red cross and the word "Join." The second poster is by Haskell Coffin and presents a figure of a young woman in Red Cross costume holding out her hands in appeal. The third poster is a new edition of the Greatest Mother in the World picture which was so popular in previous campaigns.

Several attractive window displays have also been prepared for the use of stores.

SAFE, GENTLE REMEDY BRINGS SURE RELIEF

For 200 years GOLD MEDAL Haaslem Oil has enabled suffering humanity to withstand attacks of kidney, liver, bladder and stomach troubles and all diseases connected with the urinary organs, and to build up and restore to health organs weakened by disease. These most important organs must be watched, because they filter and purify the blood; unless they do their work you are doomed.

Weariness, sleeplessness, nervousness, despondency, backache, stomach trouble, pains in the loins and lower abdomen, gravel, rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago all warn you of trouble with your kidneys. GOLD MEDAL Haaslem Oil Capsules are the remedy you need. Take three or four every day. The healing oil soaks into the cells and lining of the kidneys and drives out the poisons. New life and health will surely follow. When your normal vigor has been restored continue treatment for a while to keep yourself in condition and prevent a return of the disease.

Don't wait until you are incapable of fighting. Start taking GOLD MEDAL Haaslem Oil Capsules today. Your druggist will cheerfully refund your money if you are not satisfied with results. But be sure to get the original imported GOLD MEDAL, and accept no substitutes. In three sizes. Sealed packages. At all drug stores.

Some men would rather go to jail than hustle for a living.

WAR RECORD OF LEVIATHAN

Monster Transport Carried Many Thousands of Soldiers to French Ports.

The giant transport Leviathan, following her arrival in New York harbor with Gen. Pershing and troops of the First division, brought to a close her important service in helping win the war. The big ship, after being refitted for passenger service, is to be turned back to the United States shipping board, the agency which seized it when the United States entered the war. While the future of the ship is uncertain, it is reported that she will be assigned to American passenger trade between New York and Liverpool, with possible extension in the future of a service to Hamburg.

The Leviathan, formerly the Vaterland, the second largest ship in the world, was interned in New York by the Germans in 1914. She was "willfully damaged" to the extent of more than $1,000,000. After being reconditioned by American engineers, she was assigned as a transport, and during and since the war made 19 round trips on the Atlantic, carrying a total of 185,500 soldiers, of whom 98,321 were carried overseas through submarine-infested seas. She was always a mark for U-boats, but her speed and the armament with which she was equipped saved her.

Sociologists estimate that among every thousand bachelors there are 38 criminals, whereas married men produce 18 per thousand.

Perfumed Epistles

By R. RAY BAKER

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Big Bruce Forrester was not a woman hater. He was not interested, that was all.

While the rest of the surveying crowd that was measuring the Low Ridge range for the coming of the railroad spent its spare time in receiving perfumed mail and answering it Big Bruce sought solace in nicotine in the seclusion of his bunk or roamed the wilds of Wilderness woods and communed with nature.

"Go to it, boys," was his advice. "Some day you'll learn better. Women are all right as parlor decorations and to consume surplus cash in candy and clothes, but as for me—well, I'm going to buy myself a farm some day, where I can have horses, dogs and cows and chickens. They're of some use in the world, and they don't go back on you when you're down and out."

Naturally, the others resented these outbursts. They defended the fair sex valiantly, and by sheer numbers forced Big Bruce to desist from his oral attacks.

"All right, I'll keep still in the future," he growled; "but you can't prevent a fellow thinking; and while you're fooling your time away with pens and ink you can let your minds dwell on the fact that I consider you're all confounded idiots."

Sunday was a day of rest in the woods as well as the places where civilization reigned, and also it was a day when a great deal of letter writing was accomplished in "Love's Lodge," which Big Bruce sarcastically christened the shanty where the surveyors were making their headquarters.

On one of these Sundays Bruce set out on a hike which he called a "relief expedition."

"I'm going to get relief from the perfumed air of this shack," he announced as he took an old walking stick he had carved from a tree branch, a package of sandwiches and a sanitary cup. "Here's hoping you all get married and settle down to blissful contentment—no excitement, no pleasure, no nothing," and he strode disdainfully from the shack into the woods.

It was not a case of envy with Big Bruce. He could have been admired by many girls had he chosen, for he was a good, healthy, handsome specimen who looked well either in ballroom or backwoods. However, Big Bruce had not met the right sort of women.

His mother died when he was a toddler, and when he grew up his father's financial standing threw him in with a lot of society buds who had no mission in life other than to look beautiful, sip iced drinks and play bridge. No, women held no interest for him. They were to him, as he had said, mere ornaments or playthings and not to be given consideration in a serious, busy world.

Big Bruce drew his lungs full of pure air as he swung along the ridge, heading for Lake Crescent, where he knew a flat-bottomed rowboat was drawn up on shore. It was well along in summer and vegetation was in full bloom, with birds chirping in the trees and insects buzzing merrily—and some of them stinging just as merrily.

Bruce expelled clouds of pungent tobacco smoke, drawn from a venerable pipe, and hummed a tune. He was enjoying himself immensely.

Getting into the rowboat, he propelled it across the lake, which was about two miles wide and five miles long. A stiff breeze ruffled the water into choppy waves, but Big Bruce's strong arms drove the scow through them without noticing the resistance. Arriving on the other side he drew the craft up on shore and continued his wanderings.

Suddenly, while walking along enjoying the solitude of the woods and thinking of his foolish friends back in "Love's Lodge," he felt a sharp, piercing pain in his right side. At the same instant the report of a rifle echoed through the forest. Big Bruce tumbled in a heap on the ground and almost lost consciousness.

For moments that seemed like hours the young man lay there helpless, the pain growing more intense all the while. With an effort he reached his left hand to the wound and withdrew it covered with blood. He felt nauseated and black dots swam before his eyes.

Realizing it would not do to lie there and allow his strength to ebb, he forced himself to crawl along the path on which he had been walking. It seemed that he had crawled at least three miles, stopping frequently to regain strength, when he came into a clearing, in which some one was cooking over a fire.

With the knowledge that help was at hand, Big Bruce drifted into unconsciousness. When his eyes opened some time later, he looked up into a pair of black eyes which were owned by a girl of about twenty, who was garbed in well-fitting buckskin clothes, with a short skirt, leggings and a wide-brimmed hat.

She had dark hair that fell in heavy folds around her neck, and she had white teeth and a pug nose and lots of freckles. She was attractive in some ways, but in others she was decidedly plain.

"I've got your wound fixed up," she told him. "Some fool man has been hunting out of season and got the wrong kind of game. If I had fired that shot it would have hit what it was aimed at."

She snorted in disgust. An examination with his hands showed Bruce that his shirt had been cut away around the wound and a bandage put in place. The bandage was wet, but he ascertained that it was with water instead of blood.

"It's not serious—if I hurry you home," she told him, in business-like tones. "If you'll try to walk, and lean on me all you want to, we can make it to the canoe."

It was not a great distance, and somehow, in spite of the pain and his weakened condition, which became more pronounced when he essayed to walk, Bruce was almost sorry when they arrived at the shore and she helped him into the canoe.

It was growing dusk, but Big Bruce could see that there were white caps on the lake. He doubted the girl's ability to paddle through the savage waves, but he kept his own counsel. Before pushing the craft into the water she filled his pipe for him, placed the stem between his teeth and lighted it. He was so amazed by this act of thoughtfulness that he came near forgetting to draw on the pipe.

Soon they were tossing on the lake. Big Bruce was somewhat apprehensive, but he knew he was powerless to help the girl who was seated in the stern paddling vigorously to keep the nose of the boat headed into the ridges of foam. If she faltered and allowed the oncoming waves to turn the canoe and sweep against its side there was no telling what would result.

However, she worked like a trojan, never uttering a word, and despite the fact that it was now so dark the shore on either side was blotted out, she seemed confident of being able to reach her destination, whatever it might be.

At last they were landed, and the girl surprised Bruce by dragging the canoe clear of the water with him in it, almost tipping him out.

"There," she breathed, rather heavily. "Now for the car."

She left him, and presently a flood of light from the spotlight of an auto surrounded him. Again she aided him to walk, and presently he was reclining in the tonneau of the car speeding over the road.

Soon they came to a branch road, which they followed for a short distance, stopping finally in front of a comfortable looking cottage, in which cheery lights were burning.

Half an hour later Bruce was in bed, a fresh bandage over the wound, the girl's brother having come to help look after the patient.

"Father will be back soon," the girl told him. "He's a doctor, and he'll fix you up right; but I know you'll have to stay here three weeks. It's lucky we didn't go back to the city yesterday as we had planned."

Three weeks later Big Bruce was back in "Love's Lodge," practically recovered from his wound.

One day one of the boys came tearing into the shack with a packet of mail in one hand and a lone letter in the other.

"Help! help!" he cried, in mock distress. "Here's a letter for Mr. Bruce Forrester—and it's pink and got perfume on it."

Bruce took the letter, his face blazing, and retired to his bunk. The others gathered round and looked on in open-mouthed astonishment while he read to himself smiling the while.

Presently he finished perusing the missive and when he looked up he apparently noticed for the first time that he had an audience.

"What's the matter with you boobies?" he snorted. "Can't a fellow fall in love if he wants to? Say, where in thunder's some ink, paper and pen?"

A Frightful Peril.

When the railway was first built in Germany, it was considered as a serious menace to health. In the archives of the Nuremberg railway, which was the first line constructed in Germany, a protest against railways has been found, drawn up by the royal college of Bavarian doctors. It declares:

"Travel in carriage drawn by locomotives ought to be forbidden in the interest of public health. The rapid movement cannot fail to produce among the passengers the mental affection known as delirium furiosum. Even if travelers are willing to incur the risk, the government should at least protect the public. A single glance at a locomotive passing rapidly is sufficient to cause cerebral derangement. Consequently, it is absolutely necessary to build a fence, ten feet high, on each side of the railway." "Delirium furiosum" holds possession of not a few automobilists nowadays.

Smile Is Better Than Frown.

It has been proved that anger and violent emotion cause for the time being a poisonous condition of the blood which is injurious. It must be equally true that facing the passing hour with a mouth turned up at the corners and a mind alert for the best that the day offers is beneficial. This is a pretty decent old world after all, if we but treat it right. And surely if we face our obligations and our work, not with frowns but with gladness, it will give us a more kindly greeting and a helping hand in return.—From the Three Partners.

Consoling.

Bad Sickness Caused by Acid-Stomach

If people only realized the health-destroying power of an acid-stomach—of the many kinds of sickness and misery it causes—of the lives it literally wrecks—they would guard against it as carefully as they do against a deadly plague. You know in an instant the first symptoms of acid-stomach—pains of indigestion; distressing, painful bloating; sour, gassy stomach; belching; food repulsing; heartburn, etc. Whenever your stomach feels this way you should lose no time in putting it to rights. If you don't, serious consequences are almost sure to follow, such as intestinal fermentation, auto-intoxication, impairment of the entire nervous system, headache, biliousness, cirrhosis of the liver; sometimes even catarrh of the stomach and intestinal ulcers and cancer. If you are not feeling right, see if it isn't acid-stomach that is the cause of your ill health. Take EATONIC, the wonderful modern stomach remedy. EATONIC Tablets quickly and surely relieve the pain, bloating, belching, and heartburn that indicate acid-stomach. Make the stomach strong, clean and sweet. By keeping the stomach in healthy condition so that you can get full strength from your food, your general health steadily improves. Results are marvelously quick. Just try EATONIC and you will be as enthusiastic as the thousands who have used it and who say they never dreamed anything could bring such marvelous relief. So get a big 50-cent box of EATONIC from your druggist today. If not satisfactory return it and he will refund your money.

HOW TO AVOID BACKACHE AND NERVOUSNESS

Told by Mrs. Lynch From Own Experience.

Providence, R. I.—"I was all run down in health, was nervous, had headaches, my back ached all the time. I was tired and had no ambition for anything. I had taken a number of medicines which did me no good. One day I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for women, so I tried it. My nervousness and backache and headaches disappeared. I gained in weight and feel fine, so I can honestly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any woman who is suffering as I was."—Mrs. ADELIN E. LYNCH, 100 Plain St., Providence, R. I.

Backache and nervousness are symptoms or nature's warnings, which indicate a functional disturbance or an unhealthy condition which often develops into a more serious ailment.

Women in this condition should not continue to drag along without help, but profit by Mrs. Lynch's experience, and try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

RHEUMATISM

Mustarine Subdues the Inflammation and Eases the Soreness Quicker Than Anything Else on Earth.

Pay only 30 cents and get a big box of Beeg's Mustarine, which is the original mustard plaster and is made of strong, real, yellow mustard—no substitutes are used. It's known as the quickest pain killer on earth, for in hundreds of instances it stops headache, neuralgia, toothache, earache and backache in 5 minutes. It's a sure, speedy remedy—none better for bronchitis, pleurisy, lumbago, and to draw the inflammation from your sore feet there is nothing so good. You get real action with Mustarine—it goes after the pain and kills it right on the spot. Yes, it burns, but it won't blister—it doesn't give agonizing pain a snap on the wrist. It does give it a good healthy punch in the jaw—it kills pain. Ask for and get Mustarine always in the yellow box.

MANAGER M'GRAW UNCOVERS INFIELDER WHO APPEARS TO BE FIND OF SEASON

Frank Frisch, Giant Rookie, Who Is Making Good.

Manager McGraw is almost reconciled to losing the National league pennant because of the playing of Frank Frisch, his youthful second-sacker. The Fordham student appears to have everything and is hailed as the find of the season. He jumped right from a college team into a Giant uniform.

Frisch is not a "fresh" youngster. He simply is an aggressive ball player, the kind that fits in well with McGraw's idea of what a player should be. The New York leader can overlook a lot of other faults in an athlete, but insists on a fighter.

An incident showing his belligerent nature cropped up in the late series with the Reds when the Giants' hopes were practically blasted. It was the first important set of games for Frisch, and at one stage in the proceedings McGraw yanked the collegian for a pinch hitter. What the youngster told McGraw is a classic among the New York players, part of which is printable and was:

"I'll show you I can hit." The first time up in the next game he cracked out a screeching single. And he didn't forget to call John's attention to it.

WOLGAST IS FIGHTING AGAIN

Former Lightweight Champion Is Making Arizona His Stamping Ground at Present.

Ad Wolgast is fighting again and is making Arizona his stamping ground. It's but a few years back when he was the greatest card in the lightweight ranks. He and Nelson were a pair of 133-pounders to be reckoned with. Furthermore, he was the only man who ever beat the "Durable Dane" at his own game—assimilating punishment. Not that he was any gamier than Nelson, for no man that wore the gloves ever showed greater fortitude than the Hegewisch wonder. But he proved on that Washington's birthday afternoon he could stand up under punishment to a greater degree than Nelson could. His condition proved the better. Nelson lost the bout standing on his feet at the end of the fortieth round, blind as a bat.

Wolgast has lost a great deal of his former wealth. At one time Ad was worth close around the $200,000 mark. But something snapped and he went to pieces, and but for his wife, who was appointed guardian by the courts, nothing would now be left to him.

SIRE ALL HORSES IN RACE

All Starters in Saranac Handicap Were Get of Ormondale, Most Promising Stallion.

Ormondale promises to become the most popular sire in America. Recently he had the peculiar distinction of having sired every horse that started in the Saranac handicap. This is something that has not happened in many years of racing. The horses were Purchase, Passing Shower and The Trump. Tetley, another horse that had been entered in the race but was scratched, also was sired by Ormondale.

PERRY NOT WORTH SUIT

Francis Richter has a few sage remarks in the Philadelphia Press prompted by the suspension of Scott Perry for deserting the Athletics. Says Richter:

It is just what might have been expected of a player of Perry's calibre, as he was a contract jumper when Manager Mack rescued him from his deserved obscurity last season. It also illustrates once more that it does not pay, in the long run, to go to law about any player. Going to court is a baseball sin and it's sure your sin will find you out.

SOTHORON IS TRICKY HURLER

Performance of St. Louis Pitcher Called to Attention of Freak Delivery Reformers.

Here is a story of trick pitching that you can take any way you please: In the final game of the season in St. Louis between Browns and Cleveland Indians, the Indians in the first inning got four solid safe swats off Allan Sothoron's pitching, two of them being doubles against the fence, and scored five runs before the side was retired. When Sothoron, apparently beaten before he had fairly started, went to the mound for the second inning, the Cleveland players asked to see the ball he was pitching. They agreed—and the umpires agreed with them—that the ball and other balls handed to the umpires had been tampered with. The covers had been cut about the seams. So the umpires threw out a lot of balls and called for a new lot.

These balls were delivered in packages unopened, just as they came from the makers, and were satisfactory.

And pitching with them—and being very careful to please all hands and prove he had no tricks up his sleeve, in his glove, or on his belt—Mr. Allan Sothoron then shut out the Indians for 13 innings, allowing but seven very scattered hits.

There's a story of some very tricky pitching. We'll say it was tricky, even if the pitcher were no mustache to deceive you!—Sporting News.

VESPER CLUB ACHIEVEMENTS

Members of Philadelphia Organization Gaining Prominence by Winning Sculling Races.

The Vesper Boat club of Philadelphia, which heretofore was famed for the powerful senior eight-oared shell crews they developed, their victory in Paris in 1900, and over the Argonauts of Toronto at the St. Louis fair in 1904 being among big achievements, are now gaining sculling prominence. Jack Kelly this year won the national single sculling award and Paul Costello the association single crown. Walter Riddle, too, leaped into prominence by advancing from junior to senior rank this year. He won the junior single sculls race on the Schuylkill river, July 4, and on Labor day won the intermediate and association single races one after the other, in 20 minutes.

Honest Advertising.

THIS is a topic we all hear now-a-days because so many people are inclined to exaggerate. Yet has any physician told you that we claimed unreasonable remedial properties for Fletcher's Castoria? Just ask them. We won't answer it ourselves, we know what the answer will be.

That it has all the virtues to-day that was claimed for it in its early days is to be found in its increased use, the recommendation by prominent physicians, and our assurance that its standard will be maintained.

Imitations are to be found in some stores and only because of the Castoria that Mr. Fletcher created. But it is not the genuine Castoria that Mr. Fletcher honestly advertised, honestly placed before the public and from which he honestly expects to receive his reward.

Children Cry For

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for infants and children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

PRICE SIX CENTS

Weymouth and East Braintree

Evelyn, the four year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Conathan, met with a serious accident Tuesday afternoon. She was riding with her father in an automobile, and, unknown to her father, opened the rear door and fell to the ground. She was hit by the rear end of a car and both legs were broken. She would have been even more seriously injured had not Edward Peterson, who happened to be near at the time, pulled her from under the machine.

Joseph Godfrey, who has followed the sea for nearly half a century, and during that time visited nearly every port in the world, has been visiting his brother, David Godfrey.

Wallace Russell, who makes his home with Mr. and Mrs. Lucid of Walnut Avenue, met with a serious accident a few days ago while on a visit to relatives in Neponset. He was picking apples, when the ladder broke and he fell to the ground, a distance of thirty feet. He sustained a broken arm, collar bone and shoulder bone besides other minor injuries. He is at the City hospital, Boston, and is getting along nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Winifred G. Waite have moved from Hull into their new bungalow on Station street, East Braintree.

George Dalton has passed the Massachusetts State Board of Pharmacy and is now a registered pharmacist.

Thomas McGonigle, of Front street, fell from a staging thirty feet to the ground at the Fore River Ship Yard last Friday. He was picked up unconscious and rushed to the City hospital, Quincy, where it was feared he had a fractured skull. He had a bad cut on the head and under one eye, and was badly bruised about the body, but was able to leave the hospital and return to his home Tuesday.

The Augustus T. Cushing estate on Frost street, consisting of almost a half acre of land, house, barn and shop, has been sold to Mrs. Winslow Thayer, of Quincy, formerly of this town.

Franklin Bates has been in Camden, N. J., for a week on a visit to his son, Edward Bates, formerly of this town.

Miss Evelyn Johanson sailed yesterday from Boston on the steamer Bohemian, of the Leyland line, for England, where she will visit relatives in Hull, Eng., for several months.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Loud have returned from their wedding trip and the Loud homestead on Commercial street.

Lot Holmes, who submitted to an operation for appendicitis at a Boston hospital two weeks ago, has left the institution, and is visiting his sister in Milton for a few days before returning to town.

Frank Reilly has moved into the Lizzie Ellis house on Frost street, recently purchased by him.

Peter Phillips is home from a Boston hospital where he was successfully operated on for appendicitis, a short time ago. He is able to be about and is rapidly regaining his health.

Bishop Lawrence will visit Trinity church, Weymouth, Sunday, Nov. 20.

Mrs. Annie Casey entertained a party of 75 at her home in North Abington on Saturday evening in honor of her nephew, Harold Trask, of Phillips street, this town, recently returned from overseas service. Guests were present from Weymouth, Braintree, Quincy, Rutland, Brockton, Haverhill, Dorchester, Rockland and Abington.

A musical program was rendered by the Jazz quartet of Boston. Mrs. Homer Dyson, of this town, and Miss Florence Reardon entertained with piano solos. Lew Campbell and Joseph Casey gave vocal selections. Mr. Trask was given a pleasant surprise when Lieut. William Cornell, Commander of Weymouth American Legion post, presented him in behalf of his friends, with a purse of gold. During the evening Lieut. Cornell and George McEnroe, of North Abington, both of whom were in the same regiment as Mr. Trask, gave interesting talks of their experiences while under fire. Mr. Trask spoke on the action seen by the 1st Composite regiment, this regiment being the pack of the Combatant divisions, which was later known as "Pershing's Own."

EAST WEYMOUTH and WEYMOUTH CENTER

The funeral of Charles Harrington, the dry goods merchant, was held at his late home Friday afternoon and was largely attended. Stores in the village were closed during the funeral hour. The services were conducted by Rev. Frank Kingston of the Methodist church, who paid a high tribute in his remarks to the deceased as a citizen with sterling qualities, a man to be honored and respected. Many rare and beautiful floral tributes from relatives and friends testified to love and regard. Burial was in Fairmount Cemetery.

G. H. Hunt, reports his supply of Gazette to have been exhausted early last week.

Charles H. Pratt of 81 Hawthorn street died on Sunday of heart disease which troubled him for several years, aged 72. His parents were Mr. and Mrs. George W. Pratt, both born in Weymouth. He leaves a widow. Burial was at the home on Wednesday.

Alonso J. Braden of Waterboro, Maine, died October 17, aged 81. The body was taken to Weymouth for interment.

Evangelistic services were held at the Methodist Episcopal church Monday afternoon and evening.

It is earnestly hoped that all who attend the Welcome Home Supper and Dance given next Monday by the East Weymouth Special Aid Society will go in uniform. The matter of uniforms was not mentioned on the invitations but never-the-less the members of the Society would be pleased to see their ex-soldiers and sailors clad in war clothes. Should any of the men feel that their uniforms are no longer fit for any other reason do not care to put them on, they will be just as welcome. They should not stay away on that account. However, the men can show their appreciation of what the Society has done by spending a part of the next three days in assembling the various parts of their military apparel. It may interest a great many to know that the salad at this supper will be home made and everything will be carefully scrutinized before being served.

A party of ladies gathered on School street recently for the purpose of organizing a sewing club. Miss Nell Crane was elected president.

The Rainbow Unit of the Weymouth Girls Community Club presented Weymouth Post 79 of the American Legion with a check for $42. The money was made at a dance given by the girls and was intended for Weymouth men in the service. It will be applied to a fund for aiding needy members of the Post should there ever be any.

At the next meeting of the Weymouth Post, Wednesday, Oct. 29, the members will be entertained by one or two prominent speakers. The delegates to the State Convention have returned. At Worcester they put up a stiff fight for Weymouth and after much hard work were finally successful in obtaining for the local post one delegate to the National Convention.

which opens at Minneapolis on November 11. Thomas McCarthy is the man chosen to represent Weymouth and a better man for the job could not be imagined. Minneapolis is a hotbed of Bolshevism. It is the purpose of the Legion delegates who meet there to show those Reds where they get off, that the patriotism of true Americans cannot be tampered with. Weymouth should be proud to send a delegate to this important, history making gathering.

Mrs. Mary French, widow of Edward French, died Tuesday morning at her home on Station street. She was a member of the Steadfast Rebekah Lodge No. 98, I. O. O. F. From January 1 to December 31, 1893, she was Past-Notable Grand. She is survived by her son Will French.

Raymond Booth and family are moving to Providence. The house occupied by them at 22 Chard street will be taken by C. W. Burton.

Jack Yurell and John Reidy are unanimous in the opinion that trench helmets are the best uniform for picking apples.

A Randolph firm of plumbers will shortly locate in the building on Broad street formerly used as a bakery.

Morrow Boston Latin comes to town. A big crowd of rooters is expected as the team has not performed at home for some time and all are anxious to see what kind of an exhibition they will put up.

A movement is afoot to put on regular boxing bouts in East Weymouth. Clean, well managed boxing should go well here. The promoters would not have to go very far afield in seeking talent. The town is well supplied with clever box-fighters and down on the Recalling Ship at Hingham there are numbers of ambitious ring admirals who might be induced to come up and show their wares.

The Sagamore Club boys report their dance a wonderful success.

Waldo Turner of the G. A. R. says that he and his comrades want every member of the American Legion to consider himself personally invited to attend any meeting of the Reynolds Post. It meets on the first and third Tuesday of each month and the latch string is always out to the younger veterans.

Dancing and pictures every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evening at the Bates Opera House.

The Weymouth Industrial Association held its annual meeting Tuesday evening, electing the following officers: Frederick Humphrey, president; Minot P. Garey, secretary; Elmer E. Leonard, treasurer; Harold C. Keith, Henry E. Hanley, George H. Hicknell and William P. Benbroeder, directors. George L. Barnes and Stephen S. Burgoyne, trustees. A committee was appointed to draw up resolutions on the death of John A. Raymond and W. H. Pratt, who were officers of the association.

The will of Col. William W. Castle was probated on Wednesday. He left an estate valued at $75,000 largely to his widow and son, the latter, William Prescott Castle of Rochester, N. Y.

The Norfolk County Teachers Convention is being held today, in Boston.

Please direct all mail for the Gazette or the Times to—"Gazette, Weymouth, Mass." No street address or box is necessary, and no name.

Sunday afternoon, a party of local people escaped serious injury when the Ford touring car in which they were riding turned turtle at the junction of Bates avenue, and Central street. The car, owned and operated by a Lynn man was badly damaged and taken to the Columbian Square garage. The operator was arrested by local officers for driving without a license and in the Quincy court, Monday morning a $50 fine was imposed from which the defendant appealed. The occupants of the machine were bruised and badly shaken up, but no serious results were reported.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Hawes and family have returned from a weeks visit with Mrs. Hawes' sister, Mrs. Stetson, at East Sumner, Maine.

W. E. Greene of Pleasant street is erecting a large garage near his residence.

J. W. Houghton has sold his residence on Pleasant street and is to move to Schooset street, Hanover.

Nelville Huff of Pine street is quarantined at his home with scarlet fever.

Monday evening at his home on Central street Harold Bernhart was pleasantly surprised by a number of friends and relatives who gathered to help celebrate his 26th birthday. Mr. Bernhart was recipient of several appropriate gifts. Games and music were enjoyed and a buffet lunch was served.

Mrs. Charlotte C. Lawler has sold her residence on Bates Avenue to Henry Morse of Pond street who will occupy it.

Raymond Proctor and family of Pond street have taken a tenement in the Rushton house, recently purchased by Mrs. Evitts.

John Ames of Marshfield has purchased for occupancy the bungalow on nan.

Everett Doble has accepted a position at Sargent's Garage.

Funeral services for William Lindsay who passed away Tuesday, October 14, were held at his late home 1045 Pond street, Friday, at 2:30 p. m. He was 83 years of age and is survived by a widow, three daughters and two sons. The service was conducted by the Rev. Ira A. Price of the Old South Union Church. Interment was in Mt. Hope cemetery, Attapan.

Mrs. Rose E. Holbrook, Mrs. Jennie S. Bernhart, Mrs. Grace C. Andrews, Mrs. Nettie Carlton, Mrs. Marcia L. Baldwin and Miss Enid Holbrook, motored to Foxboro, Sunday via Blue Hill.

Miss Florence Simpson, has accepted a position with the Stetson Shoe Company.

Waldo M. Wilbar is spending a few days with friends on the Cape.

Sunday evening the first illustrated lecture of the season was given before an appreciative audience in the auditorium of the Second Universalist Church on the "Yosemite Valley" the address being delivered by Carl F. Elsner. Rev. Stanley Spear who recently returned from overseas had charge of the morning service. The vested choir provided music, at both services.

Mrs. Harry Bradford of Brockton was the guest of Mrs. George Shaw last Friday.

Newman Clark of Los Angeles, California, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Chandler, last Thursday.

Mrs. Howard Baker of Union street, entertained Miss Lester of Medford, over the week-end.

Mrs. Ernest Stetson of East Sumner, Maine, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Wilton Hawes of Pleasant street.

The Baraca Young Men's Class of the Old South Union church has organized a glee club to be known as the Baraca Glee, and engaged James W. Calderwood as director. A rehearsal will be held Tuesday evening.

The Sunday School basketball season was opened at the Union gym last Friday evening when the local team defeated the Rockland Baptists 19 to 2. On the Old South Union team, were Robinson, Boyd, Shepard, Fearing and Rix, while Proctor played as a substitute.

In the bowling tournament of the Norfolk club teams 6 and 4 are leading each having won 10 points, but the latter has lost 4 more.

The funeral of Michael Flynn of 524 Union street, was held at the St. Francis Xavier church Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock. Mr. Flynn was born in Tipperary county, Ireland, and came to this country in 1859. He is survived by his widow, who before her marriage was Margaret Sheehy of Peterboro, Canada, and four daughters, the Misses Margaret, Bridget, and Mary Flynn, Mrs. William O'Neill of Rockland, and two sons John J. and Jeremiah J. Rev. Dennis P. Crimmins officiated at the service and burial was in the family lot at St. Francis Xavier cemetery.

Wednesday afternoon, November 5, the Abigail Adams Lodge of Rebekahs will hold a whist party in the Odd Fellows Building, in Independence Square. Mrs. Helen C. Ford and Mrs. Ethel Sargent will have charge of the tables. At 6 o'clock a

GATEWAY THAT COSTS LITTLE

Entrance Constructed of Plain Lumber in Standard Dimension Always Easy to Procure.

The gateway here shown was very economically constructed by using lumber supplied in standard dimensions, reports Popular Mechanics Magazine. The uprights are 4 by 4 inches; the lower crosspieces and fence rails, 2 by 4 inches, and the fence spindles and upper crosspieces of the gate, 2 by 2 inches, as are also the short horizontal strips which extend at right angles between the crosspieces, to support vines over the archway. The arches are made of basswood, which is easily bent into shape after being soaked overnight in water. The structure was Painted white, with the exception of the fence spindles, which were given a brown tone; but the color scheme in such a case depends on the surroundings. At very slight expense a gateway of this kind greatly improves the entrance to a farm, a small park, or even a private residence. The example shown stands at the side entrance to a large park, to serve until the development of the neighborhood will make possible something of a more substantial nature.

HAN WOODEN FENCE

Wall Constructed of Loose Stones Has Many Points of Superiority—Harmonizes With Nature.

The New England stone wall, as a feature in landscape scenery, is sometimes spoken of as a deformity; yet it is denied that the same lines of deformity would mar the beauty of a prospect in a greater degree. The count of the loose manner in which the stones are laid one upon another, as well as the character of the materials, this wall harmonizes with the rude aspects of nature better than any kind of masonry. It seems to be less of a blemish than a trimmed hedge or any other kind of fence, unless in ornamental grounds. In wild pastures and lands devoted to rustic labor, the stone wall is the most picturesque boundary mark that has yet been invented. A trimmed hedge in such places would present to the eye an intolerable formality. One of the charms of the loose stone wall is the manifest ease with which it may be overleaped. It menaces no infringement of our liberties. When we look abroad upon the face of a country subdivided only by long lines of loose stones, and overgrown with vines and shrubbery, we feel no sense of constraint. . . . Fences are deformities of prospect which we are obliged to use and tolerate. But the loose stone wall only is expressive of the freedom which is grateful to the traveler and the rambling—Wilson Flagg.

Best to Build for Oneself.

The advice to the citizen to build his own home, if possible, is good. When a man builds for himself and his family he knows precisely what he gets, and he gets the kind of home he likes. It is better suited to the needs of himself and his family than is one that has been constructed for some other family. The cost of such construction may seem high, but good judges of values believe that an investment of this kind, made carefully and wisely, is the soundest and most satisfactory in the long run.

Roadside Fruit Trees.

The genius of the roadside fruit or nut tree is the hospitality which it symbolizes, and the spirit of neighborly co-operation. It is an established institution in parts of Europe, as in France, Italy and Germany. It is a practice worth thinking about. Both esthetic and utilitarian purposes would be served by general adoption of the rule in communities sufficiently organized to give necessary care to the trees once they have been planted.

Big Production of Fats.

The production of animal fats, exclusive of butterfat, equal to but 70 per cent of the vegetable oil output of the United States in 1912, rose in 1917 to nearly 80 per cent. Including butter, in 1912 the quantity of animal fats was approximately twice as great as that of vegetable oils, while in 1917 the production of the two classes of fats and oils was nearly the same.

Learn Wisdom Through Folly.

It is a great pity that we must experiment with a score of follies, most of them hoary with age, before we can arrive at a point of wisdom.—Sir Richard Cooke.

Promotion in the Navy comes quickly to those who qualify for higher ratings. In March 1899 A. F. Nilsson enlisted in the Navy as an Apprentice Seaman, 3rd class. In April 1907 he was rated Chief Turret Captain. His pay today is $165.76 per month.

A man's life—among men!

Reel them off—"Rio", Gibraltar, Ceylon, Yokohama—all the great ports of the world—are they only places on the map to you—or are they ports where you've gone sailing in from the high seas with every eye along the shore turned admiringly on your big ship—your ship! Every ocean has a United States ship sailing for some port worth seeing.

If you've any call in you for a full life—join, and color all your years ahead with memories of things worth seeing—with knowledge worth having—with an inexhaustible fund of sea tales and adventures picked up ashore and afloat that will make you a welcome man in any company.

Work?—sure, and a man's work it is, among men.

Play?—well, rather, with a bunch of men who know how to play. These comrades of yours carry in their ears the sounds of great world cities, of booming guns, of swashing seas—sounds you will share with them and that will never die away.

And when you come home, you'll find life ashore with level eyes—for Uncle Sam trains in self-reliance as well as self-respect. The Navy builds straight men—no mollycoddles.

Enlist for two years. Excellent opportunities for advancement. Four weeks holidays with pay each year. Shore leave to see inland sights at ports visited. Men always learning. Good food and first uniform outfit free. Pay begins the day you enlist. Get full information from your nearest recruiting station. If you do not know where the nearest recruiting station is, ask your Postmaster. He knows.

GIRL FOUND IN 5,000 MILE HUNT

Mother Travels Far in Search of Stolen Child

TAKEN BY FORMER HUSBAND

Story Begins With Romance in Alabama, Then Separation and Divorce, and the Daughter's Disappearance—During Four Months Mother Visits Every Large City in Alabama, Tennessee, Georgia, Kentucky and Indiana.

Some day, when 8 year old Nellie Mae Strauss attains mature years, she will tell the story of a woman who, impelled by mother love, started out to "search the world" for the man who had spirited away her daughter. The story will begin with a romance in Alabama; then a separation, a divorce, and the daughter's disappearance. And then she will tell how the mother recovered the child in Chicago after a quest of 5,000 miles.

"And the child," she will say, "was I, and the woman was my mother." All this leads up to a recent noon, when Julius Strauss, clothing salesman, emerged from the establishment in Chicago where he is employed, to partake of luncheon at some nearby cafe.

Well, he didn't get the luncheon. For right at the door he was halted by his divorced wife, now Mrs. Richard T. Johnson, and Mr. Johnson. No sooner had Mrs. Johnson set eyes on Strauss than she cried: "Now we've got you. Where's my baby girl?"

A crowd collected, and Mr. Strauss protested. "There must be a mistake." "Mistake nothing," cried Mrs. Johnson. "Here," to traffic policeman Valenta, "arrest this man. He stole my daughter."

Valenta, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, conducted Mr. Strauss to the central detail station, where Mrs. Johnson reiterated her charge and declared she was prepared to prosecute.

Mr. Strauss, who is remarried, then admitted he had the child, Nellie Mae, and a compromise was effected—that Mrs. Johnson would not prosecute and he would return Nellie. He gave her an address, and while Mrs. Johnson drove there in a taxicab he remained at the station. An hour later she returned with Nellie and Mr. Strauss was released. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson and the child left at night for Ohio, to settle, as Mrs. Johnson phrased it, "in a town where he cannot again find me to kidnap my daughter."

Mr. and Mrs. Strauss were married nine years ago at Birmingham, Ala. About five years later Mrs. Strauss obtained a divorce and custody of the child. In September, 1918, she was married to Johnson and they established a home in Atlanta.

Eight months ago, according to Mrs. Johnson's story to the police, Strauss visited them and asked leave to take Nellie for an automobile ride. The request was granted, but Nellie did not come back, and Mrs. Johnson could obtain no trace of either her or Strauss.

Husband Aids Search.

She grieved so much Johnson finally resigned his position, converted all his property into cash, and started out with her to make a systematic search for Strauss. That was four months ago. Since then the Johnsons have been in virtually every large city of Alabama, Tennessee, Georgia, Kentucky, and Indiana. In each town they would check every Strauss living there through the medium of telephone and city directories.

It was in Evansville, Ind., that they learned Strauss was here.

BABE TOOK LONG JOURNEY

Little Girl Boarded Train and Rode Fifty Miles Before Discovered.

A train arriving in Pittsburgh carried a three-year-old girl, whose presence was a mystery and who was able to enlighten questioners only to the extent of saying that her name was Dolly. She was turned over to a police matron.

In the meantime, Mr. and Mrs. John Crisswell of California, Pa., were frantic over the disappearance of their little daughter. Next morning Mr. Crisswell read in a Pittsburgh newspaper about the mysterious arrival of the three-year-old girl. He communicated with the police station and caught the next train for Pittsburgh, where he found Dolly enjoying herself with the matron.

Butted Man to Death.

Edward Fenton, a dealer of Field road, Forest Gate, England, is remanded at Epping on a charge of the manslaughter of Charles Randall, aged fifty-seven, a hay dealer of Epping. It was stated at the inquest that a quarrel occurred between the two men in the market, and that Fenton, a heavily-built man, put his head down and butted Randall in the chest. Randall fell and fractured his skull.

Prayed for Child; Found One at Door.

Faith in prayers for a child finally won for Mr. and Mrs. Paul Huber of San Francisco. After three childless years, during which they prayed for a baby, a founding was discovered on their doorstep.

Gave Fussy Baby $50; Bill Disappears.

The one-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Lizewski of Lawrence, Mass., became fussy while its parents were shopping. The father gave the baby a pocketbook containing a $50 bill, believing it would amuse him and keep him quiet. Fifteen minutes later the money disappeared.

German Town Seeks Loan From U. S.

The town of Bielefeld, Germany, is negotiating for a loan of $1,000,000 in the United States, the money to be used in the purchase of foodstuffs. The loan would run for ten years.

"Neither would I. But thank goodness there isn't one among all my male acquaintances."—Silly Stories.

Freedom's Atmosphere.

"Don't your wife object to your running around with your men friends?"
"Not my married men friends," replied Mr. Dubwaite. "But she draws the line on bachelors."
"Why so?"
"She says whenever I go out with a party of bachelors I always return home greatly depressed."

Always Some Drawback.
"Company for supper. Aren't you glad?"
"I don't know."
"We'll have a lot of good things to eat."
"I know, but we'll have to be on our good behavior, too, and won't be allowed to eat a lot."

No Breeding.

Briggs—I see the anarchist who blew up part of the attorney general's house was killed because he stumbled and fell.
Griggs—Yes; that's the trouble with them—they haven't learned how to enter a gentleman's house.—Life.

Bloodthirsty Difference.

"When the collector presents his bill I just tell him he can't get blood from a turnip."
"Then he ain't as small, quite—a mosquito gets blood!" time he presents his bill.

Not So Nice.

"My youngster is going in for home athletics."
"A good thing, eh?"
"I suppose so. He wants to do gymnasium work on the grand piano."

She Wants to Know.

"How's tricks?" inquired Wombat of Flubdub, as was his custom.
"Who is this Trix you fellows are always talking about?" declared Mrs. Wombat.

Killed Herself at Sweetheart's Door.
After writing a letter threatening to take her life because her lover had rejected her, Hattie Radin, eighteen years old, of Great Falls, Mont., took poison on the steps of her sweetheart's home.

ON THE FUNNY SIDE

Fatal Objection.

Newspaper mention the other day of a Trojan being sold at the Revere house auction brought to mind the story of the newly rich lady and the art dealer. On being shown a painting of the above-named artist, she declared it wouldn't do, as she wanted the picture for her drawing room.

"But what is your objection to this one?" inquired the dealer.

"Mercy!" exclaimed the lady, "one couldn't have a cow in one's drawing room, you know."—Boston Transcript.

Something at Stake.

"What are you shouting 'police' for?" asked the inquisitive old gentleman. "I don't see anybody trying to rob or beat you."

"Don't bother me," answered the citizen who was standing on a corner yelling with all his might. "A man from Skeetersville bet me half a dollar I couldn't rouse up a cop in Tondavine if I yelled for half a day, and I'm just trying to win that money."

Diplomatic.

"Young man, did you kiss my daughter in the hall last night?" questioned the stern mother.

"I thought I did," replied the diplomatic young man; "but really, you look so young that I can't always tell you and your daughter apart."

Whereupon the storm passed over.

You'll Have Its Fling.

City Visitor—Your son at college is quite an athlete, I understand. Great at throwing the hammer.

Farmer Hawbuck—Yes, gol darn it! Last time he was down I gave him a hammer to fix the barn an' he threw it so far I hain't seen it since.

AN INTERLUDE.

"What's your favorite animal?"
"A goldfish. It doesn't sing or have to be put out of the house at night."

The Secret.

Rather Cute.

Edwin (tenderly touching Madeline's tresses)—Sweet one, let me be like this lovely hair!
Madeline (tremulously)—What, dear, what would you be?
Edwin (rapturously)—All your own!

Gone Forever.

"What I want is an old-fashioned chicken dinner."
"You may get the old-fashioned dinner, but you'll never get the old-fashioned bill from the waiter."

Modern Version.

Prodigal Son—I come to you, father, with a heavy heart.
His Father—And a light pocketbook. I know all about that. How much do you need now?

The Dependent Wife.

"Charles, you've forgotten to leave me some money."
"No, darling, I haven't forgotten. I was hoping you had."—Browning's Magazine.

He Wanted Board.

Farmer—Hungry, are you? Well there is the woodpile.
Tramp—I am sorry, sir, and thank you, sir, but my stomach is not accustomed to such food.

A Tightwad Boss.

"I think I'll go home for a couple of days. I'm about half sick."
"If you're about half sick, I should think you'd be satisfied with about half a day off."

In Like Condition.

Conductor—This car goes through without any change.
Passenger—That's why I boarded it. I'm in the same predicament myself.

Defined.

"What is the difference between an actress and an artist?"
"An actress paints to kill and an artist paints to live."

That Depends.

"Don't you think it is better to give than to receive?"
"Certainly, if it is advice or knocks."

WARN DRIVER BY DANGER SIGNAL

Many Evils May Result From Driving Car With Emergency Brake Engaged.

PLAN TO PREVENT ACCIDENT

Device of Florida Man Can Be Applied to Any "Shift Gear" Type of Car—Essential Element Is Contact Spring on Levers.

Burned out brake-bands, broken crank-shafts, and enormous fuel consumption are only a few of the many evils that may result from driving a car with the emergency brake locked to position.

After a friend had told him he had unwittingly driven over twenty-five miles under such conditions, L. B. Robbins, a Florida inventor, set about to devise a means of preventing just such occurrences. The idea can be applied to any "shift gear" type of car, and calls for only the simplest materials.

Contact Spring Essential.

The essential element is a contact spring applied to each lever, that is, the emergency-brake and gear-shift lever, just far enough above the floor of the car to allow easy shifting.

The spring is a strip of tempered brass, bent as shown, one end being fitted with a screw terminal. This can be found on an old dry-cell. A short length of rubber garden hose is slit down its length and slipped over the lever to act as an insulator and to keep the two metals apart. The spring is clamped to the hose with a pair of common hose clamps. The two terminals are then connected by a coiled piece of ordinary bell wire as shown in the illustration.

A Contact Spring on Each Lever Makes a Signal Light Show When the Brake Is Engaged.

Set Emergency Brake.

Attach a metal contact strip to the floor-board immediately behind each lever, so that, when the gears are in "high" and the emergency brake is set, there will be contact between the spring strip on each lever and the metal directly behind it.

Wire these two floor strips to a light or bell, as preferred, which is placed on the dash, and insert one cell of the battery in the circuit.—Popular Science Monthly.

WHEN HOOD HANDLES RATTLE

Noise Made Is Most Annoying and Can Be Cured by Occasional Tightening of Screws.

The handles fastened on the hood to permit of raising and lowering the part are apt to get loose and rattle after the car has seen considerable service especially if they are attached with screws. The noise they make is most annoying, and the only cure is an occasional tightening of the screws.

CAR FEE SYSTEM IS QUITE COMPLICATED

Amount Collected for Various Vehicles Is Not Uniform.

Confusion Caused by Widely Varying Requirements for Registration or Licensing of Chauffeurs, Owners and Dealers.

The amount of fees collected per car for either pleasure or commercial vehicles is as yet far from uniform and is still further complicated by the widely varying requirements for the registration or licensing of chauffeurs, owners, operators, dealers, etc. Thus, if the total gross registration and license revenues be used as a basis of revenue, and the total automobile trucks and vehicles as a basis for motorcars, it is found that for the entire United States the average fee per car was $8.37. On the same basis the state of New Hampshire received in 1918 a gross revenue of $20.52 for each motorcar, while Minnesota received only about $1.75 annually for each car, as the registration in that state is for a three-year period.

In most states motorcars are taxed as personal property in addition to the required registration fees. In Delaware, Idaho, Iowa, Michigan, New York, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Pennsylvania and Vermont registration fees are in lieu of all other taxes. Therefore, in making any comparisons in fees as between the several states, this fact should be borne in mind.

ELIMINATING BODY SQUEAKS

Thick Leather Straps or Washers, Held in Position by Bolts, Will Stop Noise.

Motorcar frames are not at all rigid under the distorting influences of an irregular road surface, whereas the body work is very much less free to bend and give. This gives rise to slight rubbing at various places where the frame is in contact with the body sills, and since these points of free contact are not lubricated squeaks result. The remedy is to insulate the body from the frame with thick leather straps or washers, so placed as to be held in position by the bolts securing the two. In like manner the filler board used with some types of windshield to make it conform with the outline of the car dash can be prevented from squeaking by the insertion of a strip of leather or felt.

When using the self-starter be sure that the spark is retarded, as a back-kick may wreck the mechanism.

The usually recommended substance for putting out gasoline fires is sand, which certainly has many advantages.

The fabric is the life of a tire. Small cuts in the rubber let sand in which soon loosens the rubber from the fabric, and the water which enters, rots it.

A leading American automobile manufacturer has found it advantageous to install a compressed air device for driving wood screws and machine screws and nuts.

The body of the car should be cleaned with castile soap and water. Mud should not be rubbed off, but rather should be washed off by flowing a gentle stream of water over the spot.

The small rods which are part of the ordinary pocket lamp battery can be filed and trimmed down to make a very acceptable temporary replacement for worn-out carbon brushes in the magneto.

Camel

Camels are sold everywhere in scientifically sealed packages of 20 cigarettes or ten packages (200 cigarettes) in a glassine-paper-covered carton. We strongly recommend this carton for the home or office supply or when you travel.

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. Winston-Salem, N. C.

CAMELS are in a class by themselves—easily the most refreshing, the most likable cigarette you ever smoked. You can prove that! Simply compare Camels puff-by-puff with any cigarette in the world at any price! Put quality, flavor and cigarette satisfaction to the utmost test!

Made to meet your taste, Camels never tire it, no matter how liberally you smoke them! The expert blend of choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos makes Camels delightful—so full-bodied, yet so fascinatingly smooth and mellow-mild. Every time you light one you get new and keener enjoyment!

Freedom from any unpleasant cigarette after taste or any unpleasant cigarette odor makes Camels as unusual as they are enjoyable.

In fact, Camels appeal to the most fastidious smoker in so many new ways you never will miss the absence of coupons, premiums or gifts. You'll prefer Camel Quality!

WORLD'S LARGEST TRAILERS USEFUL IN TRANSPORTING SUGAR BEETS TO MILLS

It is trailers of the type shown in the illustration, the largest in the world, that are used daily for the transportation of overflowing loads of sugar beets from the fields near Salinas, Cal., to the sugar mills. In spite of the excessive loads carried by the trailers, loading and unloading is extremely simple. The rear wheels are equipped with solid tires.

New Pastor.

Rev. J. Caleb Justice, who has accepted the call to the pastorate of the Union church of Braintree and Weymouth, came to Kingston on Dighton, September 15, 1914, and for the past five years has been pastor of the Mayflower Congregational church here. During his pastorate, says the Old Colony Memorial, the church has been incorporated, renovated inside and out, painted and redecorated and fitted with hard-wood floors, oak pews, indirect lighting and a new pipe organ, at a cost of $4000. Last May Mr. Justice organized the Russell Mills Community church in Chiltonville.

He was active in all of the Liberty loan drives, and was chairman of the Victory Boys and Girls, in which Kingston exceeded her quota by 300 percent, and took rank as the first town in the state. Mr. Justice started the movement to organize a Boys' club in town and has since been clerk of the board of directors. Together with Rev. Sidney S. Robins of the first Parish church, a series of Community church services were successfully conducted for several years, and during Mr. Robins' both churches for six months. He is Army, Mr. Justice acted as pastor of absence as Chaplain in the U. S. in the "Pilgrim Ministers' and in the Pilgrim association of congregational churches, which elected him a member of the national council.

Justice will leave Monday to the meeting of the national at Grand Rapids, Mich., as a delegate from the Pilgrim Association of congregational churches.

SESSMENTS NOT PAID.

Trustees of the Quincy and Weymouth bridges have just discovered that the Bay State Street Railway company has not for four years paid the assessment of 15 per cent toward the cost of the Fore River bridge. They voted to proceed against the company.

ALBERT A. SPEAR.

Albert A. Spear of East Weymouth, for 40 years a well known and successful florist of the South Shore, died on Wednesday aged 76 years.

He was a native and life-long resident of Weymouth. When a young man he learned the trade of a wheelwright and carriage builder. He continued in this business until he was 20 years old and then established a shop of his own. About 40 years ago he discontinued this business and became a florist, and the plant today is an extensive one. He was a veteran of the Civil War.

He is survived by his wife, daughter and two sons.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon.

For some time the men of Lovell's Corner have manifested considerable interest in the young men and boys. It is felt that some proper place of amusement and recreation should be provided. On Tuesday evening, Oct. 21, a meeting of a number of men and boys was held at the home of Walter Cole, and discussed what was feasible to be done.

After careful deliberation it was decided to affiliate with some larger organization, if possible, and definite plans to that end were made. A working committee was appointed consisting of J. B. B. Smith, as chairman, Chas. Turner, and A. S. Erving as representatives of the men, and Oswald Woodward, Roland Smith, and George Roberts as representatives of the boys.

A meeting will soon be called at which a definite organization will be proposed. All men and boys of the community are urged to attend. It will be held at Pratt's hall. Watch for it.

"DADDY LONG LEGS"

Mary Pickford in Daddy Long Legs, the screen version of the famous story by Jean Webster, which will be seen at the Oddfellows Opera House, East Weymouth on Monday, Nov. 3, plays not only the role of Judy Abbott, the little orphan who passes her childhood in an asylum, but also in a scene from Romeo and Juliet, impersonating Juliet in a pickfordian way, on the occasion of her graduation from college. Here is a short story of the principal incidents of the screen play:

Judy Abbott was an orphan. She was mothered by an ashen. She was found by a kindhearted officer, who took her to the asylum. There the nameless waif was christened by the matron, who took the name from a telephone book. Then, when she got bigger, that made her wear plain gingham frocks, just like all the other little girls, with her hair in a plait. Judy had a kind heart. There was a small redheaded freckled boy orphan, who was her chum. Together they decided, when Judy was about twelve years old, to declare a prune strike. The matron fed them all on prunes every day. Judy called a meeting of the orphans. The matron caught her. Judy and her freckled face little pal, were driven into the yard. There they prayed for food without prunes. A jug of applejack fell at their feet. The matron found them in the hall. A kind hearted lady heard about Judy. Then came an offer by an unknown trustee to send her to college. Judy studied hard and graduated at the head of her class. Her Daddy Long Legs benefactor had to be repaid. So Judy wrote a book and became famous. Then she found out, who Daddy Long Legs was, and married him.

The production of this wonderful screen play which has Jean Webster's popular story as its basis, was an almost life ambition with our movie idol and Queen Mary Pickford. There were difficulties but she overcame all of them and sealed her desire by paying Klav & Erlanger $40,000 for the right to produce the play on the flit. This and the response of the most striking artists, together with the elaborate scenes, run up the cost to a great figure—nearly one million dollars, so that it is necessary to raise the prices of admission somewhat. But people pay it cheerfully and after seeing Daddy Long Legs fully realize that they have been amply repaid.

WAR CAMP SERVICE CLUB

The party of last Friday evening was chaperoned by Mrs. Perry and Mrs. Bosworth of East Weymouth with a party of 20 East Weymouth girls. Dancing was enjoyed till 10.30. Wednesday of this week the evening's entertainment was in charge of the Misses Florence Nash and Helen Reise. Mrs. Warren Menchin was chaperone. Games and music, vocal and instrumental, occupied the early part of the evening followed by dancing.

Remember

That every added subscriber helps to make this paper better for everybody

The flush of youth soon passes from the face.
The spells of fancy from the mind depart.
The form may lose its symmetry and grace.
But time can claim no victory o'er the heart.

SEASONABLE FOODS.

Where apples are plentiful one may have a variety of dishes besides apple pies and apple sauce, good as they are. Here is one to enjoy:

Apple Souffle.

Stew good tart apples as for sauce, adding lemon peel and juice.
Spread the
stewed apples high around the sides and bottom of a baking dish. Make a custard, using the yolks of two eggs and a pint of milk, with a tablespoonful of cornstarch mixed with two of sugar; flavor with cinnamon. Cook the custard and let it cool, then pour it carefully into the apple-lined dish.
Beat the whites of two eggs, add a tablespoonful of sugar and cover the top. Brown in the oven and serve cold.

Apple Stuffed With Nuts and Raisins.—Core half a dozen even-sized apples and remove the peeling of half of each apple. Put half a cupful of water in a saucepan; into this set the apples, the half which is unpeeled down, as this keeps them from losing their shape while cooking. Turn and baste carefully until the apples are tender.
Set them carefully into a baking pan and fill the centers with one-third of a cupful each of chopped nuts and raisins; sprinkle over them a little sugar and bake in a moderate oven until glazed. Serve with the syrup poured around them.

Baked Apple Dumplings.—Select tart apples which cook without losing their shape, though this is not necessary.
Core and peel. Cook in water and sugar enough to float them until nearly done. Remove them with a skimmer and place each on a square of pastry;
fill the cores with sugar and lemon juice and drop a little of thickened syrup in which they were cooked over them. Moisten the tips of the pastry and press together over the top of the apple. Bake in a hot oven until well brown. Serve with cream and sugar;
dust with nutmeg.

To Make Egg Sauce.—Beat two eggs until light; add a half-cupful of milk, a half-cupful of sugar, and cook over hot water until thick; add vanilla and serve.

Apple and Raisin Roll.—Take two cupfuls of chopped apple, a half cupful of raisins. Place on a thin sheet of pastry and roll. Place in a deep baking dish, putting the folded pastry on the top. Pour over a cupful of boiling water, add a cupful of brown sugar and a tablespoonful of butter. Bake one hour in a moderate oven. The apples with the sugar and water will make sufficient sauce, or cream and sugar may be served with it.

To grow and to keep in person as attractive as possible should be not only everyone's pleasure but should be also everyone's duty.

OLD-FASHIONED DISHES DEAR TO OUR HEARTS.

How very rarely do we see the toothsome crullers, dainty, sugary, rich and crisp. The same recipe may be used for fried cakes, but the manner of cutting the cruller makes them so much more attractive. Rolled twice as thick as pastry, then cut in oblongs with three or four slits cut nearly through to the edge with a sharp knife they look like an old-fashioned barred gate before they are fried. Drop into deep hot fat and fry a golden brown; roll in powdered sugar before serving. Some cooks twist the little strips before dropping into the fat, which gives them an especially attractive appearance.

Crullers.—Take one cupful of sugar, two eggs, three tablespoonfuls of butter, one cupful of sweet milk, a teaspoonful of cream of tartar, one-half teaspoonful of soda, some grated nutmeg and a bit of salt. Cream the butter, add the sugar and when well mixed the yolks of the eggs well beaten, then a little of the milk with flour sifted with the dry ingredients and fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Use just as little flour as possible to roll.
Chill on ice before rolling and the cakes can be handled very soft.

Sour Cream Doughnuts.—Beat two eggs until light and foamy, add one and three-fourths cupfuls of sugar and continue beating until the sugar is nearly dissolved; add one and one-fourth cupfuls of sour milk, one-fourth of a cupful of thick, sour cream, a teaspoonful of soda, a half teaspoonful of salt and grated nutmeg for flavor. Add as little flour as possible to handle;
set on ice an hour to harden before rolling. Fry in hot fat, using the one-minute test. (A cube of bread browning in one minute in the fat.)

Dumplings.—Delicious fluffy dumplings may be prepared as follows:
Take one beaten egg, one cupful of butter milk, not too sour, two teaspoon-fuls of baking powder and half a teaspoonful of salt sifted in flour enough to make about a cupful and a half of drop batter. Drop from a teaspoon into a boiling hot kettle of meat with plenty of bones on which to rest the dumplings. Cook eight minutes. Do not uncover during the cooking.

The health and morals of a people depend mainly upon the food they eat and the homes they live in.—Ellen Richards.

IDEAS FOR HALLOWE'EN.

The chestnut is the nut which belongs to the time-honored holiday, and no party on that occasion is quite complete without a fire and roasted chestnuts.

Roasted chestnuts,
doughnuts, apples and cider make the ideal refreshments. For a Hallowe'en luncheon or a supper, by excluding the daylight and covering the lights with orange-colored tissue, or using candles with orange shades, the table will be most attractive. For the centerpiece, a large pumpkin may be cut in the form of a basket and used as the fruit holder for grapes and apples. Small gourds or tiny pumpkins may be decorated with a face and lighted with a candle inside; these may be favors for each plate, and around the pumpkin grape or autumn-tinted leaves may be placed. Small squashes may be used as candlesticks, or brass candlesticks are always appropriate.

White gourds for Jack-o'-lanterns and white cosmos as a centerpiece make a very attractive table.

Another pretty device for a candlelight supper: Fill a large punch bowl with water, place tiny paper boats fitted with tiny candles to float on the water.

Chestnut Croquettes.—Mash roasted chestnuts to a smooth paste; add a tablespoonful of butter, two tablespoonfuls of milk, the grated peel of a lemon, one teaspoonful of salt, a dash of cayenne and the beaten yolks of two eggs. Form into balls the size of large chestnuts, dip in egg yolk, then in crumbs, and fry in deep fat.
Garnish with slices of lemon and parsley sprays.

Marrons au Juc.—These are chestnuts preserved in a lemon syrup, and may be prepared in chestnut season, keeping for years. Shell and blanch the chestnuts, after cooking them in the shell until quite tender. Prepare a lemon syrup, and turn in the chestnuts, when scalding hot, and seal airtight. These may be used as a garnish for ice creams, sherbets, puddings, or may be served as a confection, dipped in fondant or chocolate, or drained and rolled in powdered sugar.

Search as we will we will find that the inner unseen realm of thought is invariably the realm of cause and the realm of material form is the realm of effect.

EVERY-DAY LUNCHEONS.

It is in the every-day food where we need variety. Anyone may create some dainty for an occasion, but it takes real brain-work to keep going every day and
avoid monotony.

Frizzled Oysters.—Put half a cupful of sweet
fat into the frying pan, add three well-beaten eggs, mixed with a cupful of cracker crumbs. Add two cupfuls of oysters, with their liquor; season with salt and pepper and cook ten minutes, stirring constantly.

Cabbage Salad.—Select a small, heavy, round head of cabbage. Cut a slice off the top and scoop out the inside, leaving a thin shell. Shred the cabbage with half as much celery; mix with a highly seasoned boiled dressing; add a few nuts and fill the shell.
The shell may be used to hold the frizzled oysters and the salad served on lettuce leaves.

Spoon Bread.—Take two cupfuls of sweet milk, add one cupful of cornmeal and cook until it makes a smooth mush; add two cupfuls of buttermilk, half a teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of salt and three well-beaten eggs; mix well and bake in a well-butered pudding dish. Serve from the dish.

Baked Pears.—Peel and core pears and fill the cavity with sugar, butter and a bit of grated lemon rind. Place in a baking dish, pour over water, add sugar and the juice of a lemon; bake until tender, basting often with the syrup. Roll down the syrup and pour over the fruit. Chill before serving.

Corn Flake Dainties.—Take two cupfuls of corn flakes, one cupful of coconut, one egg, well beaten; add a teaspoonful of vanilla, a speck of salt and a cupful of sugar. Mix well and drop by small teaspoonfuls on a baking sheet. Bake until a golden brown.
Chopped pecans, peanuts, hickory nuts or any kind of nut may be used in place of the coconut.

Shelled pecans, browned in a bit of butter and dusted with a dash of cayenne pepper and salt, make a very dainty dish.

GRACEFUL RIBBONS BRIGHTEN LINGERIE

Already the showcases in ribbon departments prophesy the coming of the holidays, for a lot of new and beautiful articles for wear and for household use have made their appearance. Lingerie ribbons, hair bows, shopping bags and many other kinds of bags, slippers and sashes are always in demand, but they grow in importance with the approach of the holidays, since nothing is liked better for gifts. This year will see them more popular than ever because they are less extravagantly priced than other gifts that have equal charm.

All women like pretty furbelows and therefore they choose them as gifts for their friends. The pretty lingerie bows, garters, rosettes, clasps, sachet and powder bags—and other bits of finery made of ribbons require time and painstaking care and these add more value to exquisite little gifts than can be measured in dollars and cents. A few of the novelties which will figure in this year's holiday displays are shown in the picture above.

At the center of the group there is a shower rosette made of narrow satin ribbon, usually in pink, but pretty in any light color. The rosette is made of many knotted loops varying in length, with the short ones at the center. These, with a few short ends, are sewed together at the base of the loops. Eleven pieces of ribbon, also of unequal length, and each having a little bow at one end, are sewed to the back of the rosette, which is then fastened to a medium-sized safety pin. This rosette is to be used on a night dress or petticoat where it is pinned to place when wanted.

Two pairs of garters are shown, each made of a plain satin ribbon shirred to a flat elastic band. Each of the garters at the left is ornamented with a double bow of ribbon in which a ribbon pansy is set and two buds. The pansy is painted at the center. The garters at the opposite side are finished with small clusters of ribbon flowers. The group includes little rosettes of ribbon with tiny ribbon or chiffon roses at the center, each fastened to a small safety pin. These are used wherever needed, as on the shoulders—instead of clasps.

For Evening Gowns.

Exquisitely rich, but in good taste, are evening dresses and dinner gowns of heavy metal brocades veiled in colored chiffons.

In the Assemblage of Girl's Coats

In the assemblage of coats for little girls certain kinds of cloth and certain styles are set aside for children from four years old upward to misses of seventeen. Warmth, protection against rain and snow, and durability are the first consideration in girls' coats and all these things have been looked after in the models presented for this season. Prices have advanced as sharply on children coats as they have on shoes and Baby Bunting's father could hardly be more profitably employed than when he goes hunting for rabbit skins to wrap the baby up in. Rabbit skin coats, undisguised by any dye and not masquerading under any other name, make coats for small girls. Squirrel, opossum, muskrat are the furs to make collars in cloth coats for the younger children.

For school wear there are heavy novelty cloths, plain on one side and plaid on the other, that are warm and good looking. Leather coats that cost less than cloth ones, will help solve the problem of warmth and durability without high price. Dark blue cloth coats lined with scarlet wool cloth are among the prettiest models that—speaking comparatively—are moderately priced, but moderately priced does not mean much in the realm of coats, either for youngsters, or grown people.

Fur fabrics (or wool furs) make very handsome coats for children and prove as durable as any cloth; they are more lasting than furs and richer looking than the inexpensive pelts. There are several kinds of wool fur suitable for children of various ages. Nearly all of them are plain, that is not made in imitation of a fur, and the coat pictured here is a fine example of good style for a girl of ten years or over. This is a straight-hanging coat, cut to flare somewhat. It has a wide felt that slips through a slash in the coat at each side and buttons with a large button and loop at the front. The wide shawl collar can be rolled up about the neck and face and there are small, triangular pockets to hide the fingers in when the coldest weather nips them. These coats are lined with plain satin usually and while quite dressy enough for any sort of demand, they may be relied upon for daily service and great resistance to wear.

Junior Christian Endeavor in the afternoon at 3:45. Christian Endeavor at 6:00. Evening service at 7:00. Mid-week service Thursday evening at 7:30. Kindly note change in time of meeting.

PORTER M. E. CHURCH
Lovell's Corner.
Rev. Arthur S. Emig, minister. On Sunday Oct. 26, "Good Literature Day" will be observed at the church. This observance is a Centenary endeavor. The morning subject will be "Abundant Companions." The evening service will begin with a short song service. Last Sunday this song service was greatly benefited by the cornet of Miss Florence Pratt, and the trombone of Harold Morse. We hope to have this privilege often. The remainder of the evening service will be devoted to the outstanding hymns of Charles Wesley. The Bible School meets at 11:45. This service will be for consecration. Miss Helen White is the leader with the subject, "How to use the Bible." The weekly prayer service in the vestry on Thursday at 7:30. The Social Principals of Jesus are helpful considerations. Come and see. The Junior League meets on Saturday at 2:30 in the vestry.

FIRST UNIVERSALIST CHURCH
Weymouth
"A Man's Family" will be Mr. Whipple's subject on Sunday at 10:30 A. M. Church school will meet on Sunday at 11:45 A. M. Our delegate, John P. Hunt, left on the Colonial Express Tuesday morning for Baltimore to attend the General Convention of Universalists, October 21-26. Mr. Hunt expects to find time to attend sessions of Congress at Washington and to view the Capitol City. A trip Saturday afternoon will be made to the Academy at Annapolis. The pastor, Mr. Whipple, left Wednesday evening, taking a short trip to Washington, attending the business meetings of the Convention at Baltimore Thursday evening, and Friday, and will return to attend his duties on Saturday and Sunday. The young people enjoyed a pleasant party and dance at Pythias hall, Friday last. The committee consisted of Mr. William Moore, Miss Edith Bicknell, Miss Mabel McGibbon. Friends of William Moore will rejoice to know that at last report he was comfortable, and apparently improving. Secretary of State Langtry was the speaker Tuesday night at the regular meeting of the Men's Club. The membership now is fifty-one. It is hoped to increase to one hundred during this year. A supper was served by ladies of the Social Circle, Mrs. John Hunt, chairman.

Hats in the Commons.

Among the changes noticeable in the house of commons is the absence of the hat when members are in the house itself. Formerly hats were universally worn when members were seated or in the lobby. Only the whips were hatless in the lobby; that marked them out from the others. Now nearly the only members who still retain their headgear—both glossy silk topers—are Mr. Chamberlain and Sir Frederick Banbury. Both make great play with it. Sir Frederick raises his hat when a minister answers one of his questions or when in the fencing phrase he is "touche" in debate. The chancellor of the exchequer takes his off when he rises to speak and puts it on the table in front of him, and when listening to a speaker sits with it well forward over his eyes and his feet planted high up on the side of the table.—London Morning Post.

Strange Burial Ceremonies.

A Chinese cemetery located in Chicago differs from other cemeteries by the fact that it contains a curious looking altar and large incense burner. The ceremony attending a burial is quite interesting. Roast pig, chickens, rice puddings, etc., being left on the grave of the deceased Chinaman. After ten years burial the graves are opened and the bones removed, scraped and thoroughly cleaned. They are then packed into small lettered boxes and sent back to China. For the Chinese believe that there can be no rest for their people if left buried on a foreign soil. So the bones are sent back to China.

"Sure, sorr, Oi haven't much room to complain."

A Maid and a Mouse.

A friend of mine went to call on his best girl. The door was opened by the maid, who was quite pretty. Just as he stepped inside the door, a mouse ran across the hall, whereupon the maid screamed and threw her arms around him. Just then his girl's mother came in from the street. He afterward told me that for a minute he thought he would die with embarrassment. Fortunately both the girl and her mother accepted his explanation.

Everett C. Bumpus, Esq., was then announced as the Toast-Master of the occasion, and proposed as the first regular toast, "The President of the United States," and called upon Hon.
Benjamin W. Harris, the Representative in Congress from the second Massachusetts district, who responded as follows:

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen:
If the President of the United States were personally present to respond to the sentiment in his honor just proposed, his speech would possibly, I have no doubt, judging from his well-known most excellent habit, among its many other excellences, that of brevity. In making response, in his absence, I shall strive for that same virtue.

In thanking you for the compliment intended to be conveyed, he would,
I am sure, with characteristic modesty, decline to appropriate the honor of it, as wholly personal, to himself, but would accept it as due, in part, to the great office which he has been called, by the voice of the nation, temporarily to fill.

That we owe him hearty thanks and high honors for difficult and valuable service rendered to the nation as chief magistrate, is most true; and this public acknowledgement of our obligation is spontaneous and sincere.

But we can not and need not disguise the truth, that the highest honors which impartial history will assign to U. S. Grant will be those earned by him as a great military leader of his time and country.

We heard, today, from our eloquent orator, the story of Miles Standish's victory, won here two hundred and fifty years ago; how he came up from Plymouth, at the head of an army of eight men, on the first military expedition of the infant colony; and how, at the foot of this hill, he performed deeds of heroic valor, which have become a part of the history of our country, and which will never be forgotten. Though he commanded a small army, and exercised power over a very limited extent of country, yet the act which he performed was great, and its results will be felt during all the ages of his country's history, and entitles him to an honorable rank among military men.

To be sure, the settlement which he found was, for the time, quite destroyed and stamped out in his memorable campaign; but he was engaged in a war having for its object the salvation of the colony, which this ill-starred settlement seemed to him to endanger; and the results which followed have fully justified his seemingly impetuous and fiery acts, and prove him to have been a far-seeing and prudent leader. He taught a treacherous and wily foe that, "though he was a little man, he was a great captain," and that in defence of his home and country, he was invincible.
Since his day, the country which he helped to found has widened and expanded from a feeble settlement by the shore, upon the outer margin of an unknown continent, to an empire stretching from sea to sea, and embracing within its projecting power forty millions of people.

General Grant, whom we seek to honor by the proposed toast, moved by the same patriotic love of country which inspired the heart of Miles Standish, indeed led greater armies and won grander victories, and his name will justly descend to future times as his country's great deliverer; and yet we may well doubt to which of the two men future time will assign the higher place in the Temple of Fame.

Captain Standish and General Grant! The great military men of their times; they served the same country—the former saved it from destruction in the febleness of its founding; the latter defended it from impending anarchy and dismemberment in its maturity and strength.
They are entitled to equal honors on a day like this.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts,
Norfolk, ss. Probate Court.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court, next to be held at Dedham within and for the County of Norfolk:

Respectfully libels and represents
Emma O'Brien of Weymouth in said County, that she was lawfully married to Michael J. O'Brien of parts unknown at Weymouth on the tenth day of May, A. D. 1914, and there-afterwards your libellant and the said Michael J. O'Brien lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit: at Weymouth aforesaid that your libellant has always been faithful to her marriage vows, and obligations, but the said Michael J. O'Brien being wholly regardless of the same at Weymouth on or about the first day of May, A.

D. 1916 did utterly desert your libellant and has continued such desertion from that day to the date hereof, being more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel. Being of sufficient ability, grossly or wantonly and cruelly refuses and neglects to provide suitable support for your libellant and children.

Whereof your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Michael J. O'- Brien, and for custody of minor children, Michael R. O'Brien, born February 17, 1914, Mary M. O'Brien, born February 12, 1916, and for such other orders and decrees as to your Honors shall seem meet, and as justice may require.

Dated the twenty-fifth day of August, A. D. 1919.
EMMA O'BRIEN.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts,
Norfolk, ss. Probate Court.

On the foregoing Libel, it is ordered that the Libellant give notice to the said Michael J. O'Brien, the Libellee, to appear before the Justices of this Court, to be held at Dedham, within and for said County, on the first Monday of December next, by causing an attested copy of said Libel, and of this order thereon, to be published once in a week, for three consecutive weeks, in the Weymouth Gazette, a newspaper printed at Weymouth, in the County of Norfolk, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said first Monday of December next, and further, by sending through the mail, as soon as may be,
by a registered letter addressed to the last known residence of the said Michael J. O'Brien an attested copy of said Libel, and of this order thereon, that the said Michael J. O'Brien may then and there show cause why the prayer of said Libel should not be granted.

By the Court,
R. B. WORTHINGTON, Clerk.

Your Feet must be RIGHT, Son

So says Uncle Sam to all of America's young manhood.

The Tru-pedic Shoe is the very best
answer to this nation-wide demand
for better fitting footwear, because it is built upon new principles which INSURE proper fitting shoes.

What distinctly marks Tru-pedics
from the others, is the fact they are made in three types on the same style
—inflare, straight and outflare.
Science says "All normal feet are
of one of three types and not of one standard type." This fact is now established after years of scientific research and study.

The Tru-pedic Shoe, in the right type for your foot, will prove to be one of the most attractive, as well as best fitting shoes, you ever had.
Come in and try on all THREE types.

MOST CHIVALROUS ARMY IN HISTORY

Woman "Y" Worker's Lonely Pilgrimage.

Doughboys of the A. E. F. are bringing home with them the finest thing in their lives abroad—their ideal of American womanhood.

An American woman says so; a woman who has traversed France in every kind of conveyance to sing and talk to the boys in every sort of place;
a woman who has read burial services over the dead and has sung to boys dying in her arms.

Her name is Mme. Ada Turner Kurtz.
She has studied the doughboy to better advantage, perhaps, than any other woman in France, for she was the only woman Y. M. C. A. worker abroad who held a "roving commission," and who went wherever she believed she was needed, from the forests in the South to the war zone in the North and the occupied territory along the Rhine. She was a Y.
M. C. A. entertainment and religious "unit" of one—until she became voice teacher to musician-soldiers in the Army of Occupation, with a German officer's apartment for her studio.

The A. E. F. in Mme. Kurtz's opinion was the most chivalrous army in history. They gave to women the highest tribute of respect and consideration. This was their attitude to the women war workers, and if it changed, the woman, not the Y. M. C. A. or the doughboy, was at fault.

MRS. ADA TURNER KURTZ

She tells of her lonely pilgrimage into the forests of the Bordeaux region, to tell the impatient young soldiers of the S. O. S. that their job was vital. She tells of surprising a unit that hadn't seen an American woman for months, deep in a French forest;
how they seized her, set her upon a box, scrambled for "slum" and knives and forks and spoons, every man eager to do something for her. And she tells how some of them would reach out and touch her, just to prove that she was real.

More than all else, Mme. Kurtz declares, the doughboy craved the mother-touch of womanhood. They sought it from all the women workers, whatever their age. They wanted a woman with whom they were free to talk, to whom they could take their troubles, and show the pictures they all carried of beloved women at home.
The fact that the women war workers could satisfy this craving, Mme.
Kurtz says, is proof of how necessary
they were to the army.

The singer tells the story of one youth whom she picked up dying and carried to a hospital. As she held him, he opened his eyes and said,
"Mother." She told him she was not his mother, but it was all right, he was to go to sleep. Then he said,
"Thank God you're a woman." She tells the story of a Scotch boy who thought he was dying. She went to him and asked him what she should sing.

"Sing 'Annie Laurie,'" he said.

And she sang it.

He did not die. Later she had opportunity to ask him why, when he thought he was dying, he asked her to sing that song.

"Don't you know," he answered,
"that every man in khaki has an Annie Laurie for whom he would lay him down and die?"

MOVIES IN SIERIA.

Boston—Although thrilling drama holds first place in the eyes of Silberians, their demand for educational films and more comedy features is growing, according to R. J. Reitzel, director of the Y. M. C. A. lecture bureau in Vladivostok. The educational film, Director Reitzel advises the "Y" National War Work Council headquarters here, is being popularized among the peasantry and is proving a short-cut to their general enlightenment.

Mr. Reitzel points out that the "Y" shows have done much to displace and counteract the German films which their threat of propaganda. The shows have not been confined to "Y" halls but have been given in city schools and before groups of workers, at sport and other clubs and before the soldiers and boy scouts. The movement is being still furthered in line with the greater extension work taken up by the "Y" machines having been installed in cities from Vladvostok as far west as Omsk and Tomsok.

NERVES GAVE OUT

Serious Kidney Trouble Had Made Life Miserable, But Doan's Removed All the Trouble. Hasn't Suffered Since.

"I had such severe pains in my back," says Mrs. Albert Akroyd, 304 W. Indiana Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa., "that they almost doubled me up. Many a day I could not do my housework and at every move it seemed as if my back would break in two. My feet and ankles swelled until I had to wear large-sized shoes and sometimes I couldn't stand up. I had dizzy spells and dreadful headaches and a fiery flash passed before my eyes. Had a heavy weight been resting on my head, the pain could not have been more distressing. The least noise startled me, I was so nervous. I couldn't control the kidney secretions and the pain in passage was awful. "It began to look as though my case was beyond the reach of medicine until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. The first box benefited me and four boxes cured all the troubles. I have had no further cause for complaint." "Sworn to before me, Thos. H. Walters, Notary Public. Get Doan's at Any Store, 60c a Box. ## "FIDDLE-FIT"

Keep Liver and Bowels Clean and Active with "Cascarets"

Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, sour, gassy stomach—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will have you feeling clear, rosy and as fit as a fiddle by morning. They work while you sleep.—Adv.

An Ideal Angler

By E. B. B. REESOR

(Copyright.)

When I stepped onto the John Jo Traddles' veranda that Saturday afternoon I looked around in amazement.

Mrs. John Jo was there; but—where were the merry guests who, I had been assured, would be with her to make a week in a never-before-heard-of summer place somehow endurable?

A feeling of resentment overcame me as I took Mrs. Traddles' proffered hand, and, in the unfeeling way that gay society allows spoiled favorites to speak their inmost minds, I responded to her cordial greeting:

"Has no one else come? Whatever have you asked me for?"

This was not of the manner in which I had been brought up, but practice makes perfect, and after two years of constant study I found that I could be as insolently rude in a gushing way as any of the fashionables who for some freak had taken me up and treated me as one of themselves.

"We have one charming guest, Trixie, dear," Mrs. John Jo assured me. "He is out with John Jo looking over the fishing prospects."

And then, as she led me to a lovely suite of rooms: "I hope you will not be dreadfully disappointed; but, for reasons, no one else came."

"Whom did you ask?" I questioned as I released my hatpins.

"Let me see. There were the Go-lightlys—they were five deep in acceptance for this week, and when lots were drawn they fell to someone else."

"Gone to the Parrots," I said—really that glass was a delight; I was prouder round to get a better glimpse of myself—"Glad I did not go. And who else?"

"Freddy Pun. He had some moonlight entanglements. Made more proposals than he intended—so he confided to John Jo."

"Yes," I said knowingly—I didn't believe I would have to touch my hair—"Had to go to the mountains to get his brain clear. I was the one in the canoe. He does it very nicely, though."

"And then there were the Will Wisps—Monty Bach and that little girl who plays his accompaniments; and—let me see—but I'll show you the list. There come John Jo and Mr. Godwin. I must go."

"Godwin!" I exclaimed, arresting her flight. "What Godwin?"

"Geoffrey Godwin," she answered, in a shamefaced sort of way. "Really I could not help it. He has simply fascinated John Jo, who said he needed a holiday and must come when the fish were biting. Do be nice to him. Trixie Troutout, for, to tell you the truth, he is an ideal man."

She brought out the "man" just as if it were all in capitals, and he were something very great and big.

"Of all people to ask the up-to-date Trixie to meet," I muttered to myself. "The Beatrice of early years might have had something in common, but now—"

However, it was too late; and one of the Traddles' contracted for maids, busying herself about trunks, claimed my attention for dress consideration. Dinner passed off pleasantly enough. John Jo Traddles can adapt himself to individuals and circumstances in a discriminating way, and as for his wife, she is a past mistress in bringing diametrically opposites together.

The Rev. Geoffrey Godwin had heard of me, so he was pleased to inform me directly grace was spoken. I did not tell him that I heard of him often and often—I rather liked his voice.

Once it was that old cook of grandmother's told about jelly and things I had conveyed surreptitiously to her—one must be decent to people who have been kind to them—I don't care what anyone says to the contrary.

And then that silly, little, fussy miff of a seamstress went and told him of the night I helped her with the gown that "had to be finished for Sunday."

But it is always the way. One's sins against really good society invariably hunt you up and expose you before other people's hired help. I turned it off as best I could; told the reverend that I had understood the congressional was sacred, and made other cutting remarks in the frivolous manner which I had acquired, and resented Mrs. John Jo's "You dear old Beatrice of a real woman!"

Well, I was in for it. Not a frolicsome footstep sounded upon the veranda that night; nor did a motor even hesitate near by. Truly I was entangled, but I made up my mind I would never be caught in that way again.

Sunday was desperate. Poured with rain—blew furies. I thought of a long, tiresome day in the house—not a card, no billiards; neither Fredries nor rag-times. Well, there are three hundred and some odd days to a year, and it is not absolutely necessary to be flung upon every one of them. At breakfast—fancy me down at a nine o'clock Sunday breakfast—Mr. Traddles said right out before the reverend: "Mr. Godwin is going to take the service at St. Salms. The auto will be waiting for us at the door at precisely ten-thirty."

It was like a sentence from childhood. In prompt obedience I went and changed my dress.

A lot of people, all together, with their minds on hymns and prayer books, does bring out something comfortable in you; and rather after the midday dinner, as a natural result, the Traddles hunted out sacred music, and we sang and sang and sang, then read and discussed improvements in time-servers and sang again.

Some way I felt really good and pleasant and loving all round—kind of in short frocks and hair ribbons. But as John Jo, with a distinct stoop of piety between his shoulders, led the reverend toward the library to look up the heathen in books my fingers strayed irresponsibly to dancing jig notes that could not fail to get into his toes and shake the Sunday humps out before he got there.

In this mood of good will toward everybody I thought of letters I owed to people who really deserved them, and made myself comfortable in kimono and unbound hair before seating myself at the desk that my room boasted.

Then that wretched cat of the Traddles began.

I felt sure it was shut outside a window somewhere, and, going through the main hall, I floundered down a darksome, alley-like place, hunting for the thing. The sound seemed close beside me and as I opened a door out scudded the cat.

What insane notion made me step into the room I don't know, but no sooner had I passed the threshold than a wind from somewhere banged the door behind me. When I turned to find it was gone. I ran my hand along the wall to find the light button, but that was lost too.

I shouted and banged and reshouted, but no one appeared. So I closed the window and tried to make a bee line for the door.

With an "Allah be praised!" I turned the handle and walked boldly forth. I caught hold of something—portieres, I supposed, but they were queer of shape and seemed to be hung on wires. Clothes, by all that was unpleasant, and—men's clothes at that. They seemed to stretch out and clutch at me.

Hastily I began again to hunt for the right door. I found a handle, but it belonged to a bureau. Then I knocked against something furry—some of the Traddles' bugs and caterpillars, I knew (they have a mania for horrors); and I shrieked as they fell about me, and imagined them crawling round from the upset box. More things tumbled over; more crawly things crept after me.

In agony I reached high up out of their way, and something bit my arm. I yelled and yelled, and the thing bit harder the more I tried to get away, and then came bouncing down upon me. I could feel the blood trickling down my arm; but, not satisfied, it gripped and dragged at me, then fell to the floor with a thud and wriggled around my feet.

I cried again in terror and gingerly put down my hand to push it away, but it would not budge and my arm was tearing. I knocked against something—a bed, and sank convulsed beside it. My last hour had come, and, with fervency I began to say my prayers; and, in their midst, I gained strength to try and rid myself of the awful something. It was hard and strong; that reassured me. I touched my arm. Yes, it was a hook, caught deep in the flesh. I had knocked a fishing contrivance down bodily and it was having its revenge.

I could not get it out, so began with the litany, went on and on as far as "love, honor and obey;" and there I halted, could get no further, and kept muttering the words to myself that I had vowed would never pass my lips.

Then I heard a sound—someone was coming. I tried to shout, but it was of no use. "Love, honor and obey" was all I could cry out.

The door was pushed noisily open—far away from any direction I had even thought of, and a person almost danced into the room to the tune of that dancing-jig, stumbled over the fishline and said words inappropriate to the day.

The jerk hurt excruciatingly, but I began to laugh. I laughed and laughed, and could not stop. Then, without the slightest warning, it turned into a howl of a sob, and down came the deluge—great, big, uncontrollable sobs that shook me and shook the room, and made the whole earth convulse.

Light was turned on, and there was the reverend leaning over me, patting my head with "Poor little girlie!" sayings while he disengaged the hook.

Somehow I was unbound and led away.

The aftermath of the sickening thumpings of a two-days' headache is the nearest to heaven that we mortals get.

I lay quietly in a hammock on the upstairs piazza—no one near me—with the loveliest, the kindest, the most glorious thoughts chasing each other in a delicious abandon through my brain, and twinkling with good will and blessings about my eyes and mouth—when along came the reverend and caught them.

I was so peacefully happy in his arms (he had appropriated me also), and I drank in the loveliness of his words and the comfort of his soothing. I never knew just what happened; whether we were married before tea was served or whether it took place the following week.

One thing is certain—Geoffrey Godwin, my Geoffrey Godwin—the idealist man in the world, who lets me be as silly as I like with soup and sewing—says that his wedding gift to me is the pretty place he has bought down near the Traddles', where the fishing is so good that a line will go off on its own hook and catch—

But—it will not do to repeat all that the reverend says.

IMAGINATION

By ALICE KNIGHT.

Ned Barnes and his classmates were holding an indignation meeting, at which Ned seemed to have by far the greatest grievance. They had just left their English classroom where the professor had started them by announcing the fact that they must write a short story for the next day. "He has no right to do it," said Ned. "This is a course in critical writing and not narration."

"You're right, old chap," said his friend Dick, "and it sure is harder to write a love story than to toss off a criticism, but I suppose we'll have to do it."

"Thank goodness, he didn't specify it had to be a love story."

"No, but that's about the easiest, unless you write a thrilling adventure story."

"Well, it's all right to write about adventures if you ever had any, but I'm not going to write a lot of ridiculous lies. I couldn't do it anyway, I tell you. Everybody always said I had no more imagination than a cat."

The next morning in the English class, instead of seeing a frowning and gloomy Ned Barnes, his friends saw a beaming countenance which still remained beaming when the professor said "We will begin by reading Barnes' story. And to an eagerly interested audience he read the following:

"The train from New Hampshire has just drawn into Boston as it has a thousand times before. But today it is all different for there is one little passenger who has never seen Boston, or indeed any other city. Her expression of eager curiosity and childish delight attracts us at once. To look at her sweet and innocent face, one would never suspect that she was deceiving her poor old aunt in the belief that she was spending the day with a friend in the next town in order that she might slip away to the magic city of Boston for a few hours."

Just a few short hours, that was the only cloud on her horizon; just a few short hours, but she dare not stay longer. But perhaps that would be long enough, and she clutched her little hand still more closely over something that she had held in the palm of her hand ever since she left home. We would love to see what it is, but it is evidently very precious, for she is not willing to let go for a minute. We will follow her through the station and listen to her timid request for information. The mysteries of the elevated and subway seeming to be unfathomable, she decides to walk, and 15 minutes later she is standing before a millinery window, wide-eyed and breathless. Surely she must be dreaming. Such wonderful creations never existed outside of Fairyland. One in particular took her fancy. It was large and droopy and fluffy, with the dearest little forget-me-nots. Did I tell you her eyes were as blue as the heavens above and her cheeks as pink as the roses in an old New England garden. Surely it would be becoming."

With a little flutter of her heart and a tighter clasp of her little hand on her imprisoned secret, she entered the shop. If Boston was new to her, certainly she was new to Boston. Her fresh beauty and simplicity aroused the faded interests of even the shop girls and they vied with each other in waiting on her. First she tried on the forget-me-not hat in the window. It was all that her heart craved for, but true to the eternal feminine, she must try on every other hat she saw—just to make sure. Finally, after gloating over all the wonders she decided on her first choice. When it was presented to her in a box so big she could scarcely carry it, she thanked the clerk for her kindness and started to go away.

"Wait a minute, my dear. You have not paid for it yet."

"Paid for it! Oh, I thought—"

A look of embarrassment and then a deep flush spread over her face. "Oh, I must be in the wrong store."

Slowly, almost regretfully, she opened her hand and gave the clerk the crumpled paper she had carried for hours in her hand. "Will you tell me where that store is, please?"

The clerk, at first amused, and just as quickly ashamed of her amusement, read their own last Sunday's advertisement.

HATS GIVEN AWAY. Bewilderingly beautiful. Charmingly simple. Daringly dashing. Delightfully demure. All kinds to suit all tastes.

In a daze the girl listened to the clerk's gentle and sympathetic explanation of the wicked city's exaggerations, but it is doubtful if she understood anything except that she had lost her hat. Completely disillusioned, she left the shop. Two big tears gathered in her eyes and blurred everything. She did not even see the approaching—

Just as the story is reaching the interesting part, the professor is called away for a few minutes. A storm of exclamations greet Ned, such as "Oh, no. You wouldn't write a love story."

"Well, my description didn't do her justice, and neither does this." And he drew a snapshot shyly from his pocket, "but you'll all have a chance to judge for yourself, for if old Aunt Mable or Henshah, or whatever her name is, will give her consent, she will be at our dance next week." ### The Brainy Bee.

The following incident testifies to the remarkable sagacity and efficiency of bees. A hive was being "spied upon" by a wasp. When wasps ascertain a hive is worth attacking they often succeed in ousting the bees. Every time the wasp approached the small entrance hole a bee came out. An hour later the wasp was dead.

Crooked Golf.

Suzanne Lenglen, the world's tennis champion, was talking to a group of American correspondents at Wimbledon.

"I don't care for golf," she said. "I think tennis is much nicer. I think golf is queer."

"How queer?" said a golfer. "It lets you cheat so easily if you're inclined that way. My father played golf one day at Nice with a German. As he holed out on the first green the German said to him:

"How many strokes did you do the hole in?"

"Seven," said father.

"It's my hole, then," said the German. "I did it in five."

"Father didn't say anything, but when the German asked him at the second green how many strokes he had taken he laughed.

"No, you don't, Herr Sauerkraut," he said. "This time it's my turn to ask first."

Try This Now.

"Time was, before the experts came along and, in vulgar business parlance, 'sold efficiency' to the telephone companies when the telephone was a real convenience." John Armstrong relates in Everybody's: "The historic instance of the lady who rang up central and said, 'I am just stepping over to Mrs. Brewster's for a few minutes to get her doughnut recipe—she's Main 227—and I'll leave the receiver off so you can hear if the baby cries and let me know.' In my home town we used to ask central where the fire was, and who was dead, and did she think there was any mail for us."

ARE CARRYING IT TOO FAR

Bathing Costume for Tennis is the Abbreviating of an Abbreviation.

This is the day of brevity. The names of states and cities are abbreviated, Christian appellations are cut short and initials substituted. The grocer abbreviates "potatoes" to "spuds" and condenses "crackers" to "crax." The butcher writes "pork chops," and the chemist shortens "water" to "H<sub>2</sub>O." The printer, referring to "a mass of balled-up type," cusses and calls it "pl." Likewise, the sport writers characterize the "knock out" as "KO." The doctor indicates "sod-ac" when he wants "sodium cacodylate."

But abbreviations are not confined to words. The Yanks abbreviated the war. The rising cost of living has abbreviated the purchasing power of a dollar. The airplane has abbreviated space, and electricity has abbreviated time itself. The laundry often abbreviates the size of one's new shirt. Fashion frequently abbreviates costumes.

There is, however, such a thing as abbreviating too much. For in France, a bathing suit is considered sufficient raiment for one who is in the swimming pool, but it is highly objectionable elsewhere. Tennis players clad in bathing suits are carrying the abbreviation habit too far.

They are abbreviating abbreviation!

Teddy Told Him.

When Theodore Roosevelt was president a man visited him who had a request to make. In his arms he carried a bundle of letters of introduction. He stated his request and closed his argument with these words:

"Mr. President, I am sure that if you do this for me you will please the people of my state. In fact, I could have brought with me a thousand letters more asking you to do it."

"Oh, pshaw," was Roosevelt's blunt reply. "I could get a thousand people in your state to sign a petition to have you hanged."

PHYSICALLY FIT AT ANY AGE

It isn't age, it's careless living that puts men "down and out." Keep your internal organs in good condition and you will always be physically fit.

The kidneys are the most over-worked organs in the human body. When they break down under the strain and the deadly uric acid accumulates and crystallizes look out! These sharp crystals tear and scratch the delicate urinary channels causing excruciating pain and set up irritations which may cause premature degeneration and often do turn into deadly Bright's Disease.

One of the first warnings of sluggish kidney action is pain or stiffness in the small of the back, loss of appetite, indigestion or rheumatism. Do not wait until the danger is upon you. ## REVIVE GENTLE ART OF PEDESTRIANISM

Sport Has Basked in Limelight at Various Times.

Fifty Years Ago Professional Walkers Were as Celebrated as Jack Dempsey and Ty Cobb Are Today—Bicycle Killed Game.

A couple of million young men of America have in the past two years had considerable exercise in "hoofing it." It wasn't voluntary hoofing, either, but the army is the army, and when you enter it you are sometimes required to make long marches. All of which leads to the thought that the gentle art of pedestrianism is about due for a great revival.

There was an "almost" revival of walking a few years ago when Edward Payson Weston, the veteran pedestrian, pulled off his celebrated transcontinental walking stunt, but it sort of fizzled.

It is forty-two years since London witnessed the conclusion of one of the most famous international walking matches, such as were held in the seventies and early eighties. William Holmes, one of the greatest pedestrians of the day, was England's choice in the memorable contest, while Dan O'Leary represented Ireland and America. Dan had taken part in a number of walking matches on this side of the Atlantic, and there was great disappointment over here when the news came that he had been vanquished by the Britisher in the 300-mile contest. O'Leary is now 76 years old and has walked over 150,000 miles.

In the seventies the professional walkers were as celebrated as Jess Willard (?) and Ty Cobb are today. They rolled in money and basked in the limelight of popular adulation. Many of the records set up in those days in England and America have never been surpassed, and, unless professional walking comes into vogue again, probably never will be.

It was the bicycle which killed pedestrianism. When the "safety" was invented it not only became a substitute for shank's mares, but cycling became the most popular sport in the world. Walking as a sport died a sudden death, but as long as humans have legs there is always the hope that pedestrianism will again come to the fore, to the great benefit of the human race.

RACE TRACK AT LONG BEACH

New Course Fostered by Senator Reynolds of New York—Will Be Ready in 1921.

A new race track may be constructed at Long Beach, L. I. The enterprise is being fostered by Senator Reynolds of New York, who has a number of wealthy men associated with him. It will probably be ready for racing in 1921 and will give New York enthusiasts a racing season from April 15 to November 15.

COLLEGE ATHLETICS HIT

Ithaca high cost of living is expected to attack college sports next season. In recently assuming his new duties as graduate manager of athletics at Cornell university, Romeyn Berry of New York predicted an increase over pre-war seasons of 50 per cent in maintaining crew and teams alone, and asserted his first task would be to put Cornell athletics on a sound financial basis.

NEW DEFINITION OF WILDE

Pedlar Palmer's Description of Flyweight Champion Going the Rounds in England.

Over in England a new description of Jimmy Wilde, the wonderfully clever er flyweight champion, is going the rounds of the newspapers.

It seems that Pedlar Palmer, himself a battler of no meager science, was met by a boxing writer after an exhibition bout between Wilde and another London favorite.

"Pedlar, what do you think of Wilde?" asked the writer.

"A bloomin' ghost with a 'ammer in 'is 'and," was Palmer's prompt response.

INTEREST IN TRAPSHOOTING

Many New Clubs Have Been Formed and Old Ones Revived—Country Clubs Most Active.

That the war put renewed interest in trapshooting is proven by the fact that 221 new trapshooting clubs were formed the first six months of the year and that 242 clubs that were inactive for a long time were revived. One trapshooting league was formed, also. It is at the country clubs that the greatest interest is being shown in clay target shooting.

VICTORIES FOR VESPER CLUB

Since Its Organization in 1865 Oarsmen Have Won 304 Events in This Country.

Oarsmen of the Vesper Boat club, Philadelphia, won twenty-four races, including three national titles in five regattas this season. Since the club was organized in 1865 its members have won 304 victories in this country, Canada and France in all styles of rowing.

Cut the Coal Bill

Coal will probably be high and scarce this winter. So during the fall, before heavy winter sets in, use a Perfection Oil Heater instead of the furnace.

The Perfection is as portable as a lamp. It creates the heat right on the spot—at the very place it's needed. It chases chills and warms cold corners.

No soot, ashes or dust-pans with the Perfection Heater. Convenient, safe, odorless, economical—burns 16 hours on a gallon of kerosene. Easily filled and re-wicked. 3,000,000 now in use.

Use SOCONY kerosene for best results

HAS BUST OF HERODOTUS

Antique in Metropolitan Museum of Art Identified as Portrait of Father of History.

Dr. Robinson, director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, in New York, has identified an antique marble bust, which has been in the museum's store-room for 20 or 30 years, as being a portrait of Herodotus, "the father of history." The marble, which has lain in dust all these years, will now assume an important place of honor in the institution.

There are but five known portraits of Herodotus. The New York portrait-bust was originally found at Benha, in Lower Egypt, and passed into the possession of Emil Brugsch Bey, from whom it was acquired and presented to the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The recognition was based on the resemblance of the known portraits and the finding of the learned man's name inscribed upon it. As a work of art it was not very highly regarded, but as the sixth known portrait of Herodotus it assumes new dignity. It is also said to be one of the best portraits extant.

Pay of Jap Soldiers.

In the opinion of the Japs, the pay of Japanese soldiers is too small. At present it is 1.50 yen (78 cents) a month for first and second-class privates, and 1.95 (98 cents) for corporals. Even if the pay be increased 50 per cent, says the editor, it will not suffice for the needs of the soldiers. At present they have to get money from home to make up the shortage, which is not right. The total pay of the soldiers amounts to $2,150,000. If it is trebled, the government will need only $4,300,000 additional.

What She Wanted.

"I want a pair of the best gloves you have," said Mrs. Neurich at the glove counter.

"Yes, ma'am," replied the polite salesman. "How long do you want them?"

"Don't get insultin', young man! I want to buy 'em, not hire 'em."

Life Vs. Existence.

"Where do you live now, Joe?" "No place; still boarding at the same house."

Evening the Score.

"When you are presented to the king don't forget to make your obeisance." "I'll remember that," said the American captain of industry, "but after we get a little better acquainted I'm going to try to get back my self-respect by slapping him on the shoulder."

HOW THE SQUIRREL HELPS

Uncle Sam Needs Seeds of Douglas Fir and Knows Where to Find Them.

Tree seed can't be bought in large quantities in the market. To restock the huge forests which are demolished every year, Uncle Sam needs the seeds of the Douglas fir, western yellow pine, Engelmann spruce, lodge pole pine, not by the pound, but literally by the ton.

The government needs men, from two to six weeks every fall, to gather seed. When the call goes out, lumberjacks, college men, hoboes and former convicts drift into the camps and work side by side, gathering huge stores of the precious seeds. Through experience they have found that their richest sources are the cunningly hidden squirrel hoards. The squirrel is cunning; he always picks the very best of cones for his winter store.—The Nation's Business.

Getting Bail for Moses.

It was at the Greek theater, "Miriam, sister of Moses," alias Ruth St. Denis, was dancing the Israelites from the Red sea to the wilderness. At left center of the stage stood two policemen listening. The actors were discussing the merits and demerits of one god, Baal, who appeared to have a big influence on the play.

"What are they doing now?" asked one cop of the other.

"Well," replied the second, "it's kinda mixed up, but the way I make it the guy on the end with whiskers is trying to get bail for Moses."

If people who are bilious are treated according to local symptoms they seldom get very much better. Whatever relief is obtained is usually temporary. Trace biliousness to its source and remove the cause and the chances are that the patient will remain strong and healthy.

Doctors say that more than 70 non-organic diseases can be traced to an Acid-Stomach. Biliousness is one of them. Indigestion, heartburn, belching, sour stomach, bloating and gas are other signs of acid-stomach. EATONIC, the marvelous modern stomach remedy, brings quick relief from these stomach miseries which lead to a long train of ailments that make life miserable if not corrected.

EATONIC literally absorbs and carries away the excess acid. Makes the stomach strong, cool and comfortable. Helps digestion; improves the appetite and you then get full strength from your food. ## RED CROSS RESOLUTIONS

Red Cross members were much pleased that the society was remembered by the boys of the American Legion at their State convention at Worcester. The following resolution was adopted:

"The Red Cross by its activities during the war in behalf of the service men has endeared itself to the American public and is now helping to solve many problems in which the American Legion has a vital interest.

"We therefore resolve that the Massachusetts Branch of the American Legion in convention assembled express its deep interest in and pledges its support to the third Red Cross rollcall."

MAKES HIM HAPPY.

J. H. Larimore, a former major of a Western city writes:

I read the daily paper—read the state and foreign news, of the doings here and yonder, and of leading statesman's views. Read of wreck and fire and murder, baseball, politics and crime, marriages and births and dyings, all the happenings of time. Read the whole edition over from the first page to the last, news and comments, facts and fancies, things to come,
things of the past. Then aside I thrust that paper, for it's no more good to me; half the things that I've read over soon my memory will flee.

Then I get the home town weekly, and with keen and eager eye, read the news it has to tell me, news that's never dull or dry. For the news that's in that paper tells of folks I know and love, folks who are both friends and neighbors, folks whose goodness I can prove. Tells of school and church and college, lodge, society and store, town improvements, council's doings,
squibs and personals galore.

Having read this good town paper,
read and swelled myself with pride,
I crank up my ancient flivver and through the town and country ride.
Far away sometimes it takes me, into other towns and states, where I may take notes and figures and make civic estimates. Then returning to my rooftop, call my neighbors to my side and declare, "So help me Hannah, here I ever will abide."

And with each returning Friday, eagerly I watch and wait, for the postman who is bringing the old weekly to my gate. Oh, I must have the great dailies, magazines and trade reviews, but the thing that makes me happy is the home town weekly news.

THE CHEERFUL CHERUB

When finally my life
is done
And all my little troubles cease
I hope my friends can

"STRAIGHT-FROM- THE-SHOULDER RELIGION"

Enjoyed by Doughboys Says
Returned Pastor

Boston—Proof conclusive that the doughboy thoroughly enjoys straight-from-the-shoulder religion was the trend of a statement just made by Dr.
Albert S. Hawkes, pastor of the Worcester, Mass., Congregational church, just returned from France.

Dr. Hawkes' assertion is based on the fact that the nine Y. M. C. A. huts in Camp Pontanzen, Brest, each with a capacity ranging from 1,200 to 2,000, are crowded to the doors on Sundays
during the religious services.

"I have seen these buildings so packed," he said, "that men sat in the rafters, windows—any place they could secure standing or seating room. In fact they even crowded on the platforms."

Dr. Hawkes was director of all musical programs connected with religious services conducted by the Y. M. C. A. at the big camp. When he began the work of organization there were only two pianists and song leader. In two months he had increased this staff to thirty accomplished musicians, soloists and song leaders, this number increasing with the demand.

In the huge auditorium with a seating capacity alone of three thousand, he declared that he has seen men, who remained after the mass-singing to hear the lecture, leave when the "movies" began. The singing was invariably met with unbounded enthusiasm.

"It was wonderful! An inspiration!
Imagine, if you can, more than three thousand full-toned, healthy, male voices ringing with the notes of a famous anthem. They sang like they fought—with every ounce of energy their American souls possessed.

"Popular songs started the program, the words flashed on the screen. The singing service ended with hymns.

"The finest speakers obtainable in France were next introduced. After a short, snappy talk soldiers were given opportunity to consult them. Hundreds of men have availed themselves of this opportunity—the last one afforded while in military service."

Speaking of the distribution of religious literature by the "Y," Dr.
Hawkes said:

"Pretty good evidence that they were wanted and appreciated was demonstrated by the fact that in barracks and tents, religious publications were always found neatly arranged with other soldier effects. They were never thrown around or destroyed as were newspapers, booklets, etc., after they had been read."

He believes that this type of welfare work, about which little is known or understood, is the most remarkable and thorough of any of the multiform ways in which the "Y" served the
A. E. F. The soldier loves to sing when proper facilities and good leaders are afforded, and he appreciates good speakers on religious topics.

"The significance of our work was two fold," explained the pastor.
"First, it brought the Christian gospel before the soldier in a practical, heman fashion. Secondly it showed him at the close of his military career, that Y. M. C. A. stood for something else besides canteens, recreational and the various other activities to which he was accustomed at the front."

FIVE MILLION BOOKS DIS- TRIBUTED BY "Y" DUR- ING WAR.

While Free Magazines Averaged 300,000 Monthly.

Paris—(By Mail)—If it is true that armies travel on their stomachs, then the American Expeditionary Forces included literature in their diets. The Y. M. C. A. distributed more than 5, 000,000 bound volumes throughout the American units abroad during the months of the war. For a number of months more than 300,000 magazines were distributed monthly without cost to the soldier, but at an expense of $30,000 per month.

More than 28,000,000 copies were distributed during the period of the war at a monthly cost of $85,000. Ninety per cent of these were given away.
More than 1,000,000 volumes of text books were printed or bought by the association for educational work, all of them eventually being taken over by the Army along the Y. M. C. A. educational work. A million and a half copies of "Popular Songs of the A. E. F." a 96 page song book, were printed by the "Y" and distributed free of charge to the doughboys, while 633,000 other volumes of musical works and sheet works were given away. There was also free distribution of more than 2,000,000 pieces of religious literature.

Before the American Library Association arrived in France to carry on its enormous work the task of furnishing all literature fell upon the "Y," and at times because of difficulties attendant on shipping the association was forced to advertise in Paris papers for gifts of reading matter printed in English in order to be able to carry on its work.

Over 3200 On Voting Lists

The Board of Registrars have had an unusually busy season this year registering the new voters, having added 403 names this fall. All parts of the town shared in the increase. Registration is now closed.

Gain in Precinct One, 85; in Precinct Two, 64; in Precinct Three, 55; in Precinct Four, 46; in Precinct Five, 82; in Precinct Six, 71.

In the summary below the number of names on the list last November are compared with the number this November, and also with the number of polls assessed this year:

	Voters	Voters	Polls
	1918	1919	1919
Precinct 1	472	525	767
Precinct 2	492	535	706
Precinct 3	633	658	881
Precinct 4	398	413	580
Precinct 5	598	607	803
Precinct 6	508	539	763
	3101	3278	4500

Weymouth has this year 3278 names on its voting lists, a net gain of 177 for the year. The number of assessed polls was 4500.

Next Tuesday the polls will open at 5.45 A. M., and close at 1 P. M. There are five candidates for all the State offices and contests for senator and representative. Three questions are to be voted upon.

WOOTEN-BRASSILL

A very pretty romance is revealed by the marriage on Thursday, Oct. 30, of Miss Clara Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Brassill, of 306 Middle street, East Weymouth, and Alex Wooten, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Wooten, of Franklin, N. C.

The young couple became acquainted when the groom was stationed at the United States Marine barracks at West Hingham. He has recently been discharged from the service, and is now employed at the Fore River Shipbuilding plant.

The bride was graduated from Weymouth High School in June 1917, and is employed as a stenographer at the factory of Edwin Clapp & Son.

The bride was becomingly attired in an olive taupe travelling suit, and wore a pink coral velvet hat, trimmed with pink ostrich feathers.

The bride was attended by Miss Annie M. Horace of South Weymouth, a classmate of the bride. The best man was George E. Curtin of East Weymouth, also classmate of the bride.

AUXILIARY FAIR

A three day's fair of the S. of V. Auxiliary was held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon and evening at Grand Army hall.

Monday evenings entertainment included readings by Miss Hazel Hollis; impersonations by Mrs. Ruth McCurdy; vocal solos by Milton Richmond; musical numbers by Miss Lena Thomas, violin; Miss Florence Pratt, cornet; Mrs. Mary Cushing, piano; and Mrs. Charles Holton, drums.

Dancing was the attraction Tuesday evening.

The several sales tables were presided over as follows:

Fancy, Mrs. Bertha Newcomb, Mrs. Carrie Pratt, Miss Martha Thayer and Mrs. Nettie Stever.

Apron, Mrs. Agnes Abbott, Mrs. Annie Batchelder and Mrs. Hattie Farrar.

Food, Mrs. Mary R. Flint and Mrs. Catherine Peers.

Candy, Mrs. Mary Cain and Miss Emma Hawes.

Parcel post, Mrs. Marion Lunt, Mrs. Lucy Parker and Miss Ruth Lunt.

D. of V., Mrs. Clara Maynard, Mrs. Jennie Morton, Mrs. Anna Williams and Mrs. Christine Flynn.

W. R. C., Mrs. Harriet Litchfield, Mrs. Carrie Loring, Mrs. Estelle Richards and Mrs. Isabella Woolaver.

S. of V., Alfred Hastings, George Lunt and Elmer Lunt.

Supper, Mrs. Hannah Abbott, Mrs. Margaret Higgins and Mrs. Nellie Writtington.

Mrs. Margaret Higgins, president of the auxiliary, and Mrs. Hannah Abbott, chairman of the general committee, have charge of arrangements.

Fifty Ex-Service Men at East Weymouth Reception

On Monday evening, the East Weymouth Special Aid Society gave a supper for service men who returned too late for the first "party". It was hoped all East Weymouth boys would be home for this affair but one boy, Phillip Miller of the U. S. S. Bridgeport, is still across, and not expected home before Christmas, and of course that was a long time for the others to wait. This supper, which was planned to be a duplicate of the first, was served in the Masonic hall, Mess call was sounded by a comrade, and when all were standing in their places the Star Spangled Banner was sung by Miss Bates accompanied by Mrs. Garey. There were also present, members of the Exemption Board headed by Dr. Fraser; the local newspapermen; and Representative Burgess Spiney, Dr. Stetson, and Mr. Fern who have given the Society so many lifts over the hard places.

Then there were officers of the Society and the women who had charge of some parts of the supper. During supper the boys were entertained by the Legion Orchestra and with songs. The first by Ralph Young accompanied by Mrs. Chubbuck, then a song by Mrs. Bertha Hanson Gibson accompanied by Mrs. Merchant, and last, Miss Grace Donovan for whom Miss Haviland played the accompaniment. Although the boys were busy with the supper they had time to enjoy all the music and show their appreciation.

After supper came the entertainment and dance. To this all the East Weymouth boys were invited, those who went from here and those who have come here to live since the "fuss was over". At the entertainment more songs were given by those who sang at supper time and by Clifton Harlow. That these were good songs well sung and thoroughly enjoyed was proved by the hearty applause.

As all these singers and those who accompanied them gave their services freely to entertain the boys the Society feels it owes them many thanks for their kindnesses. The boys who danced, and their partners had plenty of lively music by the Legion orchestra which every one seemed to enjoy including the players. This is a new organization of players and evidently new methods are being introduced as the violinist at times was stationed on top of the piano while the cornetist was cheerfully sounding away on the "side lines". The hall seemed a cheerful place with its decorations of the national colors, the Red Cross flag, and the Special Aid banner together with the red berries of Autumn.

The light hearted dancers, the merry music, and delightful songs all sounded the sweet refrain of "Home again, home again from a foreign shore". The war is over and so are the parties but the East Weymouth Special Aid is still in active service and as the chairman said in her few words of welcome to the boys "the Society will help our boys as long as its strength and treasury hold out".

The committee included Mrs. George W. Perry, Mrs. Cornelius J. Lynch, Mrs. Fred V. Garey, Mrs. Arthur A. Corthell, Mrs. Albert Humphrey, Mrs. Edward P. Hunt, Mrs. Fred L. Alden, Mrs. J. Herbert Libby, Mrs. Egbert V. Warren, Mrs. John C. Fraser, Mrs. Charles D. Gibson, Mrs. Burgess Spiney, Mrs. Henry Tilden, Mrs. Frank Sylvester, Mrs. Harry Stetson, Mrs. Margaret Coughlan, Mrs. J. D. Bosworth, Miss Catherine Fraser and Miss Marguerite Connors.

BOSTON LATIN WINS

Weymouth High was unable to score Saturday in its match with Boston Latin, although in the fourth period it did have the ball on the visitors' 10 yard line. A touch down for Boston Latin was made by Johnstone, the score resulting 6-0 in favor of the visitors.

CROWDED OUT

Considerable news is unavoidably crowded out this week, some of which may appear next week.

—Thanksgiving only two weeks from next Thursday. And Gov. Coolidge has designated Tuesday, Nov. 11, as a legal holiday—Armistice Day.

URGED TO BUILD HOMES NOW

Labor Department Prompts Those Intending Construction to Begin the Work at Once.

The home builder—he who builds for his immediate use rather than for rental purposes—appears to be getting under way with his building plans. This especially is noted in the central West. The home-building program will be facilitated and augmented if small investment money is made available for building loans. In one or two communities this is being attempted by private organizations, brought together for this sole purpose. In other and more numerous cases the regular banks are giving thought to the problem. The building-and-loan interests already have formulated a plan under which a system of federal home loan banks would enable them to rediscount their first real-estate mortgages and make available for further loans more than $1,000,000,000 of their assets.

While the Department of Labor is endeavoring to co-operate with state and municipal authorities in getting under way road building and public improvements, and with private interests in their more extensive building operations, it is convinced that home building, for the use of the builder rather than for rental, must be looked to as an important factor in providing better employment for labor during the transition from war to peace production, and for the stimulation of business. For this reason the Department of Labor is making a determined drive for a nation-wide "Own your home" campaign.—Chicago Evening Post.

IMPROVE THE SCHOOL YARD

Should Be Second to No Part of the City in Its Appeal to Lovers of Beauty.

The average rural school ground can stand considerable beautifying. Some of these barren spots, where the young in the country learn their three R's, are blossoming like the rose and more will do so as a result of the work done by county home demonstration agents. Spring and fall are the time for setting out shrubbery and trees. Many home economic workers celebrated arbor day this spring. Some of those who didn't have held local celebrations this fall.

In Fairfax county, Virginia, the home demonstration agent and the people of the neighborhood completely transformed last spring the Red Hill school yard. The teachers, with the pupils and patrons, came early on the day appointed, bringing with them a splendid array of trees and shrubs, all given by the patrons. The foundations of the building were massed with hemlock, laurel, holly, and rose bushes. Young trees were planted in strategic positions and lilac bushes were placed in clumps. Around the drain, spice wood bushes were planted. The result was a complete transformation of the formerly bare and ugly yard. At noon a picnic lunch was served.

LOOK TO THE YARD IN FALL

Attention Now Will Be Well Repaid by Its Improved Appearance in the Spring.

The appearance of the home has much to do with its utility as well as its beauty. A home where there are flowers, trees, lawn, etc., seems more comfortable than where these things are absent. Such a home is always more satisfying, and that, of course, is a quality of utility.

Fall is a good time to improve the yard, lawn and general appearance of the home. Late fall is a favorable time to transplant many biennials and perennials. Roses, "the queens of flowers," may be set; other shrubs may be transplanted; violets, bulbs of various kinds, sweet peas, etc., may be started for early spring blossoms.

A little time given to the yard and lawn now will be worth much to the appearance of your home next spring. Look over the yard and see what improvements can be made. Doubtless you will find that much can be done to make your home more attractive.

Fall Garden Preparation.

Land that is to be used for vegetable or flower gardens next spring will be greatly improved by liming it heavily at this season and turning it over with the spade or plow.

Next spring, before planting, manure heavily and turn the soil over again. At that time fine the plowed soil well with a disk harrow. Where the spade is used the pulverizing is done with the spade, working the top soil carefully with a steel rake.

Community Gardens Valuable.

Last year 5,360 war gardens were conducted in Manchester, N. H., as a part of the campaign to raise food for the world. The system of operation was continued this year, and the plots cultivated within the municipal boundaries were known as "Victory Gardens." There is no reason why so good a thing as gardening, in the vacant places of communities, should not become an established custom.

Give the world the once over

LISTEN, fellows, to some straight talk. Many a man when he gets to be 40, misses something. He may have lots of money, and a fine family but—

He never "got out and saw things". After he gets settled down, it's too late.

Every man wants to see the world. No man likes to stand still all his life. The best time to TRAVEL, is when you're young and lively—right NOW!

Right NOW your Uncle Sam is calling, "Shove off!" He wants men for his Navy. He's inviting you! It's the biggest chance you'll ever get to give the world the once over!

The Navy goes all over the world—sails the Seven Seas—squints at the six continents—that's its business. You stand to see more odd sights, wonderful scenery and strange people than you ever dreamed of.

You'll work hard while you work. You'll play hard while you play. You'll earn and learn. You'll get, in addition to "shore leave", a 30-day straight vacation—which is more than the average bank president can count on.

You can join for two years. When you get through you'll be physically and mentally "tuned up" for the rest of your life. You'll be ready through and through for SUCCESS.

There's a Recruiting Station right near you. If you don't know where it is, your Postmaster will be glad to tell you.

GETS $1,000,000 FOR SUFFERINGS

American Actress Kept Prisoner by Egyptian Husband.

WINS THE LOVE OF PRINCE

Ola Humphrey, Auburn-Haired Actress, Becomes Princess Ibrahim Hassan, Escapes From Her Cruel Master and Advises Girls That Royal Marriages Are a Losing Game—When She Rebelled Prince Chastised Her.

The $1,000,000 soon to come to Miss Ola Humphrey of California will go far to assuage the sorrow of the half-year spent behind the lattice of an Egyptian harem as the Princess Ibrahim Hassan.

From Great Britain comes word that a considerable portion of the confiscated property of the prince will go to his erstwhile American bride. Ibrahim Hassan, an Ottoman prince of the blood royal, is first cousin to the former khedive of Egypt, and during the recent upheaval, which cost the khedive his throne, he also lost his property. The suit instituted by Ola Humphrey for a slice of the seized wealth of her discarded but undivorced husband was answered promptly and generously by the British government.

Miss Ola was born at Oakland, Cal., the daughter of Thomas Marshall Humphrey, a prosperous manufacturer of fine furniture.

It was not so long ago that she was a theatrical star. She lent her auburn beauty to "The Prisoner of Zenda," to "The Little Gray Lady" and to "The Fatal Wedding." In those days she was the wife of Edwin Mordant, her leading man, who was one of the stalwarts of the actors in their recent strike. But it was not long before a divorce came and she faced the audience and the world alone.

Wins Love of Prince.

Then she crossed the seas to flaunt her beauty from the English boards. It was in 1910 in "The Man from Mexico" she won the heart of a stout, swarthy gentleman who came night after night to see her play. He was Prince Ibrahim Hassan.

They were wed. She was taken to the seraglio of her royal husband. On the banks of the ancient Nile, under the shadow of the throne of Cleopatra, the occidental bride was forced to live the life of the native woman. Her brilliant hair was hidden—a dark veil draped her and the lattice of the orient was interposed between her and the freedom she craved.

And so came discord. The prince then took his pliant wife to Pagan Paris. Here he endeavored to impose the customs of the East upon his recalcitrant spouse. When she rebelled, he chastised her. He pommelled her soundly. That was enough for the princess Ola. Watching her chance she fled to London and refused to return.

"It became clear to me after we were married," she confided to her friends, "that to my oriental husband I was only a thing apart from the rest of his life—an amusement, perhaps an expensive luxury, to be taken into account when there was nothing more serious on hand. His real interests he never shared with me."

Swears Off for Life.

About marriage in general of the East and West, she had only a word, she said:

"Don't. It is a losing game."

Soon after this, in 1914, the war started and the Ottoman empire lined itself up on the losing side. The khedive then on the throne of Egypt looked to Turkey and Germany instead of the allies. So also did Cousin Ibrahim Hassan. The khedive was promptly relieved of his throne and the prince of his holdings by the British and some one more loyal to the British empire substituted.

So it was that a portion of the money taken was set aside for the mistreated wife in settlement of the suit which she had instituted some time before. The war over and the government free to consider civilian affairs, a golden million of the fortune of the prince is to go to Ola Humphrey.

And she says that marriage with orientals does not pay.

Prizes for Safe Airplanes.

The British government will offer prizes amounting to £64,000 for airplane competition in order to develop safer types of machines. Maj. Gen. J. E. B. Seely of the air ministry announced in the house of commons. The prizes would be distributed among three classes of aircraft—small airplanes, large airplanes, and seaplanes.

Airplane Used as Hearse in Canada.

Airplanes were used as funeral vehicles for the first time when the body of Leonard Allen, an aviator of Toronto, Can., was carried from his home to the cemetery in a Curtiss airplane. The clergyman who officiated at the grave followed in a second plane.

Tired of Jail.

Growing weary of jail, Thomas Martin and Otto Cole, having fashioned a key from a prison spoon, unlocked the jail door at Colusa, Cal., and walked forth. Today they are free men.

The men were charged with stealing an automobile. The spoon was made of pliable material.

Prevalence of Deafness.

The last census showed that there are in the United States 89,287 persons who are totally deaf. Dr. Wendell C. Phillips of New York told the Philadelphia College of Physicians recently that in New York city there are at least 100,000 persons more or less incapacitated as a result of partial deafness, and of these probably 80 per cent are of the working class.

Prices for Canadian Wool.

The average value of unwashed wool a pound in Canada was 62 cents to producers in 1918 and 59 cents in 1917; washed, 80 cents in 1918 and 75 cents in 1917.

To Keep Books Fresh.

To prevent mold on books, place a few drops of lavender and Canadian balsam in a back corner of each shelf. This will not injure the bindings of leather books as sulphur compounds do, but helps to preserve the bindings. The two substances are easily obtained.

To Mend Umbrellas.

Umbrella handles sometimes become loosened from the steel rods. Put some resin in an iron spoon and hold it over the gas or on a hot stove until thoroughly melted; then pour it into the cavity in the handle and put the steel rod into it. Hold it firm until the resin is cold.

Really Important Point.

Roland had found a pencil eraser, and, offering it to his little cousin, he said: "You can have it, Hazel. Do you know how to write?" Then, evidently he happened to think that she would have no use for an eraser unless she made mistakes, for he added: "Do you know how to write wrong?"

SCRAPS OF HUMOR

His Blessing.

A sergeant was so much given to using bad language on the parade ground that some of the men complained and the C. O. interviewed him, and told him not to let it happen again.

The following morning the sergeant was in charge of a very ragged squad, and after keeping silence for a considerable time, he eventually burst out with:

"Bless you, my pretty dears; you know what I mean."—Tit-Bits.

Experienced.

A young Boston artist, looking for a model, found on the common just the specimen of genus hobo required. In making arrangements with him she said: "You know, posing is not particularly easy to one not accustomed to it—how long can you stay in one position without moving?"

"Till the cops get busy, miss," was the tramp's reply.

Conscientious Effort.

"How did you happen to get that association of yours into all this altercation?"

"The officers got together and thought we ought to do something to make the members feel they were getting action of some sort for their dues."

Should Be Rewarded.

"Smith wants a decoration for valor."

"But I thought he never went out to the front."

"No, he didn't; but he says it took no end of courage to turn up at the club every day in uniform."—London Opinion.

BOY AGREED WITH HIS PA.
"You should always take somebody of your size."
"That's right, pa; these little fellows are so short that they can't help hitting below the belt."

Questions.

The world to questions now doth run,
And makes the people fret,
For every time you answer one
You start another set.

Where He Needed It, Too.

Bacon—They say he got a lot of credit for fighting in the war.
Egbert—I've no doubt of it.
"But when he got back home he couldn't find any traces of it at the bank."

INCREASED USE OF TRUCKS AND TRAILERS WILL HELP OUT COST OF TRANSPORTATION

Fresh Country Produce Being Loaded Into Truck for Quick Shipment In to Near-by City.

Our faulty distribution of food-stuffs and other necessities of life is responsible to a considerable degree for high prices to consumers. Official investigations show that it costs as much to deliver farm products from railroad terminals at New York to city consumers as to ship them by rail from points as distant as Buffalo, or to deliver a ton of coal in Chicago as to ship it from the mines in southern Illinois.

High Cost of Hauling.

On the other hand the cost of hauling products from the farm to the shipping points and to take manufactured goods back to the farm is double or triple what it need be. These transportation costs at both ends of the rail haul must be added to the prices charged for farm and factory products and the consumer "pays the freight."

Rail and water haul are the cheapest forms of transportation and there is no prospect of any substantial reduction of freight charges. The only possibility of lowering the cost of transportation materially lies in the haul at either end of the rail and water routes—that is, in haulage by highway. There are tremendous possibilities in savings in this direction. Careful investigation by the department of agriculture last year show that haulage from farms to shipping points costs less than half as much by motor truck as by horse and wagon, even under present conditions of the highways. Thus, the average cost of hauling wheat by wagon was 30 cents a ton for each mile, while the cost with motor trucks was only 15 cents; to haul corn by wagon cost 33 cents per ton-mile as against 15 cents by truck, and to haul cotton by wagon cost 48 cents compared with 18 cents by motor truck.

Trailers Lower Rates.

Even these comparatively low rates for hauling with motor trucks can be cut in half by the general use of trailers, since the hauling capacity of a truck can be doubled or even tripled in many cases by towing one or two loaded trailers behind the truck, using a semi-trailer with the truck.

The manufacturers of cars, trucks and parts now employ more than 1,000,000 men and women. This does not include accessory manufacturers, or the men employed in garages, repair shops and new or used car sales establishments.

If every passenger car now in use in the United States traveled only 3,000 miles a year, a low average, and carried three passengers each mile covered, the total passenger mileage would be approximately 45,000,000.

The wholesale value of approximately 20,000,000 tires to be manufactured this year will probably exceed $800,000,000.

There are 550 manufacturers of finished cars and trucks and about 7,000 concerns manufacturing some parts of a finished car or truck.

Daily Thought.

Gravity is the ballast of the soul, which keeps the mind steady.—Fuller.

REYNOLDS TOBACCO CO., Winston-Salem, N. C.

greatest of the housewives' problems? Why, unexpected company gives me, or used to give me, a fit of nervousness!"

She was a practical looking woman, her face softened by a contented life among young folks. She was one of those fine women, typical of New England, and her thrift and good table had made her the leader of the younger set at the summer colony. "The girls" had fallen into the habit of stopping each morning on her big veranda, on their way to breakfast, and household topics were subjects of discussion.

"You mean that unexpected company no longer disturbs you—with the poor marketing conditions here at the lake? How do you do it?" asked one of the young married women.

"I'll tell it to you in words," laughed "National Biscuit." "I'll give you acquainted good products—Royal Biscuits—do, no before, cream, lords, pretty, noses."

The gale of pleasure blew through the group, and the young women, who had been so nervous, were now so contented.

"On his suggestion," Doone, as you now know, purchased some Premium Soda Crackers which remind one of the famous shortbread of Scotland.

Crackers and Royal Lunch Biscuit. With fear and trembling I placed them before my newly introduced guests in place of bread.

"They were the sensation of the evening and have since been my salvation. Unexpected company no longer worries me and I do not have to work in the kitchen every evening."

"I have come to the conclusion that the National Biscuit Company products have added twenty per cent to the comfort and enjoyment of my summer vacation."

But they are vastly different, having none of the over-richness of the old-fashioned kind. They are mealy and crumbly, and have just the right amount of richness and so can be partaken of freely. In short, they have all the flavor of old-time shortbread without any of its disadvantages.

"Royal Lunch Biscuit," palate charmers' my husband calls them, have just enough sugar in them to give them a pleasant taste.

Food for strength—for young and old—anytime — N. B. C. GRAHAM CRACKERS.

Offer your family or your guests LORNA DOONE Biscuit — the modern shortbread — as a mid-morning lunch, an afternoon snack, or as a substantial part of a late-hour supper. There's a particular charm in their inviting flavor and mealy delicacy. And, while they are super-good they are not super-rich. The name LORNA DOONE is on every biscuit.

Sold by the pound and in the famous In-er-seal Trade Mark package.

Sunday, the Rt. Rev. William Lawrence D. D., Bishop of Massachusetts, will visit Trinity Episcopal Church, Weymouth. The service will be at 4:30 P. M. and the Bishop will preach and confirm a class.

—Michael J. Gagan, a popular young man and familiarly known as "Bob," died at the Norfolk County hospital, Braintree Highlands, on Sunday. He was born in Braintree Nov. 12, 1897, and was a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gagan of 24 Elliot st. Besides his parents he is survived by two brothers, Patrick and Francis Gagan, and three sisters, Misses Katie and Mary Gagan and Mrs. Martin Welch, the latter of Quincy. The funeral took place Wednesday morning from the Church of the Sacred Heart, and was attended by many relatives and friends. Rev. Fr. J. B. Holland celebrated mass. There were many beautiful floral tributes. Interment was at Saint Francis Xavier cemetery. The bearers were Thomas Sweeney, William Webb, Ray Condrick of Weymouth, Richard Gurney of Quincy, Charles Lambert of Wollaston, and Stephen Mills of South Braintree.

—Edward Watts, formerly in business here, was in town Saturday, calling on old friends.

—Mrs. Edwin Senior and daughter Barbara have been in town for a few days visiting friends. They leave today for Wilmington, N. C., when they will make it their home, Mr. Senior having accepted a position in that city.

—Francis Condrick, who has been in the Navy for the past two years, returned home last week, having received his discharge.

THE WHITE CHURCH (Congregational) East Weymouth

Edward Torrey Ford, pastor. The Sunday morning service of worship at 10.30 will take on a special significance. At this time an official presentation will be made concerning the nation-wide "Drive" among Congregationalists, for the "Annuity Fund" of five million dollars. This fund has been authorized and designated by the National Council, our highest denominational authority, as an outstanding feature of next year's "Ter-Centenary Program," commemorating the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth, in 1620.

The main purpose of the fund is to provide annuities for congregational ministers in good standing and of long service-record, who have reached the age of 65 years, or earlier in case of disability. In the event of the minister's premature death, the annuity is to be available for his widow and orphaned children. Printed circulars giving a bare outline of the movement have been distributed throughout the parish.

The address on Sunday morning by a State representative of the fund, will supply added details, and will complete the preliminary program of information. This will be followed during the week by a house-to-house parish visitation, in a canvass for subscriptions to the fund. It is hoped that a large congregation will be present to get in personal touch with "the big thing of the year" in American Congregational Circles.

Church Bible School, at noon; all departments.

Sunday evening service at 7 o'clock, pastor's topic: "People who Care".

Sunday, November 9, American Legion Sunday, with celebration of Holy Communion at the close of the morning service.

Catholic Club

The Weymouth Catholic Club held an open meeting Monday evening, Oct. 27, Mrs. Joseph McDonald, the president, was in charge.

Several Irish ballads were rendered by Miss May Featherstone of Boston.

The speaker of the evening, Mr. William A. O'Brien, a member of the Massachusetts Public Service Commission, discussed in a most comprehensive and thoroughly logical manner some phases of Ireland's claims to an absolutely independent form of government. With facts and figures he proved conclusively first, that the Irish question is not a religious one; second, that in natural resources and productivity Ireland is more than self sustaining.

The next regular meeting of the club will be held November 19 and will be in charge of Mrs. Augustus Conahan.

—The First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Quincy, will be dedicated on Sunday, with services at 10.45 A. M., and 7.45 P. M. The dedication was postponed until the indebtedness on the new edifice was cancelled.

SENATOR McINTOSH Answers Mr. Mansfield's Deliberately False Charges

By submitting the following letter from the President of the Senate:

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts,
Senate chamber, Boston.

October 25, 1919.

Senator David S. McIntosh.

Dear Senator,—It has been brought to my attention that your Democratic opponent, Mr. George E. Mansfield of Rockland, has been making several vicious charges against you both in newspaper advertisements and on the stump.

Upon investigation I find these accusations absolutely without foundation. The principal charge he makes against you is that you were absent on about seventy five roll-calls.

This is quite impossible in the face of the facts, as no member of the senate could be absent so often unless he were away on committee business.

It is well known to any one who is in the least familiar with Legislative affairs, that you were forced to be absent nearly four whole weeks with the committee on counties, of which you were chairman, inspecting the different county institutions in every part of Massachusetts. This work alone required a great personal sacrifice and you are to be commended most highly for the efficient, painstaking manner in which your committee discharged its duties on its tour of inspection.

Of course you were of necessity compelled to miss quite a few roll-calls while attending to committee matters, but those you missed were of no importance, being for the most part roll calls on emergency preambles.

It would be a serious mistake for the voters of your district to even consider taking your opponent seriously, for your fidelity and your conscientious application to your duties deserve their strongest endorsement.

The closing and most important fact is, that you and your committee saved the State thousands of dollars by the inspections made and the results attained more than justify the absences necessary.

Trusting your constituents will wake up to a realization of what real importance your work amounted to and that they will send you back with a tremendous majority, I am, with best wishes,

Sincerely yours,
Edwin T. McKnight
President of the Senate.

VOTERS OF WEYMOUTH

Whose word do you take, Mr. Mansfield's or that of the Honorable President of our State Senate? I leave it to you.

The American Federation of Labor Records show Mr. Mansfield's other charges to be equally false and vicious.

The President of the Senate denies Mr. Mansfield's charges.

The American Federation of Labor denies his other charges.

Evidently his word is no good.

The Senate is no place for falsifiers like Mansfield.

Show him this next Tuesday by voting for Senator McIntosh.

Yours For Clean Politics,

SENATOR DAVID S. McINTOSH

WEYMOUTH

—Mrs. Mary Neal is confined to her home on Sterling street, the result of injuries received when she was knocked down by a playful dog while on a visit to friends in New Bedford. Mrs. Byron Hunt and Mrs. William Bond of Summer street are also confined to their homes the result of falls.

—Mrs. Eliza A. Partridge widow of James Partridge died at her home 198 Broad street, Saturday. She is survived by three sons, Marshall W. and George W. Partridge of this town, Otis Partridge of Brockton and Mrs. Emma Smith of Boston. She was 87 years old, was born in Marshfield, but had resided in this town for many years. The funeral took place Wednesday, interment was at Village cemetery.

HISTORICAL PAPER

"The Old Colony Railroad" was the subject of an interesting historical paper read before the Weymouth Historical Society at the Fogg Public Library on Wednesday evening by Warren Jacobs of Hingham, who for a number of years was ticket agent in the South Station Boston and is now in charge of the distribution of tickets. He has had access to much valuable data, and had with him several scrap books, pictures and other exhibits which were open for inspection. A more extended report next week.

—There will be a supper and entertainment at the Baptist church next Wednesday evening at 6.30.

AMERICAN LEGION.

Weymouth Post 79 held one of the most interesting meetings of the season Wednesday evening in the G. A. R. hall. Commander William A. Connell presided.

The post was most fortunate in having for a speaker, Comrade George E. Wilson, State organizer, Massachusetts Legion. Wilson's talk was of the most interesting nature bringing forth much frequent applause. He spoke very highly of the record made by the Weymouth Post in its recent membership drive; the Post being one of the first to go over-the-top in the State.

Comrade Wilson was given a rising vote of thanks at the conclusion of his address.

DATES IN DELIGHTFUL COMBINATION.

A handful of dates and a bit of bread feeds the Arab who is able to travel over the hot sands of the desert. It is hard for us to look upon dates, figs, raisins and prunes as food. They are, however, most valuable foods, and as sweets are most wholesome for children.

Stuffed dates are so well known that it is unnecessary to speak of them, though a variety of stuffing may be used to vary them. Stuffed with a rich cream cheese and chopped nuts, they make a most dainty finish to a dinner, serving crackers with them and the small cupful of coffee.

Date Cake.—Cream half a cupful of shortening, add three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, one well beaten egg, a cupful of sour milk, in which has been dissolved a teaspoonful of soda. Flavor with nutmeg and add flour enough to roll out in a thin sheet. Divide in two parts. Over one spread a layer of finely chopped dates; lay the other sheet on top and press lightly together; cut with a cookie cutter into cakes. Bake in a hot oven.

Date Whip.—Cook one cupful of chopped stoned dates in one-half cupful of boiling water until smooth. Press through a sieve. Beat the whites of three eggs until stiff, add one-third of a cupful of sugar, half a teaspoonful of salt and a tablespoonful of lemon juice. Fold in the date pulp and pile lightly in a buttered baking dish. Bake in a slow oven for 30 minutes. Serve with a custard made of the yolks of the eggs and a pint of milk, or whipped cream may be used as a sauce.

Apple and Dates.—Roll a thin round rich pastry and heap on to it a cupful or two of chopped apples and a cupful of dates, also chopped. Roll up and place in a baking pan. Add a half cupful of brown sugar, a tablespoonful of butter and a cupful of boiling water. Bake one hour in a moderate oven. Serve with cream. If there is not sufficient sauce left in the pan after the pudding is baked.

We call him strong who stands unmoved. Calm as some tempest-beaten rock—When some great trouble hurls its shock; We say of him, "His strength is proved." But when the spent storm folds its wings How bears he then life's little things? —Ellen Alleton.

SEASONABLE DISHES.

In these days of costly foods anything which will take the place of a favorite but too expensive dish will be welcomed. Here is a vouch-for substitute for cream as a sauce: Mix together two tablespoonfuls each of sugar and cornstarch and cook until smooth and thickened somewhat; be sure that the starchy taste has been removed by cooking. Pour slowly over the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Beat well, return to the fire and cook until of the consistency of cream.

A Nutritious Soup.—Soak rye, Graham or white bread until soft; squeeze out the water. Pour on boiling water enough to make the soup of the desired consistency. Cook until the bread is turned into a smooth mush; add butter, cinnamon, raisins and sugar to taste, then add half as much milk or cream as water used and cook ten minutes. Remove from the heat and add a beaten egg yolk. Beat the white to a stiff froth, adding sugar and flavoring and put it in teaspoonfuls over the top. Cover and let stand on the back of the stove for a few minutes before serving.

Berry Cake.—Sift together a teaspoonful of soda with two cupfuls of flour. In another bowl put one cupful of sugar, half a cupful of shortening and warm it enough to easily cream it; add the yolk of one egg and one whole egg, beat well, add one teaspoonful of cinnamon and half a teaspoonful of cloves. Mix well and add one cupful of canned berries, juice and fruit as it comes, stir well. Now mix with the flour mixture and bake in a loaf. Ice with the egg white left from the cake, pouring boiled sirup over it. Use one cupful of sugar and a quarter of a cupful of water boiled until it hairs, then pour slowly, beating all the time over the stiffly beaten white.

Charleston Muffins.—Beat together one cupful of sugar and a tablespoonful of butter. Add two eggs beaten light, a pinch of salt a grating of nutmeg and one cupful of milk. Sift in two cupfuls of flour and three teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Bake in hot muffin pan or in a shallow baking of hamburger steak and chop. Mix with it one-third of a cupful of flour, add seasonings of salt, pepper and onion, make into small cakes, roll in flour, brown in fat; then add enough water to cook slowly for two hours on the back of the stove.

If either man or woman would realize the full power of personal beauty it must be by cherishing noble thoughts and hopes and purposes; by having something to do and something to live for that is worthy of humanity, and which by expanding the capacities of the soul gives expansion and symmetry to the body which contains it.—Upham.

A FEW GOOD SOUPS.

There is no one dish more usually liked than a well-seasoned soup. The following will be found suggestive:

Liver Soup.—Take half a pound of cold-cooked liver and grind it through a meat chopper. Fry one small onion sliced, in two tablespoonfuls of sweet fat, then add the liver. Add one cupful of dry bread crumbs, season with salt, pepper and add three pints of good stock. Cook fifteen minutes, add a beaten egg yolk and serve at once.

Scotch Soup.—Peel and slice enough onions to make a cupful; cut fine one carrot and two stalks of celery. Fry brown in butter, being careful not to burn. When brown, add three pints of water in which a chicken has been boiled and one-half cupful of cooked chicken cut fine. Cover the saucepan and simmer forty minutes. Beat the yolk of an egg, season with salt and pepper. Mix with a little of the soup; add the remainder of the soup and heat carefully but do not boil. Serve with diced bread.

Dutch Soup.—Put a half cupful of grated cheese into a saucepan with three pints of milk. Simmer gently for ten minutes. When the cheese is dissolved season with pepper and salt and a pinch of sugar. Add half a cupful of cold-cooked macaroni, cut in bits. Beat three eggs until foamy, mix with a little of the soup. Add carefully to the hot soup and serve with diced toasted bread.

Cream of Celery Soup.—Have ready one cupful of celery and put through a sieve. Reduce the water in which the celery was cooked to half a cupful. Put into a saucepan one tablespoonful of butter, season with salt and pepper and stir in two tablespoonfuls of flour. Mix well. Add three cupfuls of milk and stir until it boils. When the mixture is like thin cream add the celery and the celery liquor. Reheat and serve at once.

The mountain of success is steep and high. Who gains the summit climbs a weary way; And though brave feet grow stronger with rebuff The rocky path a coward's steps may stay.

WAYS WITH LIVER.

The usual method of serving liver with bacon is about the extent of liver dishes in the average family. There are various ways of serving liver, a few of which are given below:

Liver Patties.—Scald a pound of liver and grind it with a fourth of a pound of bacon and one onion through the meat chopper. Season well, form into small cakes and cook in a little hot bacon fat, browning both sides.

Boiled Liver.—Cut liver in half-inch slices, cover with boiling water, let stand five minutes, then drain and wipe dry. Sprinkle with seasonings and broil on a well-greased broiler for five minutes. Serve dotted with bits of butter.

Liver Hot Pot.—Cut liver into slices a half-inch thick, soak in cold water for a few minutes; then dry them thoroughly; lay them in a saucepan and dredge with seasoned flour. Cover with thin slices of bacon and sprinkle with chopped onion and a tablespoonful of chopped parsley. Cook at the simmering point well covered for one and one-half hours. Serve garnished with rolls of fried bacon.

Liver Dumplings.—Chop half a pound of calf's liver, add a chopped onion, one tablespoonful of chopped parsley, salt, pepper and a dash of nutmeg. Mix with two well-beaten eggs and one tablespoonful of butter. Add enough fine bread crumbs to form into balls and boil in soup stock. Serve in the soup.

Stuffed Liver.—Slice liver and parboil it in boiling water to cover. Soak six slices of bread in hot water 20 minutes; then squeeze dry. Mix the soaked bread with half a teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of sage, two teaspoonfuls of bacon fat and a few dashes of cayenne. Place a spoonful of the stuffing on each slice, roll and fasten with toothpicks for skewers. Place the rolls in a buttered baking dish, add a cupful of hot water and a spoonful of bacon fat; bake occasionally and bake 45 minutes.

Now Comes Halloween

So many preparations are under way for Halloween parties that there is no doubt that a lot of merry-making is coming to pass this year upon the return of the festival of "all saints' day."
The big shops are showing all sorts of grotesque, funny and pretty decorations, made of paper—in the way of adornments for house and table, and people are buying them freely.

A gay party at home is the best way to celebrate and is evidently taking the place of pranks that lure the youngsters into doing dangerous and damaging things on the outside.

Yellow and black are the colors for Halloween decorations and lanterns, candle shades, jack-o'-lanterns, table and house garnishings are all done in these colors, with yellow in a dark shade predominating. Plain crepe paper, in bolts and fringed strips, is used for a great number of Halloween figures and there are many printed papers containing figures in black as witches, ghosts, jack-o'-lanterns and innumerable black cuts in all sizes.
These are cut out and pasted against thin cardboard for place cards, candle shades, banners and wall decorations.
They are used to dress tables instead of linen, and there are paper napkins in keeping.

Instead of the usual genuine pumpkin, jack-o'-lanterns are made over a big wire frame of plain yellow paper and a face painted on with black and white water colors. Or the face may be cut from printed paper and pasted on the lantern. This is suspended over the dining table and similar lanterns are hung in other rooms or the hall.
The fringed strips of paper are used for festoons and these paper decorations are improved if autumn leaves are used with them.

In the picture above there are some clever table decorations. They are merely suggestions and do not include cats, bats, ghosts and witches that may be had in large or small sizes on the printed bolts of paper and used for lanterns, place cards, candle shades, etc. The jack-o'-lantern at the right of the picture is made of yellow and black crepe paper. His location in the scheme of things is in the center of the table where refreshments are to be served. Here he is mounted on a low pasteboard box, either square or round, covered with crepe paper and containing paper caps or small, mirth-provoking souvenirs. These are distributed to the guests when they are seated.

The lantern at the center is made of printed crepe paper and is to be used over electric lights. It is adorned with short, narrow strips of crepe paper, each ending in a little ball of paper stuffed with cotton. Below the lanterns are two place cards cut from printed paper, mounted on thin cardboard and fastened to small disks of cardboard in which the guests' names are written. The last figure at the left shows a candle shade made of printed crepe paper mounted over a frame of wire or cardboard.

There is nothing formal about the Halloween party—it is a frolic.
Games and pastimes for the evening are to be planned ahead—the merrier the better. Nothing suits the grown-up young people better than dancing and fortune telling and there are plenty of thrilling and romping games for the youngsters. It is a paper festival, and paper dishes, paper table furnishings and paper decorations, make things easy and inexpensive for the hostess.

Blouses for All Occasions

The materials used for blouses this fall are the same that have made them so successful for several seasons, the only new departures being velvet and the increased number of models made of crepe-de-chine.

In styles the most prominent new note is the over-blouse or over-panel.
That is, a blouse in one color or material serves as a foundation for an over-blouse or over panel in a contrasting color or material. This makes opportunity for many beautiful color combinations. Another feature to be noted lies in girdles, which appear in gold and silver brocaded ribbons or in other brocades. These are used with blouses that are extended into pep-lums, or long panels at the back and front.

For trimming, filet lace, bead and embroidery designs, with yarn embrodery featured in velvet, small tucks and considerable hand work, distinguish the season. Silk and gold or silver threads are combined in embroideries, in keeping with the trend toward brilliant effects in all apparel.
For afternoon wear with satin skirts crepe-de-chine in fashionable colors and adorned with pointed figures is shown in the skirted blouses. These are simply made and usually have girdles of heavy silk cord ending in long tassels. Sleeves are about equally divided as to length.

In the plain tailored blouses high necks with turn-over collars fasten up the front, including the collar with small buttons. Round necks and those with "V" shaped openings continue to be better liked than others, but in some of the new models are higher than in the past season. The blouse of georgette crepe shown in the picture represents the most popular type.
It is embroidered in silk matching it in color, with outlined grape leaves and clusters of small grapes. The sleeves are long, but the designer appears to have been of two minds in finishing them, and has added a flaring portion that might be omitted.

The society will leave on the five o'clock electric.

OLD SOUTH UNION CHURCH

South Weymouth
Rev. O. A. Price, pastor. Sunday at 10.30, there will be in the pulpit of the Old South Union Church a representative of the Pilgrim Memorial Fund committee. This committee of speakers and workers made up of selected men of ability and leadership from different parts of the country, is concentrating its efforts on sections. Sunday and during the following week these men will be at work in the churches of the Norfolk and Pilgrim Associations, and our church shares in this effort. It is urgently desired that every family in the parish be represented if possible at the morning service of worship. This will facilitate the work of the committee.

The Boston Herald of last Wednesday morning referred in an editorial to the work of this Pilgrim Memorial Fund committee and the ultimate purpose of the fund. It is meeting with success over the country. Churches are awaking to the fact that sufficient financial backing has not been given most of the ministers of our churches, and the churches with a sort of instinctive recognition of a grave injustice having been done, are now desiring to rectify a wrong and pay a just debt. And the Congregationalists have rightly taken this Three Hundredth Anniversary year as the fitting time to honor their ministry and thereby do honor to their Pilgrim ancestry.

It would be very helpful to every one if they would attend the service next Sunday morning and obtain a clear and definite understanding of the purpose and work of this Pilgrim Fund from one who has given it careful study. We most cordially invite everyone.
Sunday School at 12 o'clock. C. E. at 6 P. M. Thursday evening devotion and prayer. Remember the Ladies Social Aid fair in former Union Church building, Tuesday and Wednesday Nov. 11 and 12.

ORGANIZED GOVERNMENT

The Only Means of Protecting the Rights of All the People Is to RE-ELECT GOVERNOR CALVIN COOLIDGE

"The Pilot Who Weathered the Storm"

The question at issue now is not one of party politics. It is not a matter that can be left to committees or organizations. It can only be met by a swift acceptance of personal responsibility and the maximum of individual effort. And the time is short. Tuesday, November 4th, will decide whether Massachusetts is to stand before the nation as repudiating or rewarding a Governor who, in time of stress and peril, did his duty fearlessly, maintained the laws and protected the public.

The opposing candidate is vilifying the Governor by false and reckless accusations. He is trying to win votes by all sorts of promises. He is making political capital, or trying to, out of the faithlessness of the Boston police force and the looting and rioting that followed its defection. He is promising the reinstatement of the men who broke their oaths and forsook their posts. For his own personal interest, as he sees it, he is trying, at this critical time, to cater to the forces of disorder and lawlessness.

This is no time for any mincing of words or disguising of issues. The question for the individual voter is not: How do I feel about the importance of defending the government and the public peace? but, What am I going to do about it?

Never was a cause more clearly expressed in a single personality than the cause of good government and righteous laws is expressed in the candidacy of Calvin Coolidge for re-election as Governor of Massachusetts. The result of the election will be of nation-wide significance; and the aim in view should be not merely his re-election but his re-election by a majority so great as to leave no doubt as to where Massachusetts stands.

BASSETT—THAYER
Miss Ruth A. Thayer, one of North Weymouth's most popular young women, was married Saturday evening to Worthington S. Bassett of Bryantville. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride, 77 North street, and the Rev. E. W. Whipple of the Universalist Church, officiated. The bridesmaid was Miss Beatrice Landers of Watertown, and the best man was E. Bartlett Spooner of Quincy.

The bride was in white silk, with a veil caught with orange blossoms and she carried a large bouquet. Her attendant was in pink chiffon, and she carried pink roses. The ceremony was performed under an arch of pink and white chrysanthemums, and the same flowers were used in profusion to decorate the room.

More than 100 friends from Quincy, Connecticut, Plymouth, Lynn, and Framingham were present at the ceremony and for the reception which followed. Mr. and Mrs. Bassett were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Minnie Thayer of North Weymouth, the bride's sister, and Mrs. E. Bartlett Spooner of Quincy. A wedding supper was served.

The couple are on a wedding trip to Montreal, and on their return they will reside on Washington street, Lynn, where they will be at home after Nov. 15.

The bride has a host of friends in North Weymouth, and is one of the most popular girls among the younger set there. She has been actively identified with social affairs in the town, and is a member of the Universalist church where she sings in the choir. She is a graduate of the Weymouth High School.

The groom recently received his discharge from the U. S. tank corps, after 11 months' service overseas.

GOLDEN WEDDING
Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Huff observed Oct. 23 the 50th anniversary of their marriage by a reception at their home 124 High street, East Weymouth. Relatives, neighbors and friends, also members of Reynolds W. R. C., called to extend congratulations and leave tokens of kind regard. A community sing, with Mrs. Mary R. Flint as pianist, featured and a wedding lunch was served.

Mr. Huff was born in Brookline, Sept. 16, 1845, one of ten children of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Huff. During 13 years he was employed by an ice company at South Weymouth, having entire charge of the plant five years, and for 30 years was watchman at the East Weymouth Wool Mills. He retired from active duties a few years ago.

Mrs. Huff is a native of Boston, where she was born Dec. 22, 1845. Mr. and Mrs. William Y. Deere were her parents. When she was 6 years old the family came to Weymouth. Mrs. Huff is a member of Reynolds Woman's Relief Corps. They were married by Rev. Jonas Perkins.

The three daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Huff are Mrs. Arnold Pratt of Holbrook, Mrs. Gertrude S. Murphy of Dorchester and Miss Lena L. Huff of Nahant. The grandchildren are Mrs. Mildred Thompson of Brooklyn, N. Y., Arthur L. Murphy, Linwood M. Murphy, Miss Doris L. Murphy and Lawrence A. Murphy of Dorchester. There are two great-grandchildren, Allan F. Thompson of Brooklyn, N. Y. and Lulu Murphy of Weymouth.

TEACHERS' CONVENTION
Weymouth and Braintree schools were closed last Friday and the teachers attended the Norfolk County Teachers' Convention at Tremont Temple, Boston.

F. W. Hilton, the principal of the Weymouth High school was elected president.

Different resolutions were offered relative to salaries, the following one being adopted: "Teachers shall not forsake the work of teaching, but shall ask for proper remuneration and recognition in the matter of salary."

TO BUILD SEVERAL HOUSES
Reports are that a building boom is about to be started in East Braintree. It is said that a syndicate composed of Boston men have purchased a large tract of land on Quincy avenue, between Newcomb Square and Weymouth. That it is its intention to erect 100 houses early next spring. There is to be a big demand for houses in this vicinity owing to the establishment of the refining plant of the Massachusetts Refining Company, on Quincy avenue.

When Henry Ford, John Burroughs and Thomas A. Edison were in Tilton, N. H., on a vacation trip, they joined the crowd at a Salvation Army meeting just as a Salvation lassie was about to pass the tambourine. Mr. Edison gently took it from her hand and took up the collection, getting unusually generous contributions from the townspeople, who recognized him. Seeing the tambourine full, Mr. Ford said: "Why don't you pass your hat now?" and Mr. Edison replied, "All right, Henry, if you'll start me off with a good-sized contribution." Both Ford and Burroughs emptied their pockets then into Mr. Edison's hat. So did Edison himself, and then he turned over to the Salvation Army a tambourine and a hat full of money—just how much was not announced.

Utilizing Sun's Heating Power.

Many attempts have been made to utilize the heating power of the sun for engines, writes Charles G. Abbot, in the Youth's Companion. Sun-power pumping plants have been run experimentally on a large scale in California, New Mexico and Egypt. In some solar-power plants the rays are concentrated on steam boilers by mirrors. In others the sun heats shallow pools of water with blackened bottoms, and the hot water is used to run sulphur-dioxide or other low-pressure engines. The great trouble is that the first cost of the large contrivances for collecting solar heat and the small efficiency of the engines operating within such narrow ranges of temperature make solar plants a little too costly to compete with other sources of power.

"I CANNOT ORDER; I AM A SLAVE."

Synopsis.—In 1832 Lieutenant Knox of the regular army is on duty at Fort Armstrong, Rock Island, Ill., in territory threatened by disaffected Indians. The commandant sends him with dispatches to St. Louis. He takes passage on the steamer Warrior and makes the acquaintance of Judge Beaucare, rich planter, and of Joe Kirby (the Devil's Own), notorious gambler. Knox learns Judge Beaucare has a daughter, Eloise, and a granddaughter, Rene, offspring of a son whom the judge has disowned. Rene's mother is a negress, and she and her daughter, never having been freed, are slaves under the law, although the girls have been brought up as sisters. Kirby induces the judge to stake his plantation and negro servants on a poker hand unfairly dealt by Joe Carver, Kirby's partner. Kirby accuses the judge of cheating. Beaucare, infuriated, drops dead. Knox tries to induce Kirby to give up his stolen winnings. Kirby and Carver throw Knox overboard. The lieutenant swims ashore and reaches a hut. Knox lies unconscious for ten days. Recovering, he finds he is in a cabin owned by Pete, a "free nigger," who had shot him, mistaking him for an enemy. His dispatches have been forwarded. Recovering from his wound, Knox sends Pete to bring Haynes, Beaucare's lawyer, and they arrange, with Pete's help, to get the women to the cabin of an abolitionist, Amos Shunk, before Kirby comes. At the Beaucare place Knox overhears a conversation between the sheriff and his deputy, and learns the truth about the situation. He is witness to an interview between Kirby and a girl who says she is Rene Beaucare. Kirby insults the girl, and Knox attacks him. Believing Kirby dead, Knox explains affairs to the girl, and she agrees to try to escape with him. They fall to find Pete where he had been posted, so Knox seizes the sheriff's keelboat, along with Sam, the slave left in charge, and they begin their voyage up the river. Next day a steamer passes and Sam recognizes Kirby on board. At Shunk's place they find a dead negro, treacherously shot down from behind, lying in the woods near the cabin. It is a stunning surprise.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued.

He was slow in following, hanging back as I approached closer to the motionless form, and I could hear the muttering of his lips. Unquestionably the man was dead; of this I was assured before I even knelt beside him. He lay on his face in a litter of dead leaves, and almost the first thing I noticed was the death wound back of his ear, where a large-caliber bullet had pierced the brain. His exposed hands proved him a negro, and it was with a feeling of unusual repugnance that I touched his body, turning it over sufficiently to see the face. All at once I knew him, unable wholly to repress a cry of startled surprise as I stared down into the upturned face—the dead man evidently murdered, shot treacherously from behind, was Free Pete. I sprang to my feet, gazing about blindly into the dim woods, my mind for the instant dazed by the importance of this discovery. What could it mean? How could it have happened? By what means had he reached this spot in advance of us, and at whose hand had he fallen? He could have been there only for one purpose, surely—in an attempt to guide Eloise Beaucare and the quadron Della. Then what had become of the women? Where were they now?

I stumbled backward to the support of the log, unable to answer any one of these questions, remembering only in that moment that I must tell Rene the truth.

"Tell me—please," she begged. "Is the man dead? Who is he, do you know?"

"Yes," I replied desperately. "He is dead, and I recognized his face. He is the negro Pete and has been killed, shot from behind."

"Pete," she echoed, grasping at the log to keep erect, her eyes on that dimly revealed figure in the leaves. "Free Pete, Carlton's Pete? How could he have got here? Then—then the others must have been with him. What has become of them?"

"It is all mystery; the only way to solve it is for us to go on. It can do no one any good to stand here, staring at this dead body. When we reach the cabin we may learn what has occurred. Go on ahead, Sam, and we will follow—don't be afraid, boy; it is not the dead who hurt us."

She clung tightly to me, shrinking past the motionless figure. She was not sobbing; her eyes were dry, yet every movement, each glance exhibited her depth of horror. I drew her closer, thoughtless of what she was, my heart yearning to speak words of comfort, yet realizing there was nothing left me to say.

"Do not mind me," she said, pausing before the utterance of each word to steady her voice. "I—I am not going to break down. It—it is the suddenness—the shock. I—I shall be strong again in a minute."

"You must be," I whispered, "for their lives may depend on us."

It was a short path before us and became more clearly defined as we advanced. A sharp turn brought us into full view of the cabin, which stood in a small opening, built against the sidehill, and so overhung with trees as to be invisible, except from the direction of our approach. We could see only the side wall, which contained one open window, and was a one-room affair, low and flat-roofed, built of logs. Its outward appearance was peaceful enough, and the swift beat of my pulse quieted as I took rapid survey of the surroundings.

"Sam," I commanded, "you are to remain here with Rene, while I learn the truth yonder. Yes," to her quick protest, "that will be the better way—there is no danger and I shall not be gone but for a moment."

I seated her on a low stump and left them there together, Sam's eyes rolling about in a frightened effort to perceive every covert in the woods, but the girl satisfied to watch me intently as I moved cautiously forward. A dozen steps brought me within view of the front of the cabin. The door had been smashed in and hung dangling from one hinge. Another step, now with a pistol gripped in my hand, enabled me to obtain a glimpse within. Across the pinecone threshold, his feet even protruding without, lay a man's body; beyond him, half concealed by the shadows of the interior, appeared the outlines of another, with face upturned to the roof, plainly distinguishable because of a snow-white beard.

CHAPTER IX.

The Trail of the Raiders.

Shocked and unmanned as I was at this discovery, to pause there staring at those gruesome figures would have only brought fresh alarm to the two watching my every movement from the edge of the clearing. Gripping my nerves, I advanced over the first body, watching for any sign of the presence of life within the cabin. There was none—the work of the murder had been completed, and the perpetrators had fled. The dead man, with ghastly countenance upturned to the roof rafters, and the snowy beard, was undoubtedly the negro helper, Amos Shunk. Pete's description of the appearance of the man left this identification beyond all dispute. He had been stricken down by a savage blow, which had literally crushed in one side of his head, but his dead hands yet gripped a rifle, as though he had fallen fighting to the last.

The other man, the one lying across the threshold, had been shot, although I did not ascertain this fact until after I turned the body over sufficiently to reveal the face. This was disfigured by the wound and covered with blood, so that the features could scarcely be seen, yet I instantly recognized the fellow—Carver. Surprised out of all control by this unexpected discovery, I steadied myself against the log wall, fully aroused to the sinister meaning of his presence. To a degree the complete significance of this tragedy instantly gripped my mind. If this fellow Carver had been one of the assassins then it was absolutely certain that Kirby must also have been present—the leader of the attack. This inevitably meant that both men had been aboard the steamer, and later were put ashore at the mouth of the Illinois. And, now that I thought about it, why not? It was no accident, and I wondered that the possibility had never occurred to me before. The gambler naturally knew all the gossip of the river, and beyond question he would be aware of the reported existence of this underground station for runaway slaves. It was common talk as far down as St. Louis, and his mind would instantly revert to the possibility that the fleeing Rene might seek escape through the assistance of Shunk. The mysterious vanishing of the boat would serve to increase that suspicion. Even if this had not occurred to him at first, the steamer would have brought news that no keelboat had been seen on the lower river, while the captain of the John B. Glover, or someone else on board, would have been sure to have mentioned the negro helper and suggest that he might have had a hand in the affair. To follow that trail was, indeed, the most natural thing for Kirby to do. He had not overtaken Rene because she was not yet there, but he had unexpectedly come upon the other fugitives, and, even though the encounter had cost the life of his henchman, Carver, it also resulted in the death of two men who had come between him and his prey—the negro and the abolitionist. The scene cleared in my brain and became vivid and real. I could almost picture in detail each act of the grim tragedy. The two revengeful trackers—if there were only two engaged, for others might have been recruited on the steamer—must have crept up to the hut in the night or early morning. Possibly Kirby had learned of some other means of approach from the big river. Anyway, the fact that Shunk had been trapped within the cabin would indicate the final attack was a surprise. The negro might have been asleep outside and met his death in an attempt at escape, but the old white man, finding flight impossible, had fought desperately to the last and had killed one antagonist before receiving his death blow. This was all plain enough, but what had become of Kirby, of the two women—Eloise and the quadron mother?

Uncertain what to do or how to act, I could only turn to the waiting girl and the negro to tell them what I had found.

They listened as though scarcely comprehending, Sam uttering little moans of horror, and appearing helpless from fright, but Rene quiet, merely exhibiting her emotion in the whiteness of her face and quickened breathing. Her eyes, wide open, questioning, seemed to sense my uncertainty. As I ended the tale and concluded with my theory as to what had occurred following the deed of blood, her quick mind asserted itself.

"But this must have happened very lately; the fire still smoldered, you said. When do you think that steamer could have landed here?"

"Why, perhaps early last evening."

"And it has not occurred to you that the boat might have waited here while the man Kirby went ashore?"

"No; that could scarcely be true, if the steamer was transporting troops; what was it you were thinking about?"

"It is all dark, of course," she said slowly, "we can only guess at what happened. But to me it seems impossible that the man Kirby could have accomplished this alone—without assistance. The boat we saw at the landing was not his; it must have been Pete's, and there is no evidence of any other trail leading here from the river. If, as you imagine, he knew the captain of that steamer, and some of the other men aboard were Missourians and defenders of slavery, he would have no trouble in enlisting their help to recover his runaway slaves. They would be only too glad to break up an abolitionist's nest. That is what I believe has happened; they came ashore in a party, and the steamer waited for them."

"And you think the prisoners were taken along? Yet Kirby would not want to transport them up the river."

"As to that," she insisted, "he could not help himself. He needed to get away quickly, and there were no other means available. He could only hope to connect later with some craft sound-bound on which to return."

"You may be right," I admitted, impressed, yet not wholly convinced. "But what can we do?"

She looked at me reproachfully.

"You should not ask that of a girl."

The words stung me.

"No; this is my task. I was thoughtlessly cruel. Neither can we remain here, only long enough to bury those bodies. It would be inhuman not to do that. Sam, there is an old spade leaning against the cabin wall—go over and get it."

He started on his mission reluctantly enough, glancing constantly backward over his shoulder to insure himself of our presence and carefully avoiding any approach to the open door.

Unpleasant as our task was it proved to be less difficult of accomplishment than I had anticipated. There were blankets in the cabin bunks, and in these I wrapped the bodies. They were too heavy, however, for me to transport alone, and it required some threatening to induce Sam to give me the assistance necessary to deposit them in the shallow grave. Only the fear that I would not have him with us longer compelled his joining me. He was more frightened at the thought of being left alone than of contact with the dead. Sam filled in the loose earth, rounding it into form, and the two of us stood above the fresh mound, our bent heads bared to the sunlight, while I endeavored to repeat brokenly a few words of prayer. Now our first necessity was food. Of this I found a fair supply, and compelling Sam to assist me, we hastily prepared a warm meal over the open fire. It was eaten without, no one of us desiring to remain in the midst of that scene of death; and the very knowledge that the dead burial was completed and that we were now free to depart brought to all of us a renewed courage.

It scarcely seemed probable that one man alone, or even two men, had committed this crime, and the sole survivor disappear so completely with the prisoners. I had turned each detail over and over in my thought, while I worked, yet to but little purpose. The only present solution of the problem seemed to be our return to that hidden basin where our boat lay, and then remaining there in concealment until the darkness of another night rendered it safe to once more venture the river.

I spoke of this to her, as I finally approached where she rested on the stump, eager and glad to escape from all memories of that somber cabin I had just left.

"You—you are no longer so confident," she said; "your plan has failed."

"I am afraid it has," I admitted, "for it was based altogether on the assistance of Amos Shunk. He is no longer alive, and I do not know where to turn for guidance. There would seem to be danger in every direction; the only question is—in which way lies the least?"

"You begin to regret your attempt to aid me?"

"No," impulsively. "So far as that goes I would do it all over again. Your safety means more to me now than ever before—you must believe that."

"Why should I? All I have brought you is trouble. I can read in your face how discouraged you are. You must not think I do not understand. I do understand—perfectly. What you have done has been only a response to impulse; merely undertaken through a spirit of adventure. Then—then why not let it end here, and—Sam and I can go on to—whatever is before us? It is nothing to you."

"You actually believe I would consent to that?" I asked in startled surprise at the vehemence of her words. "That I could prove such a cur?"

"But why not? It would not be a cowardly act at all. I could not blame you, for I have no claim on your service—never have had. You have done a thousand times too much already; you have risked honor, reputation, and neglected duty to aid my escape; and—I am nothing to you—can be nothing."

"Nothing to me?"

"Certainly not. Why speak like that? Have you forgotten again that I am a slave—a negress? Think, Lieutenant Knox, what it would mean to you to be caught in my company; to be overtaken while attempting to assist me in escaping from my master. Now no one dreams of such a thing, and no one ever need dream. You have had your adventure; let it end here. I shall be grateful to you always, but—I cannot bear to drag you deeper into this mire."

"You order me to leave you?"

"I cannot order; I am a slave. My only privilege is to request, urge, implore. I can merely insist that it will be best—best for us both—for you to go. Surely you also must realize that this is true?"

"You have been brooding over all this," I said gently, "sitting here alone, and thinking while we worked. I am not going to answer you now. There is no need. Nothing can be done until night, whatever we decide upon. You will go back with us to the boat?"

"Yes; I simply cannot stay here," her eyes wandering toward the cabin. I took the lead on the return, finding the path easy enough to follow in the full light of day. The sincere honesty of her plea—the knowledge that she actually meant it—only served to draw me closer, to strengthen my determination not to desert. Her face was ever before me as I advanced—a bravely pathetic face, wonderfully womanly in its girlish contour—appealing to every impulse of my manhood. I admitted the truth of what she said—it had been largely love of adventure, the rash recklessness of youth, which had brought me here. But this was my inspiration no longer. I had begun to realize that something deeper, more worthy, now held me to the task. What this was I made no attempt to analyze—possibly I did not dare—but, nevertheless, the mere conception of deserting her in the midst of this wilderness was too utterly repugnant for expression. No, not that; whatever happened it would never be that.

The last few rods of our journey lay through thick underbrush, and beneath the spreading branches of interlacing trees. Suddenly I emerged upon the bank of the creek, with the rude log wharf directly before me. I stopped transfixed, staring at the water—nothing else greeted my eyes; both the boats were gone.

This unexpected discovery came to me like a blow; the very breath seemed to desert my lungs, as I stared down at the vacant stream. We had been outgeneraled, tricked, and all our theories as to what had occurred were wrong. The duty we had performed to the dead had cost us our own chance to escape. Instead of being alone, as we had supposed, we were in the midst of enemies; we had been seen, watched, and while we loitered ashore the murderers had stolen our boat and vanished, leaving us there helplessly marooned. All this was plain enough now, when it was already too late to remedy the evil. The struggling girl emerged through the tangle of shrubs and paused suddenly at my side, her lips giving utterance to a cry of surprise.

"The—the boat! It is not here?"

"No; there is not a sign of it. Those fellows must be still in the neighborhood; must have seen us when we first came."

"But what are we to do?"

I had no ready answer, yet the echo of utter despair in her voice stirred me to my own duty as swiftly as though she had thrust a knife into my side. Do? We must do something! We could not sit down idly there in the swamp. And to decide what was to be attempted was my part. If Kirby and whoever was with him had stolen the missing boat, as undoubtedly they had, they could have possessed but one purpose—escape. They were inspired to the act by a desire to get away, to flee from the scene of their crime. They must believe that we were left helpless, unable to pursue them or create alarm. Yet if it was Kirby why had he fled so swiftly, making no effort to take Rene captive also? It was she he was seek-

"Certainly Not. Why Speak Like That? Have You Forgotten Again That I am a Slave—a Negress?"

ing; for the purpose of gaining possession of her these murders had been committed. Why, then, should he run away when he must have known the girl was already in his grasp? The same thought apparently occurred to her.

"You—you believe that Kirby did this?"

"What other conclusion is possible? We know that he passed us on the steamer—Sam saw him plainly. It was his man, Carver, whom we found dead in the hut. It could have been no one else."

"But," she questioned, unsatisfied, "he would have only one reason for being here—hunting me, his slave. That was his one purpose, was it not? If he saw us then he must have known of my presence, that I was here with you. Why should he make no attempt to take me with him? Why should he steal our boat and run away?"

"One theory is as good as another," I said, "and mine so far have all been wrong. What do you make of it, Sam?"

"Who, sah? Me, sah?"

"Yes, take a guess at this."

"Pears like," he said, deliberately, rubbing his ear with one hand, "as how it mought have happened dis yere way, sah. Ah ain't a-sayin' it was—it mought be. Maybe Massa Kirby nebber got no sight ob us 'tall, an' was afeerd fer ter stay. He just knowed a party was yere—likely 'nough sum Black Abolitionists, who'd be huntin' him if he didn't c'lar out, just so soon as dey foun' dat Amos Shunk was dead. Here was his chance, an' he done took it."

He bent suddenly forward, his glance at the edge of the log. "Dey ain't took but just do one boat, sah, fer de odder am shoved under dar out'r sight."

As I stooped further over I saw that this was true, the small rowboat, with the oars undisturbed in its bottom, had been pressed in beneath the concealment of the log wharf, almost completely hidden from above, yet to all appearances uninjured. The very fact that it should have been thus left only added to the mystery of the affair. If it had been Kirby's deliberate purpose to leave us there stranded ashore why had he failed to crush in the boat's planking with a rock? Could the leaving of the craft in fit condition for our use be part of some carefully conceived plan; a bait to draw us into some set trap? Or did it occur merely as an incident of their hurried flight? These were unanswerable questions, yet the mere knowledge that the boat was actually there and in navigable condition promised us an opportunity to escape. While hope remained, however vague, it was not my nature to despair. Whether accident or design had been the cause made no odds—I was willing to match my wits against Kirby and endeavor to win. And I must deal with facts just as they were.

This unexpected discovery came to me like a blow; the very breath seemed to desert my lungs, as I stared down at the vacant stream. We had been outgeneraled, tricked, and all our theories as to what had occurred were wrong. The duty we had performed to the dead had cost us our own chance to escape. Instead of being alone, as we had supposed, we were in the midst of enemies; we had been seen, watched, and while we loitered ashore the murderers had stolen our boat and vanished, leaving us

PIGS' PARTY.

"Well," said Sir Percival Pork, "now that we have joined the pig pen, I think we should be given a party."

"What?" squealed Grandfather Porky Pig. "You think that we, old residents, old inhabitants, old pigs of the pen, should give newcomers like yourselves a party?"

"Certainly," said Sir Percival Pork. "We have lately come to this pen and we think we should have a party given in our honor."

"When people go to new places they are very often given parties."

"Very often, but not always," said Mrs. Pink Pig.

"True," said Sammy Sausage.

"Mrs. Pink Pig speaks the truth," said Pinky Pig.

"Yes," said Master Pink Pig, "she does."

"She most certainly does," said Brother Bacon.

"For once in her life she is right," said Miss Ham.

"But pigs," said Sir Percival Pork, "make this one of the times, and give us a nice party."

"You said that when people went to new places they were usually given parties. But you're not a person, and none of you new pigs are people. You're all pigs, and why should we give a party for pigs?" asked Mrs. Pink Pig.

"Why not?" asked Sir Benjamin Bacon.

"Why not?" asked Sir Percival Pork.

"We'd all be so glad to have parties given for us. We'd thank you and squeal with delight and grunt our thanks and wiggle our crooked tails," said Sir Benjamin.

"Do not make too many promises," said Sir Percival.

"I mean, after we were through eating," said Sir Benjamin.

"Yes, not before," said Sir Percival.

"We've not said we would give a party for you," said Grandfather Porky.

"For my part," said Brother Bacon, "I think it is disgracing the old-time name of pig for any of us to give a party."

"He speaks wisely," said Grandfather Porky.

"He does indeed," said Mrs. Pink Pig.

"He speaks selfishly," said Sir Percival Pork.

"Very selfishly," said Sir Benjamin Bacon.

"Wise and selfishly mean the same thing," said Grandfather Porky. "I am surprised you shouldn't know."

"So am I," said Brother Bacon.

"Well, it depends on who is being wise and who is being selfish," said Sir Percival.

"Yes, that makes all the difference," said Sir Benjamin.

"They're regular pigs, all right," grunted Grandfather Porky.

"They are," agreed Miss Ham.

"Then won't you give us a party?" they asked.

"Not much," grunted Miss Ham.

"Not much," said Brother Bacon.

"Indeed we won't," said Sammy Sausage.

"We most certainly will not," said Mrs. Pink Pig.

"We want all the food for ourselves," said Master Pink Pig.

"The pig speaks correctly," said Pinky Pig.

"Well, aren't we to have a party?" asked Sir Percival Pork.

"Yes, aren't we?" asked Sir Benjamin Bacon.

"Only if you give it to us," said Grandfather Porky.

"We could never do that. It wouldn't be fitting," said Sir Percival.

"Don't know what you mean by fitting," grunted Grandfather Porky.

"It wouldn't be the thing for strangers to give a party," said Sir Benjamin.

"It wouldn't be the thing for us to give one either," said Grandfather Porky.

But the farmer brought the pigs their food at this moment and they did have a party—but not for each other!

A Natural Inference.

"Paw!" yelled several of the Johnson children. "Beacart says he won't go to school this morning!"

"He won't, hey?" roared Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, Ark. "Knock him down with something, and then five or six of you pile on him, hog-tie him, and drag him along. What the Sam Hill does the little cuss think he is, anyway—a Second Lieutenant?"

The American Red Cross will seek the reaffirmed allegiance of the American people in its Third Roll Call from November 2nd to 11th. With a record of unrivaled accomplishment in war work, at home and abroad, and with a new Peace Program, practical, inspiring, far-reaching, the great relief organization will ask the people to renew their memberships, or to become new members, for 1920.

The call to membership will be carried by thousands of volunteer workers into every home, and into offices, stores and factories. Every man and woman who believes in thorough-going Americanism will be given an opportunity to "Join."

Keep the Ranks Filled. The membership of the American Red Cross today is approximately twenty million, not including the eleven million Junior members. In the states of Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, there are a million and a half members. While no definite quota has been set for the Third Roll Call, it is hoped that the ranks will be kept filled and thousands of recruits added for 1920.

Red Cross membership is one thing that has not been hit by the high cost of living. An annual membership still costs only one dollar—and there is no war tax. Only dollar annual memberships will be received during the Roll Call.

While the principal purpose of the campaign will be to enroll members, an appeal will be made for $15,000,000, to enable the National organization to complete its war work, which by no means ended with the armistice as many seemed to believe.

Responsibility Abroad Prolonged. Congress has prolonged the responsibility of the Red Cross abroad by authorizing the Secretary of War to transfer to the Red Cross several million dollars worth of medical, surgical and dietary supplies "to be used by the American Red Cross to relieve and supply the pressing needs of the countries involved in the late war." The Red Cross must have further financial support to enable it to distribute these supplies in countries where, because of the ravages of war, famine and epidemic, the distress is most pronounced, as in the Balkans, Poland, Siberia and other countries. Without the $15,000,000 fund the Red Cross will be unable to administer this necessary foreign relief, which may protect our own nation from the disaster of epidemic. There are also 30,000 American soldiers wounded during the war still in the hospitals in this country and the Red Cross must continue to render service to them.

To Support Peace Program. Each of the 3724 Chapters in the country will raise a quota of this fund, and will in addition ask support for carrying out its part of the Peace Program, which includes public health nursing, home service, educational work in dietetics, home care of the sick and first aid, preparedness for disaster relief, children's activities through the Junior Red Cross, and the new health center plans. The New England Division quota of the National fund is $1,330,000.

There are 108 Red Cross Chapters in the New England Division and each Chapter will conduct the Roll Call in its own territory, assisted by its branches. There are 918 branches. Nearly all of the Chapters are now organized for the campaign. James Jackson, manager of the New England division, is in general charge of the Roll Call in the Division assisted by a staff of Division officers.

Many soldiers and Red Cross nurses who served overseas will take part in the campaign. The Massachusetts Branch of the American Legion has pledged its support to the Roll Call in the following resolution:

"The Red Cross by its activities during the war in behalf of service men has endeared itself to the American public and is now helping to solve many problems in which the American Legion has a vital interest.

"We, therefore, resolve that the Massachusetts Branch of the American Legion, in convention assembled, express its deep interest in, and pledges support to, the Third Red Cross Roll Call."

Everyone who renews membership or joins during the Roll Call will be given a 1920 button and 1920 window service flags will also be given out. A service flag should glow from a window of every home in the land when the campaign closes.

Red Cross Sunday. The campaign will open on Sunday, November 2, although active solicitation will not start until next day.

The spirit of service, which is the soul of the Red Cross, is closely akin to the spirit of love, which is the soul of religion, and it is therefore fitting that the Red Cross should open its appeal for continued support for its work of mercy with services in the churches. The clergy of all faiths throughout New England have, therefore, been requested to observe Sunday, November 2, as Red Cross Sunday, and to devote at least one of the services on that day to the Red Cross. Each Red Cross Chapter in New England has been provided with leaflets for the use of the clergy. These leaflets present suggestions for Red Cross services and brief statements of the Red Cross work during the war, and the peace tasks to be performed.

Posters, window displays, street car signs, stereopticons and motion pictures will be used to announce the Roll Call and in some communities an illuminated red cross will be displayed. Three posters will be shown. One is a striking design by Howard Chandler Christy entitled "The Spirit of America." A beautiful young woman in flowing robes of white is shown standing against the folds of Old Glory, which form the background. In the lower left corner is a large red cross emblem and balancing it is the word "Join." Haskell Coffin's poster is a young woman in Red Cross Garb holding forth her hands in sweet appeal. The third poster is a text appeal imprinted on a half-tone outline of the popular "Greatest Mother in the World" design.

Motion picture theatres throughout New England Division territory are cooperating generously. More than 300 of them are displaying a set of stereopticon slides announcing the Roll Call, and many of them have agreed to use a Red Cross film previous to or during the campaign.

The Roll Call slogan for New England is:

"Every membership a vote of confidence in the Red Cross. Be ready to cast your vote November 2 to 11."

RED CROSS NURSES DIE FOR LIBERTY.

One Hundred and Ninety-eight American Women Laid Down Their Lives During the War.

One hundred and ninety-eight deaths among the 19,877 American Red Cross nurses who served during the great war, represents the contribution in human life of American womanhood, toward winning the war.

The personnel of these martyrs ranges between Jane A. Delano, late Director General of the American Red Cross Department of Nursing, who lies buried in France, and those humble but no less heroic women who gave up their lives in American camps. Their graves lie all over the world, crowned with white crosses. Even in Germany there is one marking the last resting place of Jessie Baldwin, of Summerville, Pa. In the American Red Cross building in Washington, a beautiful service flag commemorates their sacrifice. A single blue star represents the 19,877 Red Cross nurses in active war duty, no matter where stationed.

In memory of the Red Cross nurses who have "gone west," 198 gold stars burn on this flag, a silent tribute to those splendid women who felt that duty was more than life itself and who, carrying out the traditions and the ideals of the Red Cross, were faithful even unto the end.

Seven New England nurses gave their lives in Red Cross service overseas. Each bears after her name the heroic legend, "died in line of duty."

TRIBUTES TO THE RED CROSS.

"It requires no organization to allow one of us as an individual to buy a dinner for a hungry man. It requires the greatest degree of organization to deal with the foes of a world. The Red Cross seems to be essentially demanded."

NEWTON D. BAKER, Secretary of War.

"The Red Cross is the great neighbor. If the world is made a little more comfortable, a little happier, a little stronger for the struggle of life through its effort, the Red Cross is content."

JOSEPHUS DANIELS, Secretary of the Navy.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Superior Court, Norfolk, ss. To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court, next to be held at Dedham within and for the County of Norfolk:

Respectfully libels and represents Emma O'Brien of Weymouth in said County, that she was lawfully married to Michael J. O'Brien of said County, at Weymouth on the tenth day of May, A. D. 1914, and thereafter, afterwards your libellant and the said Michael J. O'Brien lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit: at Weymouth aforesaid that your libellant has always been faithful to her marriage vows and obligations, but the said Michael J. O'Brien being wholly regardless of the same at Weymouth on or about the first day of May, A. D. 1916 did utterly desert your libellant and has continued such desertion from that day to the date hereof, being more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel. Being of sufficient ability, grossly or wantonly and cruelly refuses and neglects to provide suitable support for your libellant and children.

Whereof your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Michael J. O'Brien, and for custody of minor children, Michael R. O'Brien, born February 17, 1914, Mary M. O'Brien, born February 12, 1916, and for such other orders and decrees as to your Honors shall seem meet, and as justice may require.

Dated the twenty-fifth day of August, A. D. 1919. EMMA O'BRIEN.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Superior Court, Norfolk, ss. On the foregoing Libel, it is ordered that the Libellant give notice to the said Michael J. O'Brien, the Libellee, to appear before the Justices of this Court, to be held at Dedham, within and for said County, on the first Monday of December next, by causing an attested copy of said Libel, and of this order thereon, to be published once in a week, for three consecutive weeks, in the Weymouth Gazette, a newspaper printed at Weymouth, in the County of Norfolk, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said first Monday of December next, and further, by sending through the mail, as soon as may be, by a registered letter addressed to the last known residence of the said Michael J. O'Brien an attested copy of said Libel, and of this order thereon, that the said Michael J. O'Brien may then and there show cause why the prayer of said Libel should not be granted.

By the Court, R. B. WORTHINGTON, Clerk. September 5, A. D. 1919. A true copy of said Libel, and of Order thereon. MILLARD E. EVERETT, Ass't. Clerk. William P. Kelley, Atty. 77 Franklin St., Boston. Oct. 17, 24, 31

"Your Feet must be RIGHT, Son"

So says Uncle Sam to all of America's young manhood!

The Tru-pedic Shoe is the very best answer to this nation-wide demand for better fitting footwear, because it is built upon new principles which INSURE proper fitting shoes.

What distinctly marks Tru-pedics from the others, is the fact they are made in three types on the same style toe—inflame, straight and outflame. Science says "All normal feet are of one of three types and not of one standard type." This fact is now established after years of scientific research and study.

The Tru-pedic Shoe, in the right type for your foot, will prove to be one of the most attractive, as well as best fitting shoes, you ever had. Come in and try on all THREE types.

AMERICAN LEGION

The American Legion has reason to be proud of its Omaha, Nebraska, members. When the lawless elements in that city inaugurated race riots and brought disgrace upon the fair fame of the city, the members of the American Legion, residing in Omaha, rallied in defense of law and order and formed a most effective volunteer police force, aiding very materially the civic authorities in checking the mob and restoring order. These young men of Omaha, each a representative citizen of the Nebraska city, furnished a sample of what may be expected of the American Legion when the lawless elements in our land attempt to override the principle of law and order.

The Bureau of War Risk Insurance wishes to emphasize the importance to service men of one of the provisions of the War Risk Insurance Act upon the fulfillment of which may depend the validity of their claim to compensation under the Act. The War Risk Insurance Act provides that "No Compensation shall be payable for death or disability which does not occur prior to or within one year after discharge or resignation from the service, except that where, after a medical examination made pursuant to regulations, at the time of discharge or resignation from the service, or within such reasonable time thereafter, not exceeding one year, as may be allowed by regulations, a certificate has to be obtained from the director to the effect that the injured person at the time of his discharge or resignation was suffering from injury likely to result in death or disability." Request for the certificate mentioned above should be made to the Chief Medical Advisor, Bureau of War Risk Insurance, Washington, D. C.

ECHOES FROM EAST BRAINTREE

East Braintree Happenings Always Interest Our Readers

After reading of so many people in our town who have been cured by Doan's Kidney Pills, the question naturally arises: "Is this medicine equally successful in our neighboring towns?" The generous statement of this East Braintree resident leaves no room for doubt on this point. Mrs. Emma Howes, nurse, 179 Commercial St., East Braintree, Mass., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills, for years and have recommended them to a great many of my patients. I have never heard of any one not getting excellent results. I have used them when my back has been lame and the results could not have been better. I have great faith in Doan's Kidney Pills and am always pleased to recommend them." Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Howes had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv. 21,44,45

"Don't you know that it is very rude to whistle while you are waiting on a lady?" said the elderly customer, severely. "Well, the gov'nor told me to do it when I served you," explained the boy. "He told you to whistle?" said the customer, in great surprise. "Yes'm! He said if ever we sold you anything we'd have to whistle for the money."

Where Are the 75-Mile Guns? If we remember rightly, among the terms of the armistice was one demanding that the Germans hand over to the allies the 75-mile guns with which they bombarded Paris.

So far as the public records go none of these pieces has, as yet, been delivered, and we are inclined to think that they shared the fate of the captured German flags, which, with characteristic want of good faith, were publicly burned by German officers on the Unter den Linden, Berlin. The so-called "Big Berthas," the dismantled foundations of which were found by our troops during the German debacle, are not these weapons, but were pieces of 15 or 16-inch caliber of considerably less range.—Scientific American.

She Indorsed It. A blithe and sweet young thing walked into a bank the other day and addressed the paying teller:

"I want to have this check cashed."
"Yes, madam," replied the teller; "please indorse it."

"Why, my husband sent it to me. He is away on business."

"Yes, madam, but just indorse it. Sign it on the back, please, and your husband will know we paid it to you."

She went to the desk, and in a few minutes returned to the window with the check indorsed:

"Your loving wife, Edith.—San Francisco Chronicle.

MOVE TO REVISE CALENDAR

Advocates of Change Will Bring the Matter to Attention of League of Nations.

One of the first projects to be laid before the League of Nations, when it gets ready for new business, is one to revise the calendar and make it uniform throughout the world. Bureau officials of the United States, Switzerland and Great Britain got into touch with church officials before the war on the subject of calendar revision, and have kept up consideration of the matter since. Church leaders say an agreement has been reached and a uniform report is nearly ready to go to the league.

The calendar has not been revised before because of objections from the churches to dates for the great religious feasts. These objections are said to be removed. A fixed date for Easter, the adding of a thirteenth month, the making of every week begin with a Sunday and having exactly 28 days in each month—these are the main features agreed on. Church people favoring the revision say that if the league itself cannot act, it can designate a calendar congress to do so, to sit at Geneva.

Buchanan's Whisky.

Of his many experiences in various parts of the world, that veteran diplomat, Sir George Buchanan, who goes to Rome as British ambassador, has many stories to tell. One of the most amusing of these concerns a garden party he gave on the occasion when British minister at The Hague.

A British tourist and his wife were presented to him, and the former shook him warmly by the hand. "Pleased to meet you, Sir George, pleased to meet you," he said. "The wife and I swear by your whisky."

The Flaw.

Lazy Lorenzo and Dog-tired Dick were discussing something they knew little about—work.

"I think," said Lazy Lorenzo, "that if they did away with work altogether it'd put an end to these 'ere strikes."
"Yus," said Dog-tired Dick. "That'll be the time when everythin's done by electricity. Only got to press a button and the job's done."

A slow horror dawned in Lazy Lorenzo's eyes. "That won't do!" he said emphatically. "Who's a-goin' to press the button?"—Tit-Bits.

Not Always to the Strong

By OWEN OLIVER
(Copyright.)

The rain was coming down in sheets, and the wind took me off my balance as I turned the corner of Alexandra road. Some one ran against me as I righted myself. It was George King. "Where are you going?" he growled. "To Hardy's," I answered gruffly. "Same as you!" There were a dozen Hardys in Sheerness, but he knew that I meant old Hardy, the pilot.

His cutter had gone down in the afternoon, and they said that the old man would go that evening. He had been sinking for a long time.

We walked to their house in silence. There was bad blood between us on account of Jessie Hardy. Jessie's aunt, who kept house for them, opened the door and let us in. The tears were rolling down her wrinkled old cheeks, and her apron was crumpled with wiping her eyes.

"He's been taking on awful," she told us.

"He'd feel it," I said, "about the cutter."

"The cutter? No, no, lad. We haven't told him of that. It's about Jessie. Lying gossip as nobody else wouldn't take notice of; but you know what he is when he gets a thing into his head."

"Who's been saying things about Jessie?" I asked, fiercely. The old woman stared at me.

"You don't mean that you ain't heard?" she cried.

"Folks as have anything to say against Jessie aren't likely to say it to me," I told her.

"Nor me," said George.

"You know as she left Russell's shop sudden, a little before he got his berth on the lightship at the Nore, and gave up. They've set it about that he sent her away for taking things!"

"Who says it?" I shouted; and George clenched his fists. He wasn't one for words.

"Sh!" She raised her hand. "You'll wake her. Cried herself to sleep, poor girl. The things he's said to her! Always suspicious, he was, and ready to take anyone's word against his own flesh and blood."

"I suppose," George said, "the old man wouldn't listen to us?"

"Not if you was angels dropped from the sky! There's only one as he'd believe, he says, and that's Russell himself."

We looked at one another and shook our heads. Russell was on duty aboard the lightship.

"If it wasn't for the gale," George muttered, "I'd fetch a line from him; but no boat couldn't do it."

I went home, put on a waterproof, and stole out quietly for fear my mother should ask questions.

As I was untying my boat a man in oilskins passed under the lamp. It was George King. I knew that he was going to his boat.

I hauled the dingy down the slope, fastened the mast in its place and put up the smaller jib and the mainsail with all the reefs in. Then I pulled and pushed the dingy over the shingle.

She gave a lurch and shipped a sea before I got hold of the tiller.

We were certain to be swamped when we got into the full force of the storm. I thought, and I had almost made up my mind to turn back, when I saw King's boat to leeward.

So I decided to go on. King's was a larger boat than mine, with watertight compartments at the head and stern, and a center-board, and he was a seaman by profession, while I was only an amateur.

The wind lulled for a moment and I got the boat almost dry. Then a gust came and the jib broke loose.

Crash! I caught wildly at something—the keel of my upturned boat.

Another wave almost tore me off. Suddenly the boat was whirled away from me. I tried vainly to swim in my heavy clothes, but swallowed the water in great gulps.

I was almost unconscious when a hand seized me and pulled me up. I clung to the gunwale of King's boat, and he hauled me in.

I laid helplessly on the deck bow till he got a bottle of rum from under his seat and gave me a drink.

Then the moon came out and showed the lightship straining at her moorings close by. We found a little shelter under her lee, and hallooed. Some one looked over the side and threw a rope. King caught it, made it fast and climbed by it.

When he had reached the deck I followed.

I found Russell below talking to King. He started when he saw me. "Newman! You're here, too!" He glanced at George. "You didn't tell me he was with you."

"I came on my own," I explained. "My boat went down, and he picked me up. You'll write as it's a lie?"

"In course it's a lie! Any one but him would have known, without word of mine, the old—Well, well! He's dying."

"She left me because I couldn't afford to pay any one. The business wasn't doing anything, and that's why I come here."

He took a pen and wrote rapidly. Then he sealed the paper in an envelope and gave it to George, who put it in an inner pocket and buttoned up carefully.

"Good night!" He ran up the companion, I followed him; but he waved me fiercely back.

"Let me come, too," I begged, "for the love of heaven!" The wind was so fierce that I had to shout in his ear. "I'll have no one to come between me and her," he declared with a snarl. "You can't do no good, Jack," said Russell. "Yes, yes! I know how it is!"

He put his mouth to my ear. "He'll go down, and you'll have her."

He always liked me. "In course"—he turned to George—"you'll tell her as Newman came, too?"

George laughed hoarsely. "In course," he said, "I won't."

He seized the rope and slid down into the boat. Before they could stop me I followed him.

When I was half way down he saw me and took out his knife. He gashed through two of the three strands, but I tumbled on top of him as the rope parted and the boat dashed away with a jerk and a swirl. A big wave broke over the well and almost covered us as we grappled with one another.

"Let go, you fool!" I shouted. "If we go down, what's the use of your letter?"

He let go and rose.

"Promise me you'll not see her tonight," he hissed.

I struggled to get free, but he held the knife close to my throat.

"Promise!"

"No!" I shouted furiously.

He raised the knife and I closed my eyes. Then he let me go.

"Get up," he said. "I give you your life a second time."

"What do you want me to do?" I asked at last.

"Stay away from her tonight."

"Let her think you've dared what I haven't?"

"Yes."

"It isn't fighting fair."

"We fought fair and I won."

I clenched my fists savagely.

"I wouldn't want her if she liked some one else best."

"Mate," he said, "I don't like taking it. I'll think ill of myself all my life for taking it; but I'm going to do it, if you let me. You'd be a dead man if it weren't for me."

"I give you the chance," I said. "I fight fair. It's life, mind, and more; and it wipes off what I owe you."

"Aye—We'll run in under the breakwater yonder."

It was almost calm underneath, and we ran softly on to the shingle. It was pitch dark on the beach; but the lamp was alight on the wall, some 40 yards away.

A group stood under it. One of them was a woman. My heart gave a jump. "It is Jessie!" I cried under my breath.

"You promised," he reminded me sharply.

"I've promised—For God's sake take her away from here."

"I'll take her home," he said.

Then he ran up the beach, and I stayed behind in the shadow. Before he was half way to the wall she ran to meet him.

"Jack!" she cried, "is it you?"

There was silence for a moment. Then he spoke.

"Jack's down by the boat," he said, "and I'm here."

And she came flying down the shingle into my arms!

MANY USES FOR PATCHOULI

Employed to Impart Distinctive Odor to Indian Shawls—Highly Popular Throughout India.

A few years ago real Indian shawls bore extravagant prices, and purchasers distinguished them by their odor. In fact, they are perfumed with patchouli. The French manufacturers had for some time successfully imitated the Indian fabric, but could not impart the odor. At length they discovered the secret and began to import this plant to perfume articles of their own make. From this origin the perfumers have brought it into use.

The powdered leaves are put into muslin bags to prevent cloth being attacked by moths. The leaf is largely imported by Mogul merchants. It is used in India as an ingredient in tobacco for smoking and for scenting the hair of women, and the essential oil is in common use among the superior classes of natives for imparting the peculiar fragrance of the leaf to clothes.

The Arab merchants buy it chiefly, employing it for stuffing mattresses and pillows, asserting that it is very efficacious in preventing contagion and in prolonging life.

One of the most remarkable of the many cases on record of singular legacies is that of a Louisville husband, who bequeathed his bathrobe to his widow in these words: "Inasmuch as she has deprived me so often of the comfort and convenience of the garment that was bought for my own personal use, by wearing the aforesaid bathrobe at times when I desired and needed it most, I bequeath it to her with all my love, and hope she will ever find it the same tried and faithful servitor, even though Providence should bless her with another husband, who may have a bathrobe to spare!"

Practical Experiment.

"I understand the boys quit playing poker at Crimmon Gulch."

"Only for awhile," answered Three-Finger Sam. "A socialist came around and persuaded everybody to divide all the money in camp, even up all around. So we didn't dare to play poker 'cause we knew that in half an hour or maybe less everything 'ud be just as uneven as ever."

Financial Diagnosis.

In a confidential little talk to a group of medical students an eminent physician took up the extremely important matter of correct diagnosis of the maximum fee.

"The best rewards," he said, "come, of course, to the established specialist. For instance, I charge $25 a call at the residence, $10 for an office consultation, and $5 for a telephone consultation."

There was an appreciative and envious silence, and then a voice from the back of the amphitheater, slightly thickened, spoke:

"Doc," it asked, "how much do you charge a fellow for passing you on the street?"—Chicago Journal.

"KILL-JOYS"
Constipation, Headache, Colds, Biliousness ended with "Cascarets"

Nothing takes the joy out of life quicker than a disordered liver or waste-clogged bowels. Don't stay sick, bilious, headachy, constipated. Remove the liver and bowel poison which is keeping your head dizzy, your tongue coated, your breath bad and stomach sour. Why not spend a few cents for a box of Cascarets and enjoy the nicest, gentlest laxative-cathartic you ever experienced? Cascarets never gripe, sicken or inconvenience one like Salts, Oil, Calomel or harsh pills. They work while you sleep.—Adv.

If everybody could choose their own parents can you picture the family Rockefeller would have?

To Have a Clear Sweet Skin. Touch pimples, redness, roughness or itching, if any, with Cuticura Ointment, then bathe with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Rinse, dry gently and dust on a little Cuticura Talcum to leave a fascinating fragrance on skin. Everywhere 25c each.—Adv.

Don't pay any attention to the disagreeable things people say about you—if they are not true.

IT'S NOT YOUR HEART; IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Kidney disease is no respecter of persons. A majority of the ills afflicting people today can be traced back to the kidney trouble.

The kidneys are the most important organs of the body. They are the filters of your blood. If the poisons which are swept from the tissues by the blood are not eliminated through the kidneys, disease of one form or another will claim you as a victim.

Kidney disease is usually indicated by weariness, sleeplessness, nervousness, despondency, backache, stomach trouble, pain in loins and lower abdomen, gall stones, gravel, rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago.

All these derangements are nature's signals that the kidneys need help.

You should use GOLD MEDAL Haaslem Oil Capsules immediately. The soothing, healing oil stimulates the kidneys, relieves inflammation and destroys the germs which have caused it.

Go to your druggist today and get a box of GOLD MEDAL Haaslem Oil Capsules. In twenty-four hours you should feel health and vigor returning.

After you feel somewhat improved continue to take one or two capsules each day, so as to keep the first-class condition and ward off the danger of other attacks.

Ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand. Three sizes. Money refunded if they do not help you.

Help That Bad Back!

Why be miserable with a "bad back"? It's time you found out what is wrong! Kidney weakness often causes much suffering from backache, lameness, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and kidney irregularities. Neglected, it may lead to dropsy, gravel or Bright's disease, but if taken in time it is usually easily corrected by using Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands.

A Massachusetts Case

Mrs. H. H. Beebe, 218 Eastern Ave., Springfield, Mass., says: "I suffered from a dull pain in my back for some time. My back was so stiff and lame I could scarcely bend over. I couldn't rest comfortably in one position and my head ached. My general health was poor and I decided disorderly kidneys were the cause of all the trouble. I took four boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and I am without a sign of kidney trouble today, for they cured me."

LAMINATED WOOD IS SUPERIOR FOR BATS

Forest Service Is Making Most Interesting Experiments.

Not Certain, However, That Clubs Will Satisfy Critical Demands of Professional Players—Some Broken in Trials.

The present-day penchant of manufacturers and others for substitutes threatens even those trusted baseball bats to which every big league batter looks to perpetuate his fame. The forest products laboratory of the forest service, United States department of agriculture, has recently been manufacturing experimentally a number of laminated wood articles with the idea of utilizing small lumber stocks. Baseball bats are among the articles which have been experimented on. In practically every instance the products made from this material have given as good service as those made in the regular way. Whether they would satisfy the critical demands of professionals who inspect their white ash clubs with zealous care, is a matter as yet undetermined. The fact remains, however, that the initial success in the experiments cited seem to indicate that there is a large field heretofore undeveloped in which laminated wood can be used successfully. Attention is called to the fact that, while some of the bats have broken under severe usage, the breaks were not in the glued joints, indicating that the artificial joining has been accomplished in an entirely satisfactory manner.

Shoe lasts were also made of laminated wood and after undergoing the severest usage in various factories are still serviceable. Hat blocks of a similarly built-up material were tried out thoroughly and proved very satisfactory. Recently constructed specimens of wagon bolsters which were made up with laminations carefully joined just before gluing are standing weather tests well. A wagon company is giving these articles a trial.

PLAY CAUSED ARGUMENT

A play that caused some argument came up in the recent Yankees-Browns series. Tobin rolled a grounder to Pipp, who tagged the runner, but the ball bounced out of his hand. Mogridge caught the ball before it touched the ground and Miller Huggins argued the out therefore should be allowed. Umpire Evans ruled Pipp had not held the ball on Tobin and that the runner was safe. Certainly, what else?

First Baseman Grimm, Formerly With Little Rock, Has Had Rapid Rise in Baseball.

Charlie Grimm, who has been purchased by the Pirates from the Little Rock club of the Southern association, has had a rapid rise in baseball. Three years ago he was a peanut and soda vendor in the Cardinals' park and played semi-pro ball when the Cards were away from home. Last year he applied to Jack Hendricks, then manager of the Cardinals, for a trout, and Jack, granting it, liked the youngster's looks so well he kept him over for a time, finally turning him over to Little Rock for further seasoning.

Grimm played a fine brand of ball in the Southern association this year and the Pirate scouts believe he will show to better advantage at the initial sack than George Whitted.

English Band Indulged in Stunt Which Is Surely Something of an Innovation.

The ultimate American sensation has been reached in England. The brassy jazz band has taken possession of the land of its nearest competitor, the bagpipe, and its infectious jar and din prevail far and wide.

A jazz band has been giving a performance near London at a Y. M. C. A. hut, where it made a tremendous hit.

"Why not give the boys a treat at —," said one of the officers, naming a camp some fifty miles away.

"Couldn't get there in time," said the band leader.

"What's the matter with the band flying there?" suggested Leroy Albright, the "Y" secretary.

Planes were tuned up, the jazzers piled in, and in close formation they flew the 50 miles, playing as they went.—London Mail.

Save the Babies

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save many of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. There can be no danger in the use of Castoria if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher as it contains no opiates or narcotics of any kind.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

THIS IS THE RED CROSS CHRISTMAS SEALS GIRL

BEVERLY HAYES

Beverly Hayes says: "Buy Red Cross Christmas Seals. They protect little children from the ravages of tuberculosis. They build a barrier of health about the workers of the nation. They protect homes—your home. They spell hope, assurance and physical and economic rehabilitation to more than one million people in the United States who have tuberculosis. If you purchase enough Red Cross Christmas Seals, the death rate of this dread plague will be materially reduced."

"Last year 150,000 people fell victims of the disease. Twelve thousand of these were little children. Think of it! This death toll is needless. If we all do our part in the sale this year, next year's death rate will be smaller. It will be reduced year by year until eventually tuberculosis has passed into the oblivion which has already engulfed smallpox, leprosy and typhoid fever."

RED CROSS SEALS ARE HEALTH AGENTS

Idea Was Originated in This Country in 1908 by Miss Emily P. Bissell, of Wilmington, Del.

FIRST SALE YIELDED $3,000

National Tuberculosis Association, Which Sponsors Sale, Will Place 650,000,000 Seals on Sale to Finance the Fight Against Tuberculosis.

The Red Cross Seal—as millions of Americans know it to day, is an agent of happiness and health. It was originated in 1907 by Miss Emily P. Bissell, of Wilmington, Delaware, who learned through Jacob Rills of somewhat similar seals that were sold in Norway for the purpose of raising funds with which to fight tuberculosis.

Miss Bissell persuaded the American Red Cross to take up the idea with the result that seals were sold in a limited number of communities in 1908. The sale yielded a revenue of approximately $3,000. The Red Cross then decided to issue the seals each year and to turn the proceeds over to the National Tuberculosis Association and its affiliated societies for the purpose of financing the campaign against tuberculosis. The number of seals sold in America increased by leaps and bounds until in 1917 the total reached 180,000,000.

This year the seals are again on sale beginning December 1. More than half a billion seals have been printed for distribution to state and local agents. In addition to the seals "Health Bonds" in denominations ranging from $5.00 to $100.00 are to be sold in lieu of seals to large contributors, who do not send out a sufficient quantity of mail in December to make use of all the seals they would like to purchase. The combined quotas of all the state organizations call for more than $6,500,000 to carry out the intensive educational campaign being conducted by the National Tuberculosis Association and its 1,000 affiliated societies.

The intensive sale of these seals represents a practical demonstration of every lesson that has been learned regarding scientific distribution. Experts of the highest standing in sales management have co-operated to the extent of assuring those interested that every resident of the United States will have an opportunity to buy Red Cross Christmas Seals.

WORKERS NEEDED TO FIGHT WHITE PLAGUE

National Tuberculosis Association, Which Sponsors Red Cross Seal Sale, is Conducting Intensive Educational Campaign.

A call for volunteers to fight under the standard of the National Tuberculosis Association and its 1000 affiliated bodies throughout the country against tuberculosis—humanity's most vicious foe—has been sounded.

A recent health survey, made by the experts of the National Tuberculosis Association, brought to light some startling statistics with regard to the prevalence of the disease. The findings of this survey have revealed a national menace, which must be eradicated. The figures show that each year 150,000 persons die of the disease and that there are approximately 2,000,000 cases of tuberculosis in the United States today.

The untamed consumptive—one who does not know the rules of health, is an indefatigable spreader of the disease. Wherever he goes, he leaves behind him a trail of the deadly germs.

The National Tuberculosis Association and its affiliated bodies have entered upon an intensive nation-wide educational campaign. The campaign will be localized and within a short time there will be ample work for many thousands of volunteers.

The National Tuberculosis Association and its affiliated bodies are financed largely by the annual sale of Red Cross Christmas Seals. To make possible the carrying out of this campaign, more than 650,000,000 seals will be offered for sale during the holidays. State and local tuberculosis associations have at hand valuable local data regarding the disease and actual conditions in the communities where they are located. The officers of these bodies eagerly welcome inquiries.

DOUBLE BARRED CROSS ADOPTED 17 YEARS AGO

The double barred Red Cross is seventeen years old this month. In October, 1902, the International Anti-Tuberculosis Association, then meeting in Berlin, adopted the cross as the emblem of the world-wide fight against tuberculosis. It was proposed by Dr. G. Sersiron, of Paris. It is a combination of the Croix de Lorraine and the cross of the Greek Catholic church. Both crosses are symbolic of charity and help to humanity. Their combined features were selected and adopted as the symbol of the hope of civilization. Four years later, in 1906, the double barred Red Cross was carried into this country. It was in 1903, the National Tuberculosis Association was formed, and for the three intervening years the cross has been carried over the United States by the National Tuberculosis Association and its affiliated bodies, which now number one thousand.

The work of these organizations is financed chiefly by the Red Cross Christmas Seal sale.
